FBI Begins Investigation Of Rowell Beating Case

Civil Rights Angle Probed; Victim's Comments Reserved On Development

By John London
Post Reporter

The FBI yesterday began investigating the strange case of James Rowell, 48-year-old Yellow Cab driver, who was viciously beaten at Thomas Circle on January 14.

Rowell, who suffered a broken left arm, and bruised ribs and lost three teeth in the beating, was informed last night by a reporter that the FBI had entered the case. His comment was:

"Well, I guess it's all right. It looks like everybody is trying to help straighten this thing out."

Rowell has insisted he could not give details about the assailants and has denied he ever thought they were plain-clothes policemen. He failed to identify in a special line-up two policemen implicated by the police chief.

The victim also observed he hired an attorney, Joseph Lonohue, to represent him Wednesday, because, he said:

"I'm just getting tired all the time having everybody call me and worry me."

Comment Reserved

Asked whether he was happy that the FBI was going to help him identify the two men who mauled him, Rowell replied:

"Well, I don't know what to think about it because they (FBI agents) haven't seen me and I haven't seen them yet."

The FBI's role in the case is to find out if there has been a violation of the Federal civil rights statute.

On Wednesday Alex Campbell, Assistant United States Attorney General, revealed that the civil rights section of the Justice Department was studying the case to determine whether to ask the FBI to investigate.

Police Chief Robert J. Barrett—who rushed a police report, said to be incomplete and inconclusive, to United States Attorney George Morris Fay on Wednesday—could not be reached last night for comment on the FBI entrance into the case.

Thought Policemen Responsible

After The Washington Post uncovered the hushed-up beating and reporters began probing the case, Barrett on February 3 made the startling announcement he thought two policemen in plain clothes responsible for the beating of Rowell.

"I think they are guilty as hell but I've got to get the evidence to prove it," said Barrett then.

The police chief apparently has not been able in three weeks of investigation to get the evidence he said he lacked to back up his accusation.

In this connection, informed observers noted that the two policemen accused by Barrett, Detective Sergt. James Roche and Pvt. Angelo Bonaccorsy, have been transferred from vice squad assignments

French Customs Men Seek Raise —With Vengeance

Paris, Feb. 17 (NYHT)—French customs inspectors decided today to press their claims for higher salaries by going to work with a vengeance beginning February 28.

Where normally a union calls for a strike the Union of Customs Agents ordered its members at all ports to inspect baggage as baggage has never been inspected before. Every paragraph, sub-paragraph and explanatory note of the customs regulations is to be adhered to brutally. Not a shirt is to be left folded, not a package unwrapped, not a shaving-kit unscattered.

Authorities estimated an assiduous agent should be able to go through an ordinary suitcase for about 2½ hours before being satisfied nothing is being slipped past the border. A trunk might consume the better part of a day. A lady's handbag, therefore, could take weeks.

Atlantic Pact Still Favored By President

Inaugural Position Reaffirmed; Senators To Learn Details Today

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

President Truman announced yesterday that he still favored the proposed North Atlantic security treaty as an effective stop-signal to any would-be aggressor.

Asked at his news conference for comment on the new treaty, the President answered that there was nothing mysterious about it, and that his own views on it were known.

He said he had made his position clear in his inaugural address, and still stood by it. In the inaugural speech he had declared the main purpose of the treaty to be "to provide unmistakable proof of the joint determination of the free countries to resist armed attack from any quarter."

Reassurance for Europe

His address on January 20 went on to say: "If we can make it sufficiently clear, in advance, that any armed attack affecting our armed security would be met with overwhelming force, the armed attack might never occur."

By reaffirming this statement yesterday, even without repeating the actual words, the President was apparently trying to reassure opinion in western Europe which had been shaken by last Monday's speeches in the Senate. Secretary Acheson had tried to do the same thing at his own press conference on Wednesday.

Acheson plans to outline the almost-completed North Atlantic treaty to the full Senate Foreign Relations Committee at a secret session this afternoon.

First Time All Will Get Details

It will be the first time that all the committee members, except for Chairman Tom Connally and former Chairman Arthur H. Vandenberg, will learn officially what the treaty contains. Acheson had discussed the draft previously with Connally and Vandenberg.

Both Senators had objected to certain aspects of the draft, notably to the word "military" as describing one of the types of action the United States might take against an aggressor. On Wednesday, however, Acheson told his press conference that "there are no real differences in regard to the objectives which this Government is seeking to accomplish."

Today's meeting with the committee may lead to publication next week of at least a summary of the present treaty draft. Until now most of the treaty's terms have been kept secret, and Senator Connally has insisted that he did not want even a summary published until his committee could "see what's in it."

Hard Committee Fight Seen

The Secretary may have an uphill fight in trying to win committee support for the kind of treaty that has emerged from the past seven months' discussions with Canada and the five countries of the so-called Western Union in Europe.

Apart from Connally and Vandenberg, who have individual objections, Senators Alexander Wiley (R., Wis.) and Bourke Hickenlooper (R., Iowa), have fought

Parade at Altitude Of 1500 Feet Will Climax Air Show

Five of the Air Force's fastest and most modern combat aircraft will parade over downtown Washington today as a grand finale to Tuesday's congressional air show.

At 12:30 p. m. the first of the fantastic airplanes will appear over the Capitol at 1500 feet altitude. With the other four following at intervals, it will turn west and fly above Pennsylvania ave. to the White House, turn south and wing its way to the Pentagon, then turn back and fly north out Sixteenth st. nw. Each plane will then continue on to its home base from which it flew here for the show at Andrews Air Base.

Air Force headquarters said the five aircraft would not be flown in formation because of their vast differences in speed, ranging from some 300 miles an hour to more than 650.

Best known of the quintet will be the B-36 bomber, designed for a speed of 330 miles an hour, a range of 10,000 miles and a payload at short ranges of 36 tons. The B-36 can be recognized easily by its long fuselage, its sharply swept-back wings and its six pusher engines.

This bomber, which recently made an 8000-mile nonstop flight is 163 feet long, has a wing span of 230 feet and measures 47 feet from the ground to the tip of its rudder. Its bomb bays are 85 feet long and its six engines deliver a total of 18,000 horsepower.

Most spectacular of the aircraft will be the B-49 Flying Wing, which looks like a giant bat in flight. It is 172 feet wide but, with no fuselage, is only 53 feet long. Its eight jet engines, mounted in banks of four to a side, develop a thrust equivalent to 32,000 horsepower. No performance figures have been released, but the B-49 is believed to have a designed range of 3000 miles.

Another spectacular bomber is the B-47, with a long, thin fuselage and very sharply swept-back wings. This bomber, which recently spanned the continent in 3 3/4

B-36 to Lead Parade Beginning at 12:30

First of the five military planes to fly low over Washington beginning at 12:30 p. m. today will be the B-36, a six-engine bomber, an Air Force spokesman said last night.

It will be followed at one-minute intervals by a B-45 jet bomber, a B-47 jet bomber, the B-49 flying wing (said to be the only such plane the Air Force has), and an F-86 jet fighter.

Bill to Extend Export Control Passed by House

Disregarding scattered Republican shouts of "regimentation" and "socialism," the House voted yesterday to give President Truman broad control over exports until June 30, 1951.

It passed, 259 to 102, a bill extending, with changes, the export control authority first given to the President in July, 1940. The bill goes back to the Senate, which had passed a similar measure differing in details.

The present export control authority expires at the end of this month.

AMG Sends Orient Express Waiter to Jail

Crime Not Specified As Espionage Trial Secrecy Is Eased

Munich, Germany, Feb. 17 (AP).—A United States military commission, officially ordered to be less secretive about its spy trials, sentenced a waiter on the Orient Express to 20 years at hard labor today.

By order of Maj. Gen. Maxwell Taylor, the commission disclosed the conviction and sentence and identified the slender, brown-haired prisoner as Frontisek Klecka, 31.

Klecka is one of 20 persons rounded up by the Army last November on charges of being members of a Czechoslovak espionage ring. He claimed French citizenship, but said his wife lives in Czechoslovakia. The Orient Express is a crack international train that runs from Paris through Strasbourg, Stuttgart, Munich, Salzburg, Vienna and Budapest.

Prisoner Denies Guilt

General Taylor, chief of staff of Army Ground Forces in Europe, authorized some publicity after Gen. Lucius D. Clay, United States commander in Germany, ordered a probe of the commission's plan for absolute secrecy in two of the five trials scheduled.

The commission, headed by Brig. Gen. John L. McKee, had imposed the news blackout on the ground it was necessary for American security.

McKee refused to specify Klecka's nationality, but an interpreter said Klecka spoke in Czech in protesting the conviction, declaring: "I am not guilty."

Detailed charges were not disclosed.

The Army's Public Information Service put out a statement that Klecka was sentenced "for espionage." A few minutes later, the announcement was corrected to delete the word "espionage" and substitute the words "violation of Military Government Ordinance No. 8."

Reprisals Feared

That ordinance covers "acts prejudicial to the security or mission of the U. S. forces," communication of information "which may be dangerous to the security or property of Allied forces" or any other act "endangering the security of Allied forces." Gen. McKee told newsmen this "could embrace espionage."

General Clay said he still dislikes the secrecy surrounding the trial, but that in this case it is necessary to protect the witnesses against reprisals. The fifth trial also is to be secret. The others, including the trial of five persons starting Monday, will be open.

Citizens Split On Suffrage For District

Home Rule Advocates Are in Majority at Hearing of Senate Subcommittee

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Washington citizens presented sharply conflicting views on local suffrage yesterday to a Senate District Subcommittee whose announced aim is to write a home rule bill that will pass Congress this session.

Washington supporters of home rule, who were in the majority at the public hearing, voiced high hopes that the legislation will be approved this time. They noted sharp contrast between the friendly treatment promised home rule by the present Senate group, and committees of earlier years which questioned local suffrage from the start.

The five-hour hearing at the Capitol produced expressions of sharp opposition to home rule from spokesmen for some powerful Washington groups. However, House District leaders who last year carried the ball for home rule opponents to the House floor and blocked passage of the Auchincloss bill were absent from the hearing.

Reorganization an Issue

Senator Kefauver (D., Tenn.), chairman of the Senate District Home Rule Subcommittee, said the biggest issue raised is whether a home rule bill should include provision for reorganizing District agencies.

He said he personally favors putting home rule and reorganization in one bill. But he said the subcommittee must first decide as a practical matter whether a bill with reorganization features or one without will have the best chance of passage.

Citizens who backed home rule divided on whether reorganization should be handled in the same bill or come later.

With Kefauver through the hearing was Mrs. Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.) member of the subcommittee. Present for the opening session were Senators Miller (D., Idaho) Hendrickson (R., N. J.) and Frear (D., Del.) and Representatives Auchincloss (R., N. J.) and Allen (R., Calif.). Auchincloss headed, and Allen was a member of, the House subcommittee which drafted and sponsored a home rule bill in the last Congress.

Washington sponsors of home rule split into four main groups on details of how local self government legislation should be drafted. There was general support of the Auchincloss formula for an elected council and appointed city manager form of government.

Divisions of Opinion

Main divisions of opinion were these:

1. That the Auchincloss formula for handling local legislation should be adopted. This calls for letting the council "propose" but not "enact" District legislation. Each council "proposal" would have to win approval of both Houses of Congress and of the President to become law. Mrs. Milton Dunn of the District League of Women Voters was among those who urged congressional review of council legislation.

2. That a higher degree of home rule power be given the local council, along the lines proposed in separate bills by the District Democratic Central Committee and the Washington Home Rule Com-

Truman Says Decline In Prices Is Merely Leveling-Off Process

President Insists On Increased Taxes, Disavows Plans for Added Jobless Care

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

President Truman expressed confidence yesterday that recent slumps in some prices signified only the leveling-off process everyone has been wishing for.

At the same time, he told a news conference he had not changed his mind on the need for four billion dollars in new taxes and denied plans to care for any sharp rise in unemployment.

Asked about the business outlook, Mr. Truman said he thought the situation was nothing to be alarmed about. He said he was not at present considering modification of Federal Reserve Board Regulation W, which limits installment buying, and added that if it became necessary to modify the regulation, it would be looked into.

Question of Procedure

The President opened his conference with a statement that the Ways and Means Committee of the House had begun considering social security legislation before new taxes because he had asked it to do so. It was simply a question of procedure, he said, which made no difference in his program for more taxes.

As a matter of fact, he explained, the tax proposal was not yet ready and bringing up social security ahead of it was just a way of keeping the Ways and Means Committee busy. He remarked that there had been a lot of speculation about himself and the committee's procedure.

Congress has done nothing to advance anti-inflation measures the Administration sent up to it earlier this week. In debate on the matter of increasing unemployment shortly before the President's conference, Representative Brown (R., Ohio) quoted "reliable sources" that the Administration was planning "a new type WPA program."

Asked if his social security program would contain "home relief" funds, Mr. Truman said he hadn't heard about it.

Earlier, the Senate-House Economic Committee was told by economists that the trend toward continued prosperity or toward a depression would become clear in March or April. In those months, they said, construction and manufacturing normally begin rehiring after winter layoffs.

Advancement Predicted

Should the number of jobless, now some three million, decrease or remain static, they predicted, a period of economic advancement probably would lie ahead.

One witness, A. D. H. Kaplan of the Brookings Institution, told the committee the current slump in business activity was just an economic "burp, not a belly ache."

"I think the baby has been taking the bottle very fast since the war," he said. "You can't keep crowding milk into a baby; there is a time for letting the baby burp."

A majority of 17 economists representing private industry warned the committee against approving the Administration's tax and wage-price allocation pro-

C & O Railroad Will Lay Off 4000 Employes Temporarily

Cleveland, Feb. -1 (AP).—Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad announced today temporary layoffs for more than 4000 employes in four areas.

Effective at the end of working hours Saturday, car shops at Raceland, Ky., employing about 335 will be shut down for the rest of the month. Effective Monday, shops at Richmond, Va., employing 140, will close for the same period. The same will be true of the shops in Huntington, W. Va., employing 130.

In the Chesapeake district, roughly the area from Newport News, Va., to Cincinnati, all of the 3800 maintenance of way employes will be off Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

A railroad spokesman said declining passenger business and slower movement of coal, due to a mild winter, were responsible for the layoffs.

During December and the first half of January, layoffs on the entire system numbered about 5600, but on February 1 more than 2000 were called back, he said.

B. & O. Orders Layoffs For 2521 Shop Workers

Baltimore, Feb. 17 (AP).—The Baltimore & Ohio today ordered a five-day furlough late this month for 2521 of its shop employes throughout the system.

A continued decline in freight business was given as the reason.

The furlough will start at the end of the working day on Monday, February 21. They will return to work on Tuesday morning, March 1.

The most extensive layoffs are 987 men in Baltimore and 728 at Cumberland, Md. The layoffs at Cumberland include 326 in the

Two Associates Testify Today For Axis Sally

Expected to Say She Was Coerced; Counsel Loses Acquittal Plea

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

Two German former associates of Miss Mildred E. (Axis Sally) Gillars are slated to take the witness stand today to testify that the latter had been coerced by her Nazi overlords into broadcasting Nazi propaganda.

This was announced yesterday by Defense Attorney James J. Laughlin following his defeat on a motion for a directed verdict in favor of the 48-year-old defendant now on trial in District Court on treason charges.

The two star defense witnesses, through whom Laughlin hopes to prove that Miss Gillars faced death had she refused to broadcast, are Emil Beckmann and Frank J. Schaefer, who were flown here last week from Germany through the cooperation of the Department of Justice.

Makes Impassioned Plea

Laughlin started the first day of the defense side of the case yesterday with an impassioned three-hour plea for judgment of acquittal.

With the jury excluded, Laughlin addressed the court, centering his argument on the proposition that "mere words do not constitute the crime of treason."

Declaring that Miss Gillars has a right to criticize Roosevelt, the British, and Jews, Laughlin said that while he decried anti-Semitism: "Things have come to a pretty pass if a person cannot make an anti-Semitic speech without being charged with treason."

Laughlin continued: "Being against President Roosevelt could not be treason. There are two schools of thought about President Roosevelt. One holds he was a patriot and a martyr. The other holds that he was the greatest rogue in all history, the greatest fraud and the greatest impostor that ever lived."

"Even disregarding compulsion and coercion, what she did doesn't constitute treason," Laughlin asserted. "Treason must be something more than the spoken word."

Declaring that the Government had built its case around factors

D. C. Child Aid Cases Increase Sharply in Year

Dependent Care Cost Up 46.4%; Old-Age Assistance Mounts

Aid to dependent children through the District Board of Public Welfare rose 34.7 per cent during 1948, it was disclosed yesterday.

The board's monthly statistical report, just released, said 4880 dependent children were receiving aid in December, 1948, as compared with 3623 children in December, 1947.

Nearly every aspect of the board's work showed an increase, but the biggest jump was in the number of dependent children. The board spent $130,465 in aid to dependent children in December, 1948, a 46.4 per cent increase over the preceding December figure, $89,125. Average cost per case rose from $18.31 to $19.97 during the 12-month period.

Old-age assistance cases rose 11.5 per cent from 2259 to 2518, and the cost rose from $89,420 in December, 1947, to $107,563 this past December.

In December, 1948, 87 families were receiving general public assistance, 10.3 per cent fewer than in the preceding December, but the number of one-person cases this past December was 1149, or 11.3 per cent more than the 1032 cases of the contrasting month.

A higher unemployment rate and an increase in the number of men deserting their families, presumably due to the increased cost of living, is reflected in the increased number of cases, according to the welfare board. An increasing number of women, mostly widows, who are unable to find employment when they have a family of small children, is also being noted.

An increase in Federal funds granted under a recent amendment to the Social Security Act has enabled the District to meet the increased financial burden.

Among institutions, the Receiving Home for Children showed the largest increase in population in the report, rising from 79 in December, 1947, to 139 this past December. The increase in large part is attributed to the razing of slum and low-priced houses to make way for improvements, with the evicted families placing their children in the Receiving Home temporarily.

30 Injured in Italy As Armored Cars Break Up Sit-in Rome, Feb. 17 (AP).—Armored cars were used against 1000 entrenched factory workers today to break up the worst disorders in Italy in the last six months.

The Ministry of Interior said 30 persons were wounded, some by gunfire, at Isola Liri, a town of 10,000 population 50 miles south of Rome. The rioting was described as the bloodiest since disorders set off by the attempt on the life of Communist Chief Palmiro Tagliatti last July 14.

The ministry said 14 military police, 9 police agents and 7 demonstrators were wounded, some by gunfire. Hand grenades, pistols, machine guns and rocks were used in the fighting.

The workers had occupied a paper mill in an attempt to halt the dismissal of 50 employes. Mill owners and workers' representatives had agreed to the dismissals.

Dean Succeeds Fr. Gorman

Rev. Hunter Guthrie Named President of Georgetown U.

The Rev. Hunter Guthrie, S. J., 48, dean of the Georgetown University Graduate School, has been named rector and president of the university.

The appointment, effective today, was made on the authority of the Very Rev. John Janssens, S. J., general of the Society of Jesus in Rome, and announced last night by the Maryland provincial, the Very Rev. David Nugent, S. J., at a dinner of the Jesuit faculty in the faculty dining room at the university.

The Very Rev. Lawrence C. Gorman, S. J., who completed yesterday a six-year term as president and rector of the 160-year-old institution, the oldest Catholic university in the United States, was the first to congratulate his successor following the announcemen.

The Rev. Father Gorman, following a brief vacation, will give his full time to the establishment of a Jesuit retreat house at Chapel Point, Md. The project is being planned for the Laymen's Retreat League of the Archdiocese of Washington.

During Father Gorman's term as president of the university, enrollment rose from 1700 to 5600, and the new University Hospital on Reservoir rd., near the northwest corner of the campus, was erected. Construction, expansion and remodeling of other facilities also proceeded during his term, and the Alumni Association is currently engaged in a national campaign to raise $800,000 for construction of the McDonough Gymnasium.

The new Georgetown president, a native New Yorker like his predecessor, came to Georgetown in 1943 from Fordham University, where he was director of the department of philosophy in the graduate school.

In addition to having been dean of the Georgetown graduate school he has been chairman of the Council of Regents and Deans and a member of the board of trustees.

150-Pound Squadron Drillmaster Shows His Dissatisfaction

Major, a Great Dane that stands and ranks high at Bolling Air Base, yesterday showed fellow officers how to put teeth in their discipline.

The 150-pound mascot of the Headquarters and Command Squadron:

A drillmaster with the squadron on its march to duty every day, Major tired of barking orders. He took action.

Sergt. Robert Cosgrove, 37, of Western Port, Md., who is sports editor of the Bolling Beam, was marching as right guidon-bearer. His job was to keep cadence and maintain alignment.

The dog grabbed his arm—"He overpowered me," the sergeant said—and pulled him out of formation.

At the station hospital, where he was admitted for treatment of toothmarks on his wrist, Cosgrove said Major "apparently didn't like the way I was marching."

Dr. Weizmann Is Inaugurated As Israel's First President

Jerusalem, Feb. 17 (AP).—Dr. Chaim Weizmann was inaugurated today as the first President of the young State of Israel in a ceremony filled with ancient Hebrew symbolism.

Thousands of spectators lining Jerusalem's streets cheered and wept for joy as they viewed the procession held for the 70-year-old scientist who has devoted a lifetime to the Zionist cause.

Weizmann took the oath in the Jewish Agency Building before the recently elected Israel Parliament. The 120-member Parliament named him President last night on the first ballot after adopting a new constitution.

He had been provisional President since last May, when the British surrendered their League of Nations mandate over Palestine and Israel proclaimed herself an independent nation. Weizmann is pro-Western and outspokenly anti-Russian in his views.

As Weizmann entered the chamber for the ceremony today, the ceremonial ram's horn was sounded. Joseph Sprinzak, 63, Speaker of the House, administered the oath in Hebrew.

Solemnly raising his right hand, the man who heads the first Jewish state in 2000 years said:

"I Chaim ben Ozer Weizmann, as President of the State, swear allegiance to the State of Israel and its laws."

"Chaim ben Ozer" means Chaim, son of Ozer.

Weizmann stood before a huge portrait of Theodor Herzl, founder of the World Zionist Organization.

On each side of the portrait was a blue and white national flag. The hall was decorated by the flickering candles in seven-armed candelabra, a State emblem.

At the close of the ceremony, the Speaker of the House exclaimed: "Yehi Hanassi!" (Long live the President).

Rev. Guthrie, S. J., New Georgetown Head, Is Old World Scholar With Modern Views

The Rev. Hunter Guthrie, S. J., Georgetown University's new rector and president, is an Old World scholar with a modern approach to education.

Thirty-two of his 48 years have been spent in the Jesuit order and his studies have taken him to seven of Europe's oldest universities. Yet his educational interests are in the application of his training in philosophy to political and social sciences.

Assuming his new post last night he declared the job of the educator is essentially the same as it was in the twelfth century.

"For this part of our work we have the rich tradition of the liberal arts and disciplines," he said.

"The accidental differences of time and location, the twentieth century and these United States, make the greatest demands on the educator's ingenuity and powers of evaluation. He must know what to emphasize, what new methods will highlight old truths."

Served As Graduate Dean

As dean of Georgetown University's graduate school during the past five years, Father Guthrie broke with a 150-year-old tradition and admitted women students. Under his administration the graduate school also grew from 44 to a current enrollment of more than 500.

Six feet tall and broad shouldered, Father Guthrie looks older than his years despite high coloring and an unlined face. His fringe of hair is snow white. A serious scholar, he also is an affable man whose knack of coining phrases enlivens his lectures.

He has been an ordained priest only since 1930 but has moved up fast in the Jesuit order.

A native New Yorker, he entered the Novitiate of St. Andrew-on-Hudson, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., when he was 16. He studied at Weston College, Mass., and at Woodstock College, Md., where he received bachelor and master of arts degrees and in 1925 he began a series of travels that took him to the Philippines to teach and then all over the world.

Studies Abroad

After his ordination to the priesthood he studied at the Gregorian University in Rome, receiving the degree of doctor of sacred theology. There followed studies in ascetical theology at Tronchiennes, Belgium, and in modern philosophy at the universities of Louvain, Munich, Freiburg, and Berlin. In 1937 he received a doctorate in philosophy with highest honors from the Sorbonne in Paris.

On returning to the United States he taught at Woodstock College and was director of the department of philosophy at Fordham University graduate school before his appointment at Georgetown.

Since the war he has made two trips aboard and after a visit last fall, strongly defended Franco Spain in a lecture that brought him both praise and criticism.

Father Guthrie's mother, Mrs. Mary Ross Guthrie, who has moved to Washington to be near her only child, makes her home at 3426 16th st. nw.

Ban on Bias Is Asked for Housing Bill

By The Associated Press

Senators studying public housing legislation were asked yesterday to write in a ban on racial or religious discrimination.

Elmer W. Henderson, director of the American Council on Human Rights, told a Senate Banking Subcommittee that Negroes "suffered more, proportionately," than any other group from bad housing.

He urged that public housing built under a proposed Administration measure be made available "to all citizens on the basis of need without regard to race or religion."

The Administration bill would provide Federal loans and grants for slum clearance and low-cost public housing projects. It calls for building 1,050,000 dwelling units in seven years.

Public Hearings End Today

A companion measure is designed to spur private home construction through credit guarantees and mortgage insurance.

Several similar bills also are being considered by the subcommittee. It plans to end its public hearings today.

Three mayors told the committee that cities must have Federal help to meet the housing needs of their low-income families.

A statement submitted for Mayor O'Dwyer of New York said that city has embarked on a record low-rent housing program since the war but needs Federal aid "to make any real headway" in solving the problem. He said that new housing in his city is out of the average family's financial reach, with three-room apartments renting for about $80 a month minimum.

Mayors Vincent Murphy of Newark, N. J., and Frank P. Zeidler of Milwaukee agreed with him that private industry is unable to do the job.

No Shortage, Gwinn Says

Representative Gwinn (R., N. Y.) said that "actually there is no housing shortage—only a shortage of dwellings for rent caused by the "monstrous evil" of rent control.

Gwinn called for an end of rent control in a statement to be put into the Congressional Record. Rent control, he said, is "morally and legally wrong" and economically "crazy."

The House Banking Committee is holding hearings on a bill to continue the controls. William E. Russell of New York, chairman of the Metropolitan Fair Rent Committee, spoke up for a one-year extension, but with provisions for "a reasonable return" on the fair value of the property.

Quotes Advertisements

Gwinn's statement asked how there can be a housing shortage when hundreds of thousands of dwellings are being thrown on the market at prices below present building costs. He cited advertisements in various newspapers to support his argument there has been a "fantastic increase" in the number of houses and apartments for sale.

Because of rent control, he said, people are trying to sell units formerly offered for rent.

The committee room, in which property owners now are presenting their case, broke into applause when Representative Cole (R., Kans.) said a fair rent control law cannot be written in peacetime.

Chairman Spence (D., Ky.) called the committee to a night session so that as many persons as possible may express their views before the public hearings close on Monday.

Whisky Bill Defeated

Dublin, Feb. 17 (AP).—Parliament turned down tonight a bill which would have made it illegal for an Irishman to buy a drink of whisky on Sunday. The vote was 65 to 41.

Study Change Is Commended To Catholics

Baltimore, Feb. 17 (U.P.).—Teachers from Catholic high schools in the Middle Atlantic States were advised today that the program of studies they offer may need an overhaul.

Msgr. Frederick G. Hochwalt, secretary general of the National Catholic Education Association in Washington, presented the problem to a regional conference of the association at Seton High School.

Participating were about a thousand priests, brothers, sisters and lay teachers from Maryland, Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Delaware and the District of Columbia.

Monsignor Hochwalt called attention to the findings of a committee of United States Office of Education. It shows, he said, that the program of studies in high schools needs revision, and many of these suggestions can be applied to Catholic high schools.

He urged the teachers to pay particular attention to the committee's suggestions about the mastery of reading, writing and arithmetic. He also recommended close study of findings about study of citizenship, health and safety, consumer education, work experience, and home and family life.

Archbishop Francis P. Keough of Baltimore opened the conference with a declaration that one of the main responsibilities of Catholic teachers is to train youth well so they may resist communism and other isms.

The opposition to Federal aid for Catholic schools, he said, "is a compliment to the effectiveness of your teaching."

"We want Federal aid for Catholic schools," he continued, "only in those States where it is needed. All we want for our children are just the necessary services where they are now difficult to get—a textbook, a bus ride, some medical and dental aid.

"We don't want anyone to build our schools. We don't want a penny for the salaries of our teachers."

Swastika Raised In Protest Against Mme. Flagstad

Bristol, Va., Febt. 17 (U.P.).—Veterans raised a Nazi swastika below an inverted American flag today to protest the appearance tonight of Soprano Kirsten Flagstad.

Later, they hauled down the flags, and when the singer arrived there was no further demonstration.

A controversy has raged here since Madame Flagstad was booked several months ago. She will leave Sunday for an European tour.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars protested the Wagnerian singer's alleged collaborationist associations during the war, when she went to Norway to be with her husband.

Madame Flagstad's appearance here was sponsored by two colleges, Virginia Intermont and Sullins.

School Bond Issue Proposed In Gloucester

Gloucester, Va., Feb. 17 (AP).—The Gloucester County School Board today released a resolution calling for an election on a $750,000 school bond issue.

The bond issue, if approved, would provide funds for a building program which includes construction of two new high schools, an elementary school and a combination elementary and high school.

The move is the latest step in a wrangle between Gloucester school officials and Negro patrons over equalized educational facilities.

Last month, four school officials were cited by Federal District Court Judge Sterling Hutcheson for contempt for not taking substantial steps to equalize Negro and white schools as ordered in his injunction.

Outline of Program

Under the program outlined by the board, one new high school would be built on or near the present site of Hayes Elementary School (white) and another at Botetourt at Gloucester courthouse. The combination elementary and high school would be constructed at the present site of the Gloucester Training School (Negro).

A new Negro elementary school would be erected on Route 17 near Ark, north of Gloucester courthouse.

In addition two white high schools—Botetourt and Achilles—would be converted to elementary schools.

This action was the outcome of a special meeting of the school board Monday night called by Chairman Stanley Gray.

"The plan to construct a new high school at the site of the present Botetourt High School is part of the extended building program and construction on that school will not begin until after other projects considered more urgent are completed," Gray said.

Abandoning the consolidated school plan which has been encouraged by the State Department of Education and under consideration of Gloucester County for several years, the board voted in favor of continuing two white high schools in the county, moving the high school from Achilles to Hayes Store. The high school will be kept at Botetourt under the program.

Division Superintendent J. Walter Kenney, School Board Chairman Gray and board member Wallace Fletcher and Otis Hogge, who were adjudged guilty of contempt for not taking substantial steps to equalize the Negro and white schools stand liable for punishment in April when Judge Hutcheson will pass sentence.

In deferring imposition of penalties until then Judge Hutcheson said he would take into consideration any further steps toward equalization made during that interval.

W. H. Carter, a former Tuskegee Institute official, said yesterday the Gloucester Training School Parent-Teachers Association, of which he is now president, heard reports Monday night that the petition for a bond election had been favorably received by the Negro and white voters of Gloucester.

He said the training school P.-T.A. had pledged wholehearted support of whatever decisions the school board makes to provide better schools.

Wallgren Defends His Fitness

By The Associated Press

Mon C. Wallgren told the Senate Armed Services Committee yesterday he thinks 12 years in Congress qualify him to serve as chairman of the National Resources Security Board.

Wallgren, whose appointment has been criticized by Senator Cain (R., Wash.), testified that President Truman "has confidence in me."

Cain read the committee a statement contending that Wallgren lacks qualifications for what Cain called one of the most important jobs in the country.

Cain conceded that Wallgren, former Senator and former Washington Governor, is a crack billiards player, a golfer who shoots in the 70s and a good fishing companion for the President.

But, he said, Wallgren doesn't have any special knowledge for the job for which he has been nominated.

In reply, Wallgren told the committee that when he served as a member of the Truman War Investigating Committee he became very familiar with the military and civilian relationship in the war effort.

Filibuster Fight Officially Set for Feb. 28

By the United Press

The Senate was told officially yesterday that its antifilibuster fight will begin February 28.

The date was agreeable to Democrats and Republicans who want to curb filibusters and to Southern Democrats who oppose it as their first line of defense against civil rights legislation.

Although agreeing to the date, the Southerners are set to talk to death the antifilibuster proposition.

The way was cleared when Senator Carl Hayden (D., Ariz.) formally submitted a filibuster-breaking resolution approved by his Senate Rules Committee.

Senator Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas meanwhile asked for patience from critics who claim Congress is moving too slowly on the civil rights issue.

In a letter to Americans for Democratic Action, he said he faced a problem of "the whole President's program," and that no single issue could be permitted to overshadow others of equal importance.

The ADA had complained about Lucas' plans to lay aside the filibuster fight from time to time to pass "must" legislation.

In a written report accompanying the antifilibuster resolution, Hayden said it would close a loophole which has existed in the cloture rule (to limit debate) since it was adopted in 1917.

The resolution would let the Senate limit debate on any matter by a two-thirds vote. The present rule isn't quite that broad. Hayden defended the two-thirds vote requirement against those who want majority rule.

A minority report, signed by Senators John C. Stennis (D., Miss.), Russell B. Long (D., La.), and Lester C. Hunt (D., Wyo.), protested that the proposal was "a long step away from our heritage of freedom." They called it a step toward a broader rule under which debate could be limited by a simple majority.

Senate Passes Bill to Extend Ship Authority

The Senate yesterday passed and sent to the House a resolution extending until June 30 Maritime Commission authority to sell, charter and operate merchant vessels.

The authority is due to expire March 1. The resolution also extends U. S. Coast Guard authority to grant waivers of inspection and navigation laws for vessels of American registry.

Senator Warren Magnuson (D., Wash.) said the measure was necessary to avoid disrupting current shipping operations and to afford Congress opportunity for a full study of merchant shipping problems.

Passage was by unanimous consent.

Atom Plant Homes Arouse Envy Here

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

How'd you like to rent a brand-new, ranch-type, four-bedroom house that cost the Government $10,000 in addition to the land, with free heat, water, electricity, landscaping, garbage removal, etc., for $57.50 a month?

Or one like it with only three bedrooms for $52.50?

You could almost see green envy in the eyes of the members of the House-Senate Atomic Energy Committee yesterday as they heard the description of 1000 new homes the Government has just built and is renting to Atomic Energy Commission and General Electric workers at Hanford, Wash.

In fact two of the members, Senators Brien McMahon (D., Conn.) and Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R., Iowa) interrupted the witness, Fred Schlemmer, project manager at Hanford, as he described the new homes, by exclaiming in unison, how they'd like that here.

The Congressmen, who draw $12,500 a year (plus $2500 expense account) heard Schlemmer testify that he draws $18,000 from AEC. He runs the 5777 houses AEC has built for employes at the plutonium plant. The houses have no meters to measure the electricity or water used. Coal is delivered to the home free, for heating. The only restrictions on its use, Schlemmer said, was that when a renter used too much they "spoke to him" and gave instructions on how better to fire the furnace.

Before he took the $18,000-a-year job, Schlemmer testified, he was the $25,000 head of a big textile company. He had that job two years, he told Hickenlooper. Before that he had been a project manager for the Tennessee Valley Authority at $9500 a year for 13 years. He called the Senators' attention to the fact that TVA has a $10,000 ceiling on salaries.

He was a witness before the committee three years ago when the members of the AEC were up for Senate confirmation, he admitted, when Hickenlooper asked him if he hadn't appeared before the group before.

Over Hiroshima

Atom Bomb Burst 1900 Ft. Up, Japs Say

Tokyo, Feb. 17 (U.P.).—Shinto Hamai, Mayor of Hiroshima, said today that Japanese investigators have determined that the atomic bomb which destroyed the city 3½ years ago exploded about 1900 feet over the "dead-center" of the city.

The Mayor said the downward atomic ray threw a "shadow" that could later be observed. By drawing lines between outer fringes of shadows and to the tip of standing objects that caused the shadows, it was possible to learn where the bomb actually went off.

The investigation showed that the bomb struck at the center of Hiroshima "within a circle of 20 meters diameter," he said.

Conservatives Hold to British Medical Law

London, Feb. 17 (U.P.).—The Conservative Party disclosed tonight that it would not scrap Britain's national health organization should it be returned to power. The disclosure came as the House of Commons voted more money to meet unexpectedly high costs of socialized medicine.

Conservative spokesman Ralph Assheton, debating on the added costs, said any suggestions his party would scrap the law were "absolutely false."

The debate centered on Conservative opposition to the government's request for 208 million dollars over the 528 million dollars estimate of costs for the first nine months of operations.

Assheton blasted the government's failure to estimate costs properly and said, "a business firm that made such a ghastly error would go bankrupt."

Soviet Blockade Of Berlin Called Failure by Clay

Berlin, Feb. 17 (U.P.).—Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American commander in Germany, declared today the Soviet blockade of Berlin is a failure.

"There is no question whatsoever now of our ability to sustain Berlin by air indefinitely until we have accomplished our objectives," he said.

The Russians now are building permanent road blocks of iron, steel and stone across several of the Berlin streets which link the Soviet sector with the Western sectors. Semipermanent barriers are being thrown across other traffic arteries.

The barricades are being built apparently to prevent automobiles from slipping past. The road blocks do not prevent pedestrian or bicycle traffic.

American authorities said there was "nothing alarming" about the Soviet measures but some Germans were disturbed.

Hayes to Head Machinists Union

By The Associated Press

Al J. Hayes, formerly of Milwaukee, today was assured the presidency of one of the Nation's biggest labor unions, the International Association of Machinists.

IAM headquarters said Hayes is the sole nominee put up by IAM locals for the April membership election to choose a successor for Harvey Brown, present IAM president. Brown is retiring.

Hayes, 49, started as a railroad shop worker in Milwaukee and worked at railroad jobs in various sections of the country. He started his union career at the age of 20, becoming an IAM vice president in 1944.

Yorkshire Byelection Is Won by Laborite

London (Friday), Feb. 18 (U.P.).—Laborite A. D. Broughton won the Batley, Yorkshire, by election by a majority of 7686 votes over his conservative opponent, A. M. Ramsden, unofficial returns showed today.

It was the forty-sixth by election won by the Labor Party since 1945, but Broughton's majority compared with a Labor majority of 11,592 in Batley four years ago.

Cardinal Trial A 'Travesty,' Asserts Chapin

Paris, Feb. 17 (U.P.).—U. S. Minister to Hungary Selden Chapin, heading home, declared tonight the trial of Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty was a "travesty."

Chapin said that he did not know exactly how the Communist-dominated government of Hungary wrung a partial confession from the Catholic prelate, but said he was certain that "all kinds of pressure were used."

"I don't know whether it was necessary to use drugs," he said.

The U. S. Minister has been summoned to Washington by the State Department "for consultations." American authorities have taken no formal action of the Hungarian demands that he be recalled.

He plans to board the Queen Mary at Cherbourg, Saturday.

Chapin said he will hold a press conference at 11 a. m. Saturday.

During a stopover in Vienna, Chapin said stern U. S. reaction to the imprisonment of Mindszenty "had a profound effect" in Hungary.

Anne Arundel Detectives Start Gambling Raids

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 17 (A.P.).—Anne Arundel County plainclothesmen staged a series of gambling raids today, a few hours after Police Commissioner Z. Garner Jones declared bookmakers "are running wide open" in the county.

Armed with search warrants issued by Circuit Court Judge Benjamin Michaelson, Chief John H. Souers, jr., and his men raided four establishments on the outskirts of Annapolis.

Except to say that no evidence of gambling was found at one of the places, police made no immediate comment on results.

Souers said he was prepared to obtain additional warrants.

Jones had told reporters that there is "a network of telephone bookies from one end of the county to the other."

He is one of three members of the County Board of Police Commissioners.

Reports Norway Turns From Pact Are Discounted

Oslo, Norway, Feb. 17 (U.P.).—Norwegian Foreign Minister Halvard M. Lange told Norway's Labor Party tonight that his recent mission to Washington on the Atlantic pact was not a failure, well-informed sources said.

The sources were convinced that reports Lange was inclined to turn away from the Atlantic pact toward a neutral Scandinavian union were without basis.

Members, who heard Lange, said reports that the time schedule for creating the Atlantic pact had been upset were just rumor.

Lange also had a private talk today with Danish Premier Hans Hedtoft, who is in Oslo along with Swedish Premier Tage Erlander to attend the Norwegian Labor Party Congress, which opened today.

Chinese Reds Call Li 'Dupe,' Discredit Trip

Shanghai (Friday), Feb. 18 (U.P.).—Canton newspapers said acting President Li Tsung-jen may fly to Peiping to confer with Communist leaders but the reports were discredited early today when the Communist radio ridiculed Li as a "dupe."

While an unofficial peace delegation of Shanghai civic leaders talked with Peiping Communist leaders, the Red broadcast said peace measures proclaimed by Li were worthless since his orders were not obeyed.

The broadcast charged Li was "only qualified to dupe the people while Chiang Kai-shek pulls the strings behind the scenes."

Siam Declares Emergency, Closes Border

Bangkok, Siam, Feb. 17 (U.P.).—The cabinet declared a state of emergency throughout Siam today and closed the Malaya-Siam border because of Communist pressure in neighboring countries.

Premier Luang Phibun Songgram said he had received world from Paris intimating that Indo-Chinese rebel leader Ho-Chi-Minh had joined forces with Chinese Communist leader Mao Tze-tung.

The premier proposed the emergency action yesterday in a broadcast to the country, warning that Siam might be involved in civil war like China and Burma, which it borders.

The premier, wartime puppet dictator under the Japanese, led a military group in a bloodless coup on November 9, 1947.

Hopes Seen Improving in Austria Pact

London, Feb. 17 (NYHT.).—The prospects of the Big Four powers agreeing on a treaty of independence for Austria appeared to be improving today as a result of secret talks involving Yugoslavia's territorial and reparations claims.

The secret talks which Ales Bebler, Yugoslav Deputy Foreign Minister, has been having with the Foreign Ministers' deputies of the United States, Britain, France and Russia were understood to be raising cautious hopes the present Big Four deadlock may be broken.

Today's conference of the deputies failed again to show any signs of a possible compromise.

Bebler was understood to have hinted he might modify Yugoslavia's territorial demands. He is said to have emphasized the need for protection for the Slovene minority in the disputed territory of Carinthia and part of Syria.

As a result, Dr. Karl Gruber, Austrian Foreign Minister, flew from London to Vienna yesterday for urgent consultations with his cabinet.

The Austrian government last night virtually ended any hopes of compromise on Yugoslavia's territorial claims with a communique stating point blank that Austria "under no circumstances would ever agree to the creation of an autonomous Slovene zone in Carinthia."]

Mental Health Group

Dr. Robert H. Felix, chief of the mental hygiene division of the United States Public Health Service, will be the principal speaker at the second annual meeting at 8 p. m. Monday of the committee-at-large for the Prince Georges County Mental Health Clinic, it was announced yesterday. The meeting will be held at Hyattsville Elementary School.

Plan Seizure

Bulgarians Act to Oust Missions

Sofia, Bulgaria, Feb. 17 (A.P.).—A bill to close foreign religious missions and congregations in Bulgaria and transfer their property to the state was introduced in the National Assembly today.

The closure order would become effective "within one month after the law is in force," said the bill introduced for the Communist-led government by Foreign Minister Vassil Kolarov.

The government would pay for seized properties.

The bill said the Greek Orthodox Church is the "traditional religion of the Bulgarian people . . . and in form, meaning and spirit can be the only people's democratic church."

Clergymen and church officials the bill said, must be Bulgarian citizens, honest and trustworthy and not deprived of rights by criminal law.

Catholic Negotiations With Czechs Resumed

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Feb. 17 (U.P.).—Negotiations between the Catholic Church and the Czechoslovak Central Action Committee were resumed today, an official statement said this evening.

The negotiations were resumed on the basis of a memorandum drafted by the Czechoslovak Board of Bishops, the statement said. No details were given.

Britain Suspends 4 Scientists After Loyalty Investigations

London, Feb. 17 (A.P.).—The British government has suspended four scientists engaged in secret defense research because of doubts about their loyalty.

The Institution of Professional Civil Servants announced the suspensions today. It said three of the men were employed by the Ministry of Supply and one by the Admiralty. The names were not made public.

The Ministry of Supply has charge of atomic weapons, guided missiles and highspeed aircraft. None of the three scientists suspended at the Supply Ministry was engaged on atomic research, however, the institution said.

All the researchers were placed on "special leave with pay" and given 14 days to answer the charges.

They received letters saying the government had been advised that they are "believed to be members of the Communist Party, or of a Fascist organization, or associated with either in such a way as to raise legitimate doubts about their reliability."

The government for months has been purging employes in these categories from secret work related to defense.

Stanley Mayne, general secretary of the Professional Civil Servants group, said 18 of its members so far have been removed.

Aide Denied Right To See U. S. Writer

Moscow, Feb. 17 (U.P.).—United States Charge d'Affaires Foy D. Kohler has failed in an attempt to get from the Soviet government details of the charge of espionage against Anna Louise Strong, pro-Russian American author, it was made known today.

Likewise, Kohler failed in an attempt to get permission to see Miss Strong.

Miss Strong, well known for years as a pro-Russian author and newspaperwoman, was arrested Monday.

Kohler cited the Roosevelt-Litvinov agreement of 1933 to back his request to see Miss Strong.

This agreement, which established diplomatic relations between the United States and Soviet Russia, was negotiated by Maxim Litvinov in Washington. It provides, among other things, that American officials shall be allowed immediate access to any American citizen arrested or detained by Soviet authorities.

The foreign office reply to Kohler said:

1. Miss Strong was arrested for "conducting espionage and subversive activities aimed against the Soviet Union."

Favor Italy

U. S., Britain Reject Reds' Trieste Move

Lake Success, N. Y., Feb. 17 (U.P.).—The United States and Britain today renewed their demand for the return of Trieste to Italy, and Warren Austin declared that to make it a free port as prescribed by the Italian peace treaty would invite "indirect aggression"—presumably from Yugoslavia.

They rejected a sudden move by Russia in the United Nations Security Council to name a U. N. governor and keep Trieste under authority of the U. N.

Russia surprised the Council by announcing she was willing to accept one of Britain's nominees for the governorship of Trieste.

Malik demanded a vote on Col. Hermann Flueckiger of Switzerland as the governor. Flueckiger, former Swiss minister to Moscow, was proposed by Britain 18 months ago.

China's T. F. Tsiang, president of the Council, adjourned the session without a vote. A British spokesman said Russia's offer of the governorship "come two years too late."

Two to Testify For Axis Sally

leading to the conviction sometime ago of former newsman Douglas Chandler on treason charges stemming from Nazi broadcasts, Laughlin asserted:

1. That Chandler prepared his own material for broadcast whereas Miss Gillars' was written for her.

2. That Chandler had a written contract with the German government to broadcast and that unlike Miss Gillars, he sat in conferences of German commentators and helped set policy.

3. That no element of coercion was shown in the Chandler case.

Prosecutor Answers Laughlin

In a five-minute rebuttal, Prosecutor John M. Kelley, jr., said, citing Laughlin's plea that Miss Gillars' material was not written by herself:

"That's like saying if a United States citizen in Germany joined the German infantry and shot American soldiers, he would not be guilty of anything unless he made his own ball and shot."

Federal Judge Edward M. Curran turned down Laughlin's plea without comment.

The jurist also turned down another Laughlin motion to have the court bring three more defense witnesses from Germany. Judge Curran held, first, that Laughlin had not demonstrated the relevancy of the witnesses' purported testimony, and secondly that the court had no jurisdiction over non-Americans living in another country.

Four GI's Questioned

The days session concluded with questioning of four former GIs originally called by the Government but whose testimony Kelley had waived as "cumulative."

Laughlin gleaned little from his questioning of them as defense witnesses. One, in fact, testified that Miss Gillars had posed as a Red Cross worker when she sought to interview him in a PW camp at Chartres, France.

The trial will be resumed at 10:30 a. m. today.

Maryland Senate Recalls Labor Bill

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 17 (AP).—The Senate called back its new child labor law today to double check a ban on hiring minors for work in tap rooms.

"This might put some of our resort entertainment places out of business," Senator Dulin (D., Anne Arundel) said.

U. N. to Receive Truman's Plan Of Global Aid

Lake Success, Feb. 17 (AP).—The United States will be ready early next week to give the United Nations a broad general picture of President Truman's "bold new program" to aid backward areas.

This was disclosed today by an American delegation spokesman. He said Assistant Secretary of State Willard L. Thorp now is in Washington drafting a speech which will amplify the program for the Economic and Social Council.

Informed quarters said no concrete program has yet taken shape. But Thorp definitely will give the council a "preliminary" outline of what Mr. Truman had in mind.

Thorp will address the council Monday on the world economic situation and will deliver his speech on the President's program later in the week.

Beauty 'Out of Danger'

Paris, Feb. 17 (AP).—Betty Bjurstroem, Swedish beauty who was shot and seriously wounded last Friday night, is "out of danger," one of her doctors said today.

N. J. Standard Oil Quits Prospecting in Egypt

Cairo, Egypt, Feb. 17 (U.P.).—Reliable sources said today that the Standard Oil Co. of Egypt, a subsidiary of Standard Oil of New Jersey, had decided to stop prospecting for oil in Egypt temporarily.

It was understood company officials felt certain government regulations hampered operations.

[In New York a spokesman for Standard Oil Co. (N. J.) confirmed that all its field operations in Egypt had been halted temporarily because of uncertainties caused by new Egyptian regulations.]

Marshall Plan Nations Put Organization on Permanent Basis As One Step Towards Foundation of a Future European Union

Paris, Feb. 17 (AP).—Belgian Premier Paul-Henri Spaak announced tonight the Marshall Plan nations are putting their organization on a permanent basis, thus laying one of the foundations of a future European union.

He told a news conference that the 19 countries and regions in the Organization for European Economic Cooperation (OEEC) had agreed "the organization should continue to exist" after the end of the Marshall Plan in 1952.

Count Carlo Sforza, Italian Foreign Minister, said at a correspondents' luncheon earlier that the 19-member OEEC council had created the basis of an eventual European government.

The council decided this morning to establish a new brain trust—an executive commission of eight men. The new body, under Spaak's chairmanship, will include ministers of cabinet rank from Britain, France, Italy, The Netherlands, Sweden, Switzerland and Turkey. Its task will be to speed the revival of this continent.

The brain trust will replace a committee made up of men with lower rank who were not able to get through quickly to chief officials of their countries for immediate decisions on important matters.

The 19 representatives on the full OEEC council acted unanimously on a recommendation that the OEEC be given more authority in mapping a coordinated long range recovery program.

The OEEC is charged with seeing that the countries receiving United States aid do not just sit back and rake it in but share the aid fairly among themselves, cooperate in trade and reduce the need for assistance.

Spaak said he would convene the new brain trust tomorrow to begin work on the master plan. The eight-member commission will meet again early next month and as often as necessary thereafter, he said.

In its first year, Spaak said, United States aid has put Marshall Plan nations within reach of currency stabilization, the key to further recovery and European unity. Without such help, he added, "Europe would still be in chaos."

"The council decided that, in the light of present improvement, the 1949-50 fiscal year should be the year of monetary and budgetary stabilization, a decisive step in Europe's organization," he said.

Atlantic Pact Still Favored

shy of foreign commitments in the past, and may do so again. On the Democratic side Senator Claude Pepper of Florida has warned that regional pacts might endanger the future of the United Nations, while Senator J. William Fulbright of Arkansas has complained that Europe was not moving fast enough toward unity.

All these and other scattered viewpoints will have to be harmonized before the new treaty can get the kind of support which last year's committee, for example, gave to the European Recovery Program.

This morning the committee plans to meet in secret session with Chairman Pat McCarran (D., Nev.) and "Agent-General" Charles S. Dewey of the so-called watchdog committee on foreign-aid programs.

Coin Tossed in Register Hits Pistol, Wounds Man

Mayfield, Ky., Feb. 17 (U.P.).—Sam Hayden, 72-year-old merchant, opened his cash register drawer and tossed a nickel inside.

The coin hit the trigger of a pistol kept in the register. The gun went off and the bullet struck Hayden in the stomach.

Attendants at Mayfield Hospital described his condition as "good."

Funds Come Later

Senate Ends Hearings on Recovery Bill

By the United Press

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday wound up public hearings on a $5,580,000,000 bill to keep the European Recovery Program in high gear until June 30, 1950.

It is expected to approve the measure, which authorizes the huge outlay but doesn't put up the actual cash, at a closed meeting early next week.

Chairman Sol Bloom (D., N. Y.), meanwhile announced that his House Foreign Affairs Committee will complete work on a companion authorization next week, after hearing former Vice President Henry A. Wallace testify against it. Present Marshall Plan spending authority expires April 2.

Committee Fight Possible

While little organized opposition is expected to the authorization measure, a bitter fight may come when the Appropriations Committees take up a separate bill to provide funds for the "second installment" of the historic 4¼-year aid project launched last year.

Some influential Senate Republicans and Democrats, including Senators Walter F. George (D., Ga.) and Styles H. Bridges (R., N. H.), already have indicated they will try to trim the spending figure in the hope of avoiding a tax hike this year.

However, Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) and Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) of the Foreign Relations Committee, have indorsed the statement of Foreign Aid Chief Paul G. Hoffman that the spending total can not be cut.

"Safeguards" Opposed

At its final public hearing the Senate Committee heard testimony from representatives of the petroleum, flour and machine tool industries, who asked Congress to eliminate "safeguards" written into the aid bill last year to prevent too great a drain on scarce United States supplies.

The witnesses all took the line that last year's shortages have become this year's surpluses, and that European countries should be encouraged rather than restricted in buying United States goods.

Brewster Would Back U. N. Orders Through ECA

Senator Brewster (R., Me.) proposed yesterday to put teeth in U. N. Security Council orders by denying Marshall Plan aid to any nation which disobeys them.

He asked the Senate Foreign Relaitons Committee to make it an amendment to the Economic Cooperation Administration Act.

Brewster has been trying to get the Senate to cut out ECA aid to the Dutch because of their military action against the Indonesian republic. He has demanded that the Dutch obey a Security Council order to release captured Indonesiae leaders and that "bonafide negotiations" be opened by the Netherlands with the republic.

Army and AF Plan Further Recruit Ads

The Army and Air Force want to continue their recruiting advertising program through next year—on a reduced basis—though applicants now exceed vacancies.

An announcement said that national advertising agencies will be invited to bid on the fiscal 1950 Army-Air Force ad contract shortly. Military officials would not disclose the amount they propose to spend next year, but the Bureau of the Budget estimates it will total about three million dollars.

Currently, the two services are spending $5,798,000 for newspaper, magazine and radio advertising, the greater part through a contract with the Gardner Advertising Co.

Due to an excess of volunteers over openings, the Army now limits new recruits to 5000 a month and the Air Force to 4500 monthly.

An Army spokesman said that under the law, officials are required to make every effort to obtain men through voluntary means rather than employ the draft. And although there are plenty of applicants today, this situation may not continue, it was said.

The spokesman also declared that "General Motors doesn't stop advertising when it has no cars to sell," therefore the Army should keep up such institutional advertising. Furthermore, the services are carrying on recruiting campaigns for other groups than enlisted men—particularly aviation cadets, doctors and dentists and men for the organized reserve, he said.

The Navy and Marine Corps never have received appropriations for paid recruiting advertising. This year the Navy was given $490,000 for purchase of posters, mats, wire-recordings, etc. Navy ads in magazines, newspapers, etc. are paid for by sponsors.

Federal Welfare Dept. Favored by Group Workers

The National Capital Area Chapter, American Association of Group Workers, went on record yesterday in favor of a Federal Department of Welfare, headed by a Cabinet officer.

Wilbur J. Cohen, technical adviser to the Commissioner of Social Security, told the 60 members present at a meeting held at the YWCA that present social security and unemployment benefits should be liberalized and extended.

Milo F. Christiansen, superintendent of the District Recreation Department, said an office of recreation should be set up in the Federal Security Administration to provide services to voluntary and public recreation agencies.

Reds' Trial Drags Into Second Month

New York, Feb. 17 (AP).—The conspiracy trial of 11 high United States Communists entered its second month today with not a single juror yet chosen to hear the Government's case.

Nearly all of the 22 days of the trial so far have been filled with a defense attack on the system for choosing Federal jurors in New York.

If Judge Harold R. Medina should uphold the defense motion on this issue, the indictment against the Communist leaders would be thrown out on the ground the grand jurors who returned the indictment were not picked in an equitable manner.

There is no indication when the ruling will come. The defense apparently has much more testimony to offer.

Judge Trying to Speed Trial

Medina has repeatedly urged the defense lawyers to speed up their presentation.

The defendants are charged with conspiring to advocate overthrow of the United States Government.

Today's session was taken up with defense cross-examination of Joseph F. McKenzie, Federal jury clerk.

McKenzie has testified that, in selecting jurors, he never discriminated against anyone because of sex, color, creed, or political, social or economic status.

The cross-examination brought another of the sharp exchanges between Medina and Harry Sacher, a defense attorney, which have enlivened the trial.

Judge Is "Running Show"

After overruling a request by Sacher to pursue a certain line of questioning, the Judge declared it's time "to show you that I'm the boy that's running the show."

He said Sacher is "perfectly incorrigible" and added "you're going to learn your place here and this is a good time and occasion to do it."

Pointing out the witness had testified no voting lists were obtained from suburban Westchester County, Sacher got an admission that the affidavit was incorrect with respect to that county.

The defense contends that persons of high income have comprised the great majority of juries in this district. Persons with small incomes, laborers, Negroes and others have been largely excluded, the defense maintains.

The Gallup Poll

82% of Voters Favor Non-Red Affidavits for Union Leaders

By George Gallup

Director American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J. Feb. 17.—One labor union regulation which has stirred up persistent debate is the Taft-Hartley provision requiring union officers to sign affidavits that they are not Communists.

The idea back of this has wide appeal to voters questioned by interviewers for the institute in a national survey. Labor union members questioned in the sampling also indicated approval, although by a smaller majority.

Among union leaders, on the other hand, there has been wide opposition to the non-Communist affidavit requirement. Philip Murray, president of the CIO, although strongly anti-Communist himself, has refused to sign the oath and is carrying to the Supreme Court an attack on that provision of the act.

The Truman Administration labor bill offered as a substitute for the Taft-Hartley Act would abolish the non-Communist affidavit requirement.

The issue was put to voters in the institute survey as follows:

"The present labor law requires officers of labor unions to swear that they are not Communists before they can take a case before the National Labor Relations Board. Do you approve or disapprove of this?"

The vote:

Approve	82%
Disapprove	8
No opinion	10

Labor union members included in the sample voted as follows:

Approve	78%
Disapprove	12%
No opinion	10

Many union leaders oppose the affidavit on the grounds that it discriminated against unions because no similar oath is required from employers. It is reported that a modification to require employers as well as union officers to take the oath was recommended to President Truman by his advisers who worked on the new labor bill. But no such compromise appeared in the bill as made public January 29.

Hearings on the new labor bill are still in progress and formal debate in Congress is not scheduled to start until next week. Discussion of the affidavit question appears likely.

In today's survey some difference of opinion on the affidavit issue was found between voters who cast their ballots for Truman last November and those who voted for Dewey. Both groups, however, indicated approval as the following table shows:

	Truman Voters	Dewey Voters
Approve	82%	89%
Disapprove	9	6
No opinion	9	5

Navy Reveals Retirement of 3 Flag Officers

The Navy announced yesterday that three of its flag officers will retire soon.

Rear Admiral John F. Shafroth, jr., 62, chairman of the General Board of the Navy, will retire April 1; Rear Admiral Leland P. Lovette, 51, chief of the United States Naval Mission to Brazil, will leave June 30, and Rear Admiral Thomas P. Wynkoop, 52, former commander of the Naval Shipyard, Long Beach, Calif., will retire March 1.

Lovette will be succeeded by Rear Admiral Ernest B. Von Heimburg, commander of Amphibious Group II in the Atlantic. The Navy did not announce successors for the others.

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Feb. 17 (U.P.).—The trial of Gen. Karl Kutlvasr and 12 unidentified officers on charges of espionage and "terrorism" was postponed indefinitely today.

Churchill Tells How England Defied Hitler

New York, Feb. 17 (AP).—Winston Churchill reveals in his war memoirs he planned to use the slogan, "You can always take one with you," if German soldiers had landed on English soil.

Most of the third installment of the second volume of his memoirs in Life magazine is devoted to the British and German preparations for the invasion of England, which the Nazis planned for September, 1940.

The volume also is being serialized by the New York Times.

"I have often wondered what would have happened if 200,000 German storm troops had actually established themselves ashore," the war-time Prime Minister writes.

"The massacre would have been on both sides grim and great. There would have been neither mercy nor quarter. They would have used terror and we were prepared to go all lengths.

Calculated Effect on U. S.

"I intended to use the slogan, 'You can always take one with you.' I even calculated that the horrors of such a scene would in the last resort turn the scale in the United States."

But, he adds, Britons maintained their "buoyant and imperturable temper" and "were not even dismayed."

"They defied the conquerors of Europe. . . . This was a time when it was equally good to live or die."

Hitler's admirals and generals drew up detailed plans to land 13 divisions on the southeast coast of England in "Operation Sea Lion," the cross-channel invasion, Churchill writes.

But he emphasizes the differences between all the Nazi military services as to the size and scope of the invasion.

"It is impossible to resist the conclusion," Churchill says, that the German Army did not want to entrust its men to the German navy for the 22-mile channel crossing.

The former Prime Minister continues with this account:

The Nazi navy proposed to make a narrow corridor acros the channel, protect it with long-range guns firing from France, wall it off with mines, and defend it with hordes of submarines.

But the army demanded that more men and equipment be put ashore at once than could be transported through such a corridor.

Hitler Umpired Dispute

Hitler himself umpired the dispute between his military leaders, finally ordering a compromise plan. But in the crucial days of early September, with the two weeks of the best invasion weather at hand, the Fuehrer himself kept postponing the D-date until "Opration Sea Lion" was abandoned.

Churchill says his greatest fear in preparing invasion defenses was that the Germans would get tanks ashore which could not be stopped by the poorly-armed home guards who would be the only forces available at many points.

To meet this situation, he pressed energetically for development of a "sticky bomb" which would stick fast to a tank when dropped on it or placed against it.

"We had the picture in mind that devoted soldiers or civilians would run close up to the tank and even thrust the bomb upon it, though its explosion cost them their lives. There were undoubtedly many who would have done it."

Night In Woods

Dogs Stand Guard Over Lost Boy, 2

Sylacauga, Ala., Feb. 17 (U.P.).—Searchers found 2-year-old Rickey Dunn Tankersley sleepy but safe today after a night in the woods with his two dogs standing guard just as an old 'coon hunter had predicted.

More than 600 persons took part in the night-long search, before Rickey was found drowsing in the tall grass this morning. The two black and white mutts would not let anyone near the boy until Rickey's father arrived.

At dawn the searchers heard a dog yelping and then both mongrels dashed forward, barking and wagging their tails. The dogs then led the party to the sleeping boy.

State Dept. Accused Of ITO Pact Deceit

By The Associated Press

Senator Millikin (R., Colo.) yesterday accused the State Department of "not acting in good faith" with Congress on reciprocal trade agreements.

The ranking G. O. P. member of the Senate Finance Committee said the department has had an International Trade Organization pact in its possession since March, 1948, but has not yet sent it to Congress.

Now, he asserted, the department is trying to "rush" the Administration's reciprocal trade program through Congress although the two measures are inseparable.

He contended that the department is trying to "wriggle its way" into the International Trade Organization through the reciprocal program.

The ITO is an agency of the United Nations. The pact of which Millikin spoke would make this country a member. The reciprocal trade treaty law permits the President to make agreements with other countries for mutual trariff concessions.

Millikin made his statements in a rawhiding examination of Willard L. Thorp, Undersecretary of State for economic affairs.

Thorp appeared before the committee to urge speedy action on the Administration's proposal to extend the reciprocal trade program until June, 1951, without the amendments that the Republican-controlled Eightieth Congress attached last year to its one-year extension.

Thorp testified that the ITO proposal is now in the hands of President Truman and should be on Capitol Hill "within several weeks."

He denied the accusation of bad faith, and contended the two measures are not necessarily inseparable.

Millikin said one of the reasons that the Republicans last year extended the reciprocal trade program for only one year, instead of three as requested by President Truman, was because of its connection with the ITO.

Thorp said the department had thought about sending ITO to Congress last March, but then decided not to because of the heavy congressional calendar and the complicated nature of the agreement.

He called for quick action on repeal of the restrictions the Republican Eightieth Congress wrote into the reciprocal trade law, and extension of the act in original form.

Family 'Market Basket' Cost $45 More in 1948 Than 1947

The average family paid a record amount of $687 for its "market basket" of food in 1948, the Agriculture Department said yesterday.

This is 7 per cent, or $45, more than it paid in 1947, the previous record year.

The market basket contains quantities of farm food products equal to the 1935-39 average annual purchases per family of three consumers.

Marketing charges accounted for $328 of the $687 market basket. The farmer got the remaining $359.

The department said, however, that a decline in farm and food prices in the latter part of the year brought the cost of the market basket to the annual average of $663 in December.

Meanwhile, Census Bureau Director J. C. Capt reported that sales of independent retailers in January, on dollar volume, were 6 per cent below those of January, 1948. The customary seasonal drop between last December and January of this year averaged 33 per cent.

Apparel stores and drug stores recorded sales at approximately the same levels in January, 1949, as in January, 1948, the average in these two trades being a 1 per cent increase. Dry goods and general merchandise stores reported almost no change (—1 per cent); eating and drinking places, a small 2 per cent decrease; food stores, a decrease of 5 per cent; and general stores, a drop of 9 per cent.

Sales of jewelry stores were off slightly (3 per cent) in 1949 compared with January, 1948. Furniture stores reported sales 5 per cent less; motor-vehicle dealers and hardware stores noted 7 per cent decreases; and lumber and building materials dealers' sales were down 14 per cent.

Jobless Payments Total $40 Million a Week

By the United Press

The unemployment situation was hotly debated on the House floor yesterday as Federal officials estimated that Government payments to the jobless are running at 40 million dollars a week.

Representative James Buckley (D., Ill.), asserted that recent industrial layoffs are part of "a scheme to keep labor from getting fourth-round increases."

"There is nothing at all to be worried about," he said. "The future is bright. If we get away from fear we'll do something in this Congress."

But Representative Clarence J. Brown (R., Ohio) told the House it had better give some consideration to unemployment, "for it is a serious problem."

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States called on employers to resist union demands for fourth-round wage hikes which, it said, "might reverse the 'downward' trend in the cost of living."

In a pamphlet prepared by its committee on economic policy, the chamber said corporation profits averaged only 4.4 per cent of sales "during the 10 relatively prosperous years, 1938-47.". It added that recent declines in living costs argue against wage boosts.

The Federal Bureau of Employment Security said jobless compensation payments made by the States with Federal aid average $20 a week, compared with $19.05 in 1948. An estimated two million persons are now receiving the payments.

Thus the annual rate of outlay is running close to two billion dollars, compared to a total spending of 790 million dollars last year.

Government officials say, however, that the present unemployment is partly "seasonal" and will be relieved later in the year.

Stocks Almost Frozen On Argentine Market

Buenos Aires, Feb. 17 (U.P.).—Stock exchange prices were practically frozen today in an effort to stem a recent sustained decline.

Directors of the exchange and representatives of leading brokerage houses reportedly agreed to reduce dealings to a minimum and to hold prices to yesterday's levels.

At the close today, prices were largely unchanged and some leading industrial shares rose three to four points.

Today's action followed a new market sag yesterday.

grams. This, they contended, would hamper business expansion. They urged that action be postponed until the economic situation can be seen more clearly.

The President declined to be drawn into a long-distance debate with Senator Taft (R., Ohio) over a charge by Taft that the anti-inflation program was "a complete policy for a planned and controlled economy." He had no intention of getting into an argument with Taft or any other Senator, the President said, and added that they had a perfect right to argue among themselves but his own views already had been expressed.

Aside from his statements on the economic situation, Mr. Truman told his conference:

1. That there was not a word of truth in a statement of Senator Langer (R., N. Dak.) that the President had dropped all pretense of a bipartisan foreign policy.

2. That the Loyalty Review Board had acted properly after reviewing all the evidence in restoring William W. Remington to his job in the Commerce Department.

3. That reports that Dr. Ralph Bunche would be named Ambassador to Russia were new to him and that the return of Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith would be decided by General Smith himself.

questioned about the secrecy surrounding two Munich military trials.

The President said he knew nothing about the spy trials.

Generally speaking, however, he said the Constitution should follow the flag.

Mr. Truman added that trials should be conducted as we conduct them in this country. He said he was very anxious that American citizens——

At that point he was interrupted by a reporter who said "No American citizens are involved" at Munich.

Well, the President replied, that's a different matter. He said he was speaking of Americans.

He was asked then if he did not think American justice should be "full and open."

That's a matter for argument, Mr. Truman replied, if it comes to spies and emergency situations.

Transit Strike Gap Narrows; Taxis Back

Philadelphia, Feb. 17 (AP).—Striking taxicab drivers went back to work tonight and Philadelphia's 11,000 subway, trolley and bus workers got within 6 cents of a settlement in the city's week-old transit tie-up.

Four hours after the AFL Taxi Drivers Union successfully ordered its members to get their cabs rolling, an emergency strike conference in Mayor Bernard Samuel's office broke up with this announcement:

1. Philadelphia Transportation Co. offered its striking subway, trolley and bus employes a pay increase of 7 cents an hour. The company's previous best offer was 3 cents.

2. The CIO Transport Workers Union, representing the employes, promptly rejected the offer. It did, however, reduce its 17-cent demand to 13 cents. The union originally asked 25 cents. The scale now is $1.09 to $1.63 an hour.

A PTC statement said the 7-cent offer will cost it $2,100,000 a year and "any greater increase would mean bankruptcy for the company." President Charles Ebert insisted it is the company's "final offer."

Said International TWU President Michael J. Quill in rejecting the company's offer:

"There is no basis for settlement. I am sorry to have to announce the strike will go on."

However, Samuel said in a statement "the union officials agreed to convey the company's offer to its membership and they will report back to me tomorrow."

Mayor Samuel told the PTC and the union that the public must not be subjected to further hardships. PTC normally transports 3,200,000 pasengers daily.

In Washington, President Truman told his news conference the Government has no jurisdiction to intervene in the transit strike. He said it is a matter for the State of Pennsylvania.

The taxicab drivers went back to work after local president Carles Pirolli told them the Yellow Cab Co. refused to negotiate until the men returned to their jobs. Half the company's 2000 cabs were on the streets within a few hours.

The drivers quit Tuesday in a wildcat walkout in support of a demand for 50 per cent of gross receipts or $1.20 a nhour instead of 45 per cent.

Strike Idles Pittsburgh River Barges

Pittsburgh, Feb. 17 (AP).—Ten big boats of the Union Barge Lines, operating between Pittsburgh and New Orleans, wer idled tonight by a strike of CIO-National Maritime Union.

Ameida Perry, NMU port agent here, said the strike began last midnight after Union Barge, a subsidiary of Dravo Corp., rejected the union's demand for a $25 monthly pay raise. She said union security (preferential hiring) also is a main issue in dispute.

Members of the striking NMU, about 400 in number, include deckhands, cooks, maids and oilers.

Bill to Probe Reds Backed In Maryland

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 17 (AP).—The Senate Judiciary Committee flashed a green light on a legislative campaign against "Reds" today.

Chairman Della (D., Balto. 6th) turned in a favorable report on the Ober Commission bill to investigate Communist activities in Maryland, outlaw groups preaching forceful overthrow of the government and require loyalty checks of public employes.

The Senate tabled the report until tomorrow to allow Della and Attorney General Hall Hammond time to consider revising the only amendment proposed by the committee. This would allow employes discharged on suspicion of disloyalty to appeal to the courts.

After a sharp exchange of oratory, the Senate did pass a bill to enlarge the State Roads Commission from three to five members.

Senators also adopted committee reports which would freeze the number of seats in the House of Delegates at 123.

The Ober bill committee report calls for one amendment to guarantee the right to appeal and a jury trial to any public employe fired on charges he is a subversive.

Hammond said later he thought the wording should be more explicit. He is drafting another amendment, which Della said might be substituted for the original.

Anti-Red Oath by Management Urged by GE Vice President

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

A General Electric executive yesterday urged that both management and union officials be required to sign anti-Communist affidavits.

The suggestion was made by L. R. Boulware, GE vice president in charge of labor relations, before the Senate Labor Committee, which is considering labor legislation to replace the Taft-Hartley Act.

Boulware recommended that the Taft-Hartley Act provision calling for anti-Communist affidavits from union officers be extended to company officials as well, and that the provision be further sharpened by including minor as well as major management and union officials.

The suggestion that the loyalty oath be extended to company officials, indorsed by GE President Charles E. Wilson, has been urged by some labor leaders, especially Dave Dubinsky, head of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union. The GE executives said they spoke not only as private employes but also as a contractor for the Atomic Energy Commission.

The Administration's bill repealing the Taft-Hartley Act would restore the Wagner Act with improvements." The anti-Communist oath would be eliminated along with other provisions of the present national labor law. The affidavit declares that the union officer is not affiliated with the Communist Party or "any organization that believes in or teaches the overthrow of the United States Government by force or by illegal or unconstitutional methods."

GE President Wilson and Vice President Boulware argued that the affidavit provision of the Taft-Hartley Act was helping some unions in fighting Communist influence in its leadership. They insisted the provision is having a beneficial effect in the local of the United Electrical Workers (CIO), the biggest union dealing with General Electric and one generally regarded with often following the "party line".

The two GE spokesmen called for retention of the Taft-Hartley Act and strengthening of the President's emergency powers. Under close cross-examination, they asserted the law—adopted by the Eightieth Congress—was eminently fair and reasonable.

Wilson declared he was "alarmed" at the Administration labor bill "because of what seems to me to be its threat to our individual and collective freedoms through removal of safeguards now so wisely in force.

Witnesses were cleared through the committee hearing more quickly yesterday than in the past as the committee sought to wind up its public hearings by next Wednesday. Among those who testified yesterday were:

William T. Gossett, Ford Motor Co. vice president, who urged continuation of the Taft-Hartley law provision that gives management discretion as to whether it will bargain collectively with foremen.

George J. Tichy, representing the National Lumber Manufacturers Association, who charged that the only people who have fear of the Taft-Hartley Act are "the ruthless labor leaders who think more of their own personal gain" than of their union members.

C. L. Irving, another lumber association official, who pleaded for an independent Conciliation Service. The Administration's bill would return the Conciliation Service, now independent, to the Labor Department.

William T. Gossett, Ford Motor Co. vice president, who urged continuation of the Taft-Hartley law provision that bans foremen from collective bargaining.

Carl Brown, president of the Independent Foreman's Association of American, who asked that companies be required to bargain with the foremen as the do with any other employes.

Harry F. Morton, industrial relations counsel for the Kaiser-Frazer Motor Co., who said his company has enjoyed "agreeable and satisfactory" relations in bargaining with the foremen.

Air Force to Parade New Combat Craft

By Arthur Ellis
Post Photographer

The flight of the five combat airplanes over the Capitol at 1500 feet today will give amateur still and movie cameramen an unprecedented opportunity to picture Air Force power.

If the weather is good, camera fans will find it rather easy to make satisfactory negatives of the event. Fast shutter speeds, necessitating a wide lens opening, are necessary to "stop" the planes. Bright blue skies would call for a filter and Panchromatic film.

Operators with long lenses and the larger film sizes will be wise if they "shoot" the Capitol and include some foreground in the picture. Fans with smaller cameras will find it advisable to station themselves to include some landmark in the foreground and wait for the shot which will give them a large image of the plane.

hours, is designed to do better than 600 miles an hour with its six jet engines delivering the equivalent of 24,000 horsepower. This speedy bomber is 108 feet long, 28 feet high and has a wing span of 116 feet. Weighing 125,000 pounds fully loaded, it is designed for a service ceiling of more than 35,000 feet. Its combat radius is given as more than 800 miles and its bomb capacity at better than 10 tons.

The fourth bomber to be seen today is the B-45, small by comparison with its giant sisters, but big and very fast by World War II standards. The B-45 has a wing span of 89½ feet, is 74 feet long and 25 feet from ground to rudder tip. Powered by four jet engines, mounted in pairs on each side, it develops the equivalent of 16,000 horsepower, giving it a rated speed in excess of 500 miles an hour and a service ceiling of 40,000 feet.

Alone among the bombers will be a single fighter, the Air Force's F-86, which was the first combat airplane to fly at the speed of sound. Readily recognizable by its steeply swept-back wings and tail surfaces, the F-86 was designed to fly faster than 650 miles an hour. It is 37 feet wide and 37½ feet long and is flown from a pressurized cockpit which can be ejected in case the pilot must bail out. It is powered with a single jet engine developing the equivalent of 4000 horsepower.

When these dreambook airplanes turn out Sixteenth st. today, the B-36 and B-45 will return to tactical units which are training with them under service conditions. The B-36 will fly to Carswell Air Force Base at Fort Worth, Tex., and the B-45 to Eglin Air Force Base at Valparaiso, Fla.
turn t othe Air Force's experitur nto the Air Force's experimental base at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton, Ohio.

Airliner Version Of B-47 Studied

The six-jet Air Force bomber that crossed most of the continent last week at an average speed of 607 miles an hour will have an airline counterpart in the next few years, it was learned yesterday, if plans of the Boeing Airline Co. bear fruit.

Representatives of the record-breaking B-47's Seattle manufacturer disclosed here that their company's design engineers have made exhaustive studies of such a project. These, they said, show conclusively that a jet air liner, patterned after the B-47 and carrying thirty to forty passengers, can be built and operated more economically than the best piston-engined craft now plying the country's airlines.

It would, they added, have a cruising speed of 500 miles an hour or better, insuring one-stop crossings of the continent in a matter of six hours.

Policeman Faces Trial For Failure to Report

Pvt. George W. Sebastian of the Fourteenth Precinct will face a police trial board today on charges that he left his post and failed to report that he was off duty as required.

According to police officials, on the night of the Inaugural Ball at the National Guard Armory, Sebastian, who was on duty with a special detail there, left his post about 11 p. m. to warm himself and then went home without reporting to his superior officer.

Day to Be Sworn In

William E. Day, 312 S. Ivy st., Arlington, Va., will be sworn in as a commissioner of the United States Court of Claims at 10:30 a. m. today in the court. Day has resigned as Special Assistant to the Attorney General of the United States on the Antitrust Division.

I can't see paying 2 to 3 cents extra just for the "squeeze bag" when I buy margarine!

Nor I! Give me delicious "bowl-mix" Nucoa...It colors so evenly!

True! No trick-package cost tacked onto Nucoa . . . you pay only for quality . . .

(And you can "bowl-mix" two pounds together almost as quickly as one!)

Experienced housewives from Maine to California tell us:

The real way to save money and time is to let one trip to the store, one quick "bowl-mix," give you two pounds of delicious Nucoa ready to serve. This way you do the coloring job half as often, and it's nearly twice as quick as "squeeze mixing" one at a time!

Of course, what you—and we—hope, is that SOON you won't have to color margarine at all. Until then, we promise that not one penny of trick-package cost will be added to Nucoa. Your grocer will continue to have this top-quality margarine at modest price, ready for you to "bowl-mix" the shade of yellow you like and mold as you please for attractive servings.

Eat High—Spend Low with Nutritious NUCOA

"NUCOA" REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

TIME-SAVING NICETIES WITH "BOWL-MIX" NUCOA

Jelly-Nucoa: When you have Nucoa softened* for "bowl-mixing," take out a half cupful to cream together with a half cup of your favorite jelly. Keep this ready for making jiffy-quick school lunch sandwiches—or for a quick, wholesome answer to that familiar after-school greeting—"Mother-r—what can I have to eat?"

The secret of quick, even coloring is to have Nucoa soft—not soupy, but about the right consistency for quick sandwich spreading.*

Thrift Hint: Plan to "bowl-mix" Nucoa the same morning you make a cake. Then leave the amount needed for your cake right in the mixing bowl and add the other ingredients. Saves a bowl washing, and avoids losing any of this delicious Nucoa which gives your cake such wonderful flavor.

Yellow Nucoa also available in quarter-pound prints at many stores. Due to Federal taxes and license fees, yellow Nucoa costs more than white Nucoa, but regular or yellow, it's the same delicious product.

FBI Starts Probe Of Rowell Beating

but have not been suspended from the force. Suspension would very likely be automatic if substantial evidence implicating the policemen was uncovered, observers said.

No Arrests Announced

Moreover, apparently it appeared that no arrests have been made in the case and no warrants have been issued or even requested.

The normal police function is to arrest or try to arrest individuals if and when evidence indicates they committed a crime.

Therefore it appears that the police report was inconclusive. Some observers suggested it was rushed to United States Attorney Fay Wednesday although incomplete, following the exclusive disclosure in The Washington Post of an eyewitness account of the beating.

Fay is expected to wait until FBI agents complete their investigation of the case before deciding whether to present it to the grand jury.

Civil Rights Statute

The Civil Rights Statute under which the FBI has entered the case provides a maximum penalty of 10 years and $5000 where two or more persons who conspire to deprive any citizen of rights secured to him by the Constitution or laws of the United States. The statute reads, in part:

"If two or more persons conspire to injure, oppress, threaten or intimidate any citizen in the free exercise or enjoyment of any right or privilege secured to him by the Constitution or laws of the United States, or because of his having so exercised the same . . . they shall be fined not more than $5000 or imprisoned not more than 10 years or both."

Another Federal statute which might prove pertinent in the FBI investigation imposes a maximum penalty of $5000 and five years for obstruction of justice. This statute reads, in part:

"Whoever corrupts or by threats or force or by any threatening letter or communication, influences, obstructs or impedes or endeavors to influence, obstruct or impede the due administration of justice shall be fined not more than $5000 or imprisoned not more than five years or both."

As for District laws, the local maximum penalty for simple assault is $1000 and one year in jail.

Outline of Procedure

When the FBI completes its probe of the case under either the civil rights or obstruction of justice statutes, they will send copies of their report to both United States Attorney Fay and to the civil rights section of the Justice Department.

In all such cases, the United States attorney prosecutes the case, if there is any prosecution. At his request, the civil rights section assists.

Rowell has said he was on his way into the drug store to buy headache medicine when he paused to watch two men slapping a third man. Then he went into the store, got his powders, and when he emerged, he said, the two men who had been doing the slapping, accused him of having called Second Precinct police while in the drug store.

Then the two men battered Rowell, made him get into their car, drove around the block, then let him out.

Rowell's story to reporters made no mention of two uniformed policemen approaching during the assault. He said he thought the assailants were out-of-town men because their car was dusty and had clothes in the back. However, he could not explain to a reporter how "out-of-town" men would know Thomas Circle was in the Second Police Precinct.

Rowell, according to local police, has no police record and has never been under police suspicion. A former clothing salesman, he began driving a cab last May.

Purchasing Job Resigned By Nerlich

The resignation of Wilfred H. Nerlich as county purchasing agent for Montgomery County was announced yesterday by Acting County Manager I. G. McNayr.

Nerlich, onetime hopeful for the $12,000-a-year post of county manager, did not state a reason for resigning, McNayr said. It was known, however, that the two officials clashed frequently.

McNayr refused comment on what, if any, differences existed between them. Nerlich could not be reached for comment.

The resignation, effective last Tuesday, will be submitted to the County Council at its regular meeting Tupesday.

A former administrative assistant to the director of the District Welfare Board and at one time a supervisor in the auditing division of the U. S. Internal Revenue Bureau, Nerlich, who is 39, joined the county government as a purchasing agent in June, 1947. He earned $4500 in the post. McNayre said he would assume all purchasin functions, at least temporarily. Such a procedure, he pointed out, is provided for in the county's new charter.

Greeks Claim Victory

Athens, Greece, Feb. 17 (U.P.)—The Greek army general staff said today the Communist guerillas lost 772 killed and 1200 wounded in their disastrous defeat at Florina in the north. Government casualties were listed as 44 killed and 222 wounded.

Snow Ends Respite For Northern Plains

By The Associated Press

A cold, snowy storm cut short a brief taste of mild weather in the northern Plains Thursday.

The new storm drove into the blizzard-battered northern Plains area from northwestern Canada, bringing cold wave conditions, strong winds and light snow.

The Weather Bureau predicted 10 below zero near the Canadian border of Montana and North Dakota by Friday morning. And winds of 35-to-45-mile velocity boded new trouble for drift-fighting forces in the Dakotas and northeastern Wyoming.

Fifth Army headquarters reported Thursday that its road-clearing operation made good progress, with difficulty only in southern Wyoming, where winds continued to blow ground snow.

The mercury got up to 45 degrees at Cheyenne, Wyo., and 48 at Billings, Mont. Western Nebraska had some reports of 50 degrees.

But the colder weather and winds ended this respite.

In Washington, Thursday, the House Agriculture Committee approved unanimously a 44 million dollar loan fund for farmers hard hit by the severe winter.

Ranchers reported many surviving cows had to be destroyed because of frozen hooves and udders. Ranchers in the Pennington, S. Dak., area reported calves were being born dead.

The Department of Agriculture warned that the heavy snows may create devastating floods in the Mississippi, Columbia and Rio Grande River valleys this spring.

But there were bright spots. A Nebraska crop statistician said the snows were "just wonderful for pasture and range lands which badly needed" moisture.

In the northern Rockies area, mild weather brought widespread snowslides, which closed five major mines near Wallace, Idaho, and isolated for the third time the mining town of Burke, Idaho.

In the Cascade Mountains of eastern Washington, progress was made toward opening snow-blocked Snoqualmie and Stevens passes.

Rail traffic began to move through the range. The Milwaukee Road announced its tracks had been cleared. The Northern Pacific and the Great Northern Railroads said they, too, were virtually ready to use their Cascade passes again.

Heavy rains whipped by high winds put coastal streams over their banks in western Oregon.

The Northwest's critical power shortage was given major relief by a boost to full 75,000 kilowatt generating capacity at Bonneville Dam as the water flow increased.

New Light Theory Holds Sun, Moon Invisible From Space

New York, Feb. 17 (AP).—Under a new theory of light, the space ship starting for the moon won't be able to see it after leaving the earth's atmosphere.

Stranger still, the ship will no longer be able to see the sun. This theory says that visible light is not emitted by the sun. The sun's rays are something that turns into light in the atmosphere.

These rays are invisible even after being reflected from the moon, and remain so until they enter the air.

The author of the theory is Horace Winfield Webster, Detroit research physicist and astronomer.

The rays from the sun, he says, are gamma radiation, which is identical with X-rays, and equally invisible to the eye.

Gamma rays come only from the nuclei, or cores, of atoms.

Webster says this gamma ray is the only kind of light whose source is known with certainty, and he assumes that it is the source of visible light.

When gamma rays pass through the earth's atmosphere, these rays will be altered, becoming longer until they are the wave length that is visible to human eyes, Webster says. It is an accepted fact of science that the only difference between gamma rays and visible light is length of the waves.

The space ship navigator, under Webster's theory, could see the moon by using a fluoroscopic screen to change the gamma rays into visible light.

But if this theory is right, space ship travelers will have to be shielded with plenty of lead. Otherwise the gamma rays in space will kill them.

Hospital Sues 15 Former Patients In Alexandria

Alexandria Hospital filed suits in Alexandria Civil Court yesterday against 15 former patients who, the suits claim, owe hospital bills totaling $1711.80.

The action is in line with a recently announced policy of the hospital to take to court those who can, but don't, pay their bills.

Since papers in the suits had not been served on the defendants by court closing time yesterday, their names were not disclosed. But it was learned that amounts involved range from $20 to more than $700.

The "get-tough" policy toward bad bills is one of several steps taken to improve the hospital's financial standing since it announced last fall that it faced bankruptcy. The city has given the hospital a $20,000 emergency grant. A thorough investigation of the hospital's financial and administrative procedure is now under way in the search for a long-range solution to the problems.

Cat Walks 124 Miles

Le Quesnoy, France, Feb. 17 (U.P.). Mathilde, a small town cat which didn't like the big city, returned to her home today after a 124-mile walk from Paris. Mathilde was taken to Paris by her master last week.

Wife Retrieves Man Who Left Her for Dishes

New York, Feb. 17 (U.P.).—Mrs. Elsie Lanning, 38, finally tracked down today the husband who walked out on her Valentine's Day, 1947, and after a brief talk and a kiss in a police station, announced that he was going home.

Mrs. Lanning spent $7000 and sent out 230,000 circulars until she traced 42-year-old Harry Lanning to a restaurant dishwashing job.

Chattering like a schoolgirl, Mrs. Lanning said she loved her husband more than ever. Lanning, who managed to keep his emotions more under control, said he loved his wife, too.

He said he did not know why he walked off his job as supervisor in a Chicago factory two years ago, took the name of Harry Mandel and disappeared. He had not missed a day's work in 10 years when he left suddenly.

He was spotted last night by a man who had seen one of Mrs. Lanning's circulars. Police were notified, Lanning was held on a technical charge of forgery and his wife took the first plane here from Chicago.

Foundation Sure It Can Buy Woodlawn

Woodlawn Public Foundation, Inc., is certain of raising the $80,000 needed by Monday to take over the Fairfax Woodlawn estate for a national shrine, a foundation spokesman said yesterday.

So sure is the foundation of raising the down payment on the $170,000 purchase price that a ceremony has been planned at the estate at 3 p. m. Tuesday, Washington's birthday, to assume formal title, the spokesman said.

Attorney General Tom C. Clark will be principal speaker, he added.

First, however, the transfer must get the approval of the Fairfax Circuit Court at a hearing Monday morning. The court has held up the sale five months to give the foundation an opportunity to raise the money.

4 Picked Up As Suspects in Bank Holdup

Baltimore, Feb. 17 (AP).—Four unemployed men who had been spending money freely were picked up today for questioning about a $30,000 bank holdup here.

They were arrested in a house on the west edge of the business district.

Police said the four have not had jobs for some time, but have been spending large amounts of money.

At the rooming house where the four were arrested police said they found a brown shopping bag and a white-cloth money bag bearing bank letters.

A shopping bag was used to carry off the loot from the branch bank.

Police said the suspects are 19 to 25 years old.

The three armed men who held up the bank Tuesday escaped in a rented car, which later was found not far from the bank.

Police last night engaged in a 90-mile-an-hour auto chase through two counties, but it led up a blind alley. They thought the automobile might be carrying the bandit trio, but the car was found to belong to a junk dealer whose license had been suspended.

Meanwhile, police were checking other rooming houses and apartments in the area in an effort to pick up the trail of the trio.

GW Hospital Fund Drive Ends With $15,500 Gift

A gift of $15,500 from the Women's Board of George Washington University Hospital yesterday culminated a two-year campaign to raise $925,000 for purchase of equipment for the new hospital at Washington Circle.

Mrs. Cloyd H. Marvin, president, and Mrs. Burton W. Richwine, assistant treasurer of the board, presented the check to Robert V. Fleming, chairman of the George Washington University Board of Trustees and honorary chairman of the Hospital Equipment Fund Campaign.

The presentation was made during a meeting.

The check, which raised the fund to $927,559, also brought the total number of contributions to the fund to 3948 since its inception January 8, 1947.

Truman Names 6 As Postmasters

Maryland—H. Lester Long, jr., Ellicott City.

Virginia—George E. Mettauer, Annandale; Carroll E. Burgess, Blairs; Lewis K. Gathright, Goochland; Grace F. Hiehle, Mt. Vernon, and Delia M. Lawson, White Stone.

Maryland Gets Gift Of 275-Acre Farm

A 275-acre farm was given to the State of Maryland yesterday for the promotion of conservation practices.

Donor of the farm, at Cloppers, Md., on the Seneca River, is Miss Emma T. Strider, 70, of 1450 Rhode Island ave. nw., daughter of the late Luke C. Strider, a Municipal Court judge.

At ceremonies in the Rockville Courthouse, Miss Strider said:

"I believe we should all do what we can to advance conservation teachings and keep this country from becoming poor through physical deterioration of the land."

Officials headed by Garner Denmead, chairman of the Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission, formally accepted the gift.

Malcolm King, wildlife field superintendent for the commission, said 35 acres of the tract would be set aside for the Rockville chapter, Izaak Walton League.

The remaining 240 acres, he declared, will be converted into a "model farm" displaying all conservation techniques with the emphasis on wildlife conservation.

Commissioner

E. J. McGrath Is Education Post Choice

EARL J. McGRATH
Nominated by President

President Truman nominated a University of Chicago professor, Earl James McGrath, 46, to be United States Commissioner of Education yesterday.

Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing, to whom the commissioner is responsible, expressed pleasure at the nomination.

Officials of the National Education Association commented that McGrath is "highly respected in the education world."

McGrath was named to succeed John W. Studebaker, who resigned last summer.

Studebaker, now chairman of the editorial board of Scholastic Magazines, Inc., New York City, accused Ewing and his associates of watering-down education office attacks on communism and hindering the agency's "zeal for democracy" school program.

Ewing countered that his staff sought to take "positive and active" rather than passive, negative measures in furthering democracy through the schools.

Ewing said Studebaker had not been a satisfactory commissioner. Rall I. Grigsby, assistant commissioner, has been acting commissioner since Studebaker left.

McGrath would take office at a time when educators are divided over the future of the office of education.

Some approve President Truman's proposal to make the office part of a new department of public welfare.

Some of the largest education organizations, however, strongly oppose making the office part of a new department and want it to become a separate agency independent of politics.

McGrath, a former dean of liberal arts at Iowa State University, directed the Bureau of Naval Personnel educational services during the war. In 1946 he served on a State Department commission surveying German education in the American-occupied zone of Germany.

He is married. At the University of Chicago he taught education courses.

Hope Withdraws Bid For Station WHAS

Leonard Marks, attorney for radio comedian Bob Hope, said yesterday Hope is withdrawing his bid for the radio and television station WHAS Inc., Louisville, Ky.

The action follows a refusal of the Communications Commission to postpone for 60 days a hearing now scheduled for February 28 on a proposed sale of the WHAS properties.

Marks had said Hope felt he would not have time to prepare for a hearing this month.

The Louisville stations are owned by the Courier-Journal and Louisville Times which has contracted to sell them to Crosley Broadcasting Co., Cincinnati, for $1,925,000.

Bill for Expansion of Rockville Being Readied for Lawmakers

By Phillip J. Austensen
Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 17 (AP).—Expansion of the town of Rockville, Md., is provided in a bill now being prepared for submission by the Montgomery County delegation in the General Assembly here.

Mayor G. Lamar Kelly and Town Manager John G. McDonald today brought material for the bill to the office of Horace E. Flack, director of the department of legislative reference, for preparation of the formal bill, expected to be introduced next week.

Rockville would take in the Lincoln Park and Haiti subdivisions on the west and the Twinbrook subdivision on the east to increase its present 6000 population to about 8000 under the proposal, Mayor Kelly said. The town would gain approximately 500 new homes.

Older sections of the town will continue to pay for their own improvements, including water and sewer service. The town will take over the $60,000 modern water and sewer system of Twinbrook and add it to the town system.

Rockville now has a six-million-dollar assessed base and only an indebtedness of $155,000. Its tax rate is 90 cents, of which 30 cents goes to pay off indebtedness, Mayor Kelly said.

A bill sponsored by Delegate William H. McGrath (D., Prince Georges) to make a penitentiary sentence grounds for divorce moved a step further toward enactment today. A favorable report by the judiciary committee was approved 15 to 11 by the Senate. The bill was ordered to third and final reading. Final action is expected soon.

A bill "directing" the county commissioners of St. Marys County to sell a $550,000 bond issue for school improvements also is ready for third reading. The county commissioners presently are "permitted to issue the bonds.

A "rural revolt" against a bill which would permit the State Roads Commission to exercise zoning control over 200 feet on each side of major State roads broke out in the House chamber today.

More than 400 rural residents attended the House Judiciary Committee hearing. The farmers' spokesmen declared the law to be an invasion of their constitutional rights to do as they please on their own land. Speaker C. Ferdinand Sybert (D., Howard) spoke in favor of the bill. "Something must be done to protect the 22 million dollars in roads that are planned from hot-dog stands and dangerous billboards," he said.

Delegate Joseph A. Mattingly (D., St. Marys) introduced a bill in the House today seeking to give Veterans income tax exemption of $2000 for single persons and $3500 for heads of families.

Miss Margaret Truman will sponsor a new double-deck stratocruiser type plane at christening ceremonies here March 5, Pan American Airways announced yesterday. The craft will be the largest land plane in commercial service.

Attorney to Run For Fairfax Seat In Legislature

W. Lewis Leigh, 41, attorney, yesterday filed as a candidate for nomination for the Fairfax County seat in the Virginia House of Delegates in the August Democratic primary.

Leigh, who lives in Oakton, Va., said a month ago that he would be a candidate after Delegate Robert J. McCandlish, jr., announced he would not seek reelection.

Edwin Lynch, Annandale businessman who has served one term as a delegate and lost another in the 1947 primary by one one vote, has also stated he will enter the Democratic primary. He has not filed thus far, however.

Truman Sees Strong, Economically Stable U. S. As Best Guarantee for Freedom of the World

President Truman last night pointed to a "strong and economically stable United States" as the best guarantee for freedom throughout the world.

In a message delivered to the fiftieth anniversary banquet of the Veterans of Foreign Wars by his aide, Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan, the President said: "The economy of this Nation must be maintained at its highest possible level in order to insure the stability of purpose, understanding and mutual cooperation that we, as a Nation, inaugurated and subscribed to in the United Nations charter."

The President alluded to the "Americanism program" of the VFW, saying "it stresses the work of being ever alert to the sinister influence that would deprive America of world leadership by sowing discontent in our midst."

He congratulated the VFW on its efforts in behalf of veterans' housing and the GI Bill of Rights.

He went on to say that "We will strengthen our form of Government—economically, politically and militarily"—by standing united and working cooperatively together.

Thereby, he said, we will "bring hope and encouragement to the peoples of other nations who are struggling to overcome the ravages and aftermath of war."

Principal speaker on last night's program at the Mayflower Hotel was Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Chief of Staff of the Army.

In the presence of Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenburg, Chief of Staff of the Air Force, and Admiral Louis E. Denfield, Chief of Naval Operations, he told more than 200 members of Congress and others present that differences between the three services "are not as serious as has been made out."

He promised national officers and State commanders of the VFW that members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff "expect to come up with decisions and results" in their current operations, and "we hope they will be the right ones."

The Legislative Committee of the VFW conference, recommended earlier in the day that combination FHA-VA home loans to veterans be eliminated.

As for an increase from 4 to 4½ per cent interest on GI home loans, the committee said "we will accept this rate increase with reluctance."

Its resolution said the VFW would support "in principle" bills establishing an effective government-sponsored secondary market for purchase of GI home loan paper. It excepted bills authorizing increases in home loans from 4 to 4½ per cent.

Head Librarian Urged For Arlington Schools

The Arlington School Board has received for study a recommendation that it appoint a full-time supervisor next year for school libraries in the county.

The suggestion came from a 15-member exploratory committee on school libraries, appointed several weeks ago to study school library needs.

The group proposed that the county adopt a book-buying budget of $15,000 with an additional $5000 for rebinding and repairing worn books.

Paternity Suit

Singer Asserts Met Star Said Baby Was His

MARY PHILLIPS

New York, Feb. 17 (AP).—Mary Phillips, 28-year-old singer, testified today that Ferruccio Tagliavini, Metropolitan Opera star, admitted to her he was the father of her small daughter and told her regarding the child:

"'This is mine. Don't worry. I have a big heart. I'll take care of everything. My wife can't have any children and I'm glad that I have this baby.'"

Miss Phillips, a divorcee, testified at the first day of her paternity suit against the plump opera tenor, who has denied her charge.

She charges Tagliavini, 35, husband of soprano Pia Tassinari, is the father of her daughter born October 5, 1947.

The court was cleared of spectators after James F. Murray, jr., Tagliavini's lawyer, said certain evidence "might be scandalous."

Miss Phillips testified she first met Tagliavini late in 1946 backstage at the Philadelphia Opera House. One afternoon in January, 1947, he visited her at her New York apartment and "he sang and we talked—we had a very pleasant afternoon."

He returned the following day, and "that's when it happened—I was very much in love with him."

Fight Over Coat Hook Fatal to District Man

Yancey Brinkley, 47, an elevator operator, listed by police as living at 5219 G st. ne., died at 4:30 a. m. yesterday at Gallinger Hospital. He was admitted to the hospital February 11 following a fight at 1523 22nd st. nw.

After his death, police arrested George Washington Lynch, 19, a waiter, of 1841 9th st. nw., and held him for action of the coroner. Police said Brinkley and Lynch got into a fight with fists and knives after arguing over possession of a coat hook.

WAA Extended Through June 30

The War Assets Administration, scheduled to go out of business at the end of this month, won a four-month reprieve from Congress yesterday.

The Senate completed Congressional action on a bill to extend the life of the surplus property disposal agency through June 30, or until Congress enacts permanent legislation for Federal property management.

The bill now goes to the White House.

The WAA still has more than two billion dollars of leftover war property, mostly real estate, which it has not been able to dispose of.

A Municipal Court hearing for three women, arrested Wednesday on vagrancy charges in a vice raid at 1128 10th st. nw., was continued yesterday to February 28.

The three were Mary Riddle, 45; Evelyn E. Wright, 27, and Mildred Williams, 34, residents and occupants of the house at the time of the raid. Mary Riddle was also charged with operating a disorderly house. This case was continued to March 2.

Takoma Park Would Replace County Police With Own Men

The Takoma Park (Md.) City Council last night asked that it be allowed to furnish its own police force and that the present patrolmen assigned to the area by Montgomery County be replaced by a "reasonable sum of money."

The council suggested to the Montgomery County Council that 12 cents of the present 17 cents per $100 assessed evaluation now paid in taxes to the county for police protection be returned.

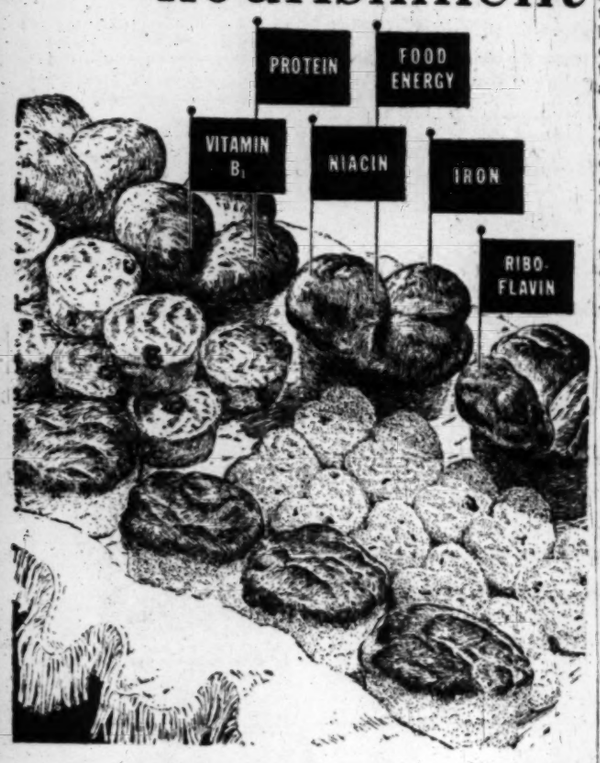
The suggestion would allow the city to enlarge its own police force and would eliminate the present "divided authority" caused by county and city police operating from the same substation, Mayor John C. Post said.

County Councilman J. Douglas Bradshaw told the officials he was sure the local public law which provides for a county police substation in Takoma Park could be amended or repealed during the council's legislative session in May.

At a dinner meeting, the city council also asked the county officials for aid in enforcing zoning laws to prevent one-family dwellings from becoming "typical tenements," and for permission to use the county purchasing office in buying city supplies.

What nutritionists say about

6-way nourishment



Nutrition authorities give a prominent place in the all-round balanced diet to enriched baked foods. These scientists, whose jobs it is to show us how to keep well, say over and over that enriched flour is a most economical source of food energy. They call enriched flour "an important carrier of nutrients" . . . they say, "it contributes to better nutrition." See those flags up there? Read what these contributions really are . . . 6-way nourishment for you and your family at meal time and between time! Serve plenty of enriched baked foods every day. Jerusalem Peace Sought by Israel

Jerusalem, Feb. 17 (NYHT).—Foreign Minister Moshe Shertok indicated today that the Israeli government would not annex Jerusalem while the possibility remained of achieving solution of the Holy City's status without conflict.

Shertok said Israel hoped to secure for the city its "proper place" in the state, but still was not blind to Jerusalem's historic importance to the world.

"As long as it is not absolutely clear that an agreed solution is impossible, it is not our concern or to our advantage to endanger at the very outset the prospects of attaining such agreement by unnecessary shortcuts," he declared.

Shertok said Israel wants Jewish Jerusalem included in the state of Israel, and the Old City, including all holy places, both within its walls and outside them, under an international regime.

Exemptions In Hatch Act To Be Asked

Plans to seek Hatch Act exemptions for Federal employes living in Fairfax County so they may serve on the county's board of supervisors and hold other county offices were revealed last night at a meeting of the Fairfax County Federation of Citizens Associations.

Harold J. Ward, a committee chairman, said he hoped to obtain a hearing before the Civil Service Commission on the subject in April.

The 28 citizens' associations affiliated with the federation have been asked to survey their communities to determine the number of Federal employes in proportion to total population and to acquire other information to be presented to the Civil Service Commission.

FHA Can't Assist Big Arlington Hotel Project

A proposed $20,000,000 apartment-hotel in Arlington would not be eligible for Federal Housing Administration financial aid if built according to plans laid before the Arlington County Board last week, it was indicated yesterday.

Although the formal application has not yet been received by FHA, a spokesman for the Federal agency said it would not be authorized to give the project financial backing if it actually entailed construction of a hotel. He added that any plan to include transient quarters in the development would preclude FHA aid.

Attorneys for the O'Driscoll Construction Co. of New York, sponsoring the project, used the term "apartment-hotel" in describing the plans before the Arlington board last Saturday. They also said part of the three-building development would provide transient facilities.

Hebrews to Mark 35th Anniversary Of Sabbath Rite

United Synagogue Sabbath, marking the thirty-fifth anniversary of the national organization of Conservative Synagogues, will be observed today.

The Northeast Hebrew Congregation, which meets in Sherwood Presbyterian Church, 3202 22d st. ne., will observe the day at services at 8:30 p. m. Joseph Mendelson, a member of Adas Israel Congregation, will speak on the work of the United Synagogues of America.

A forum discussion of Conservative Judaism will be held at 8:30 p. m. at the Arlington Jewish Center, 2920 Lee blvd., Arlington. The evening will be dedicated to the late Harry H. Goldstein, former president of the center and board member of the United Synagogue of America.

County Asks More Belvoir School Fees

Fairfax County School Board last night voted to ask the Federal Government to pay public education costs for all children living at Fort Belvoir.

Superintendent W. T. Woodson said the Government now pays only for children of military and civil service personnel.

There are 78 children in county schools whose parents live at Fort Belvoir, he said, but do not fall in either of these catagories. Since none of the persons living at the fort pays county taxes, the remainder of the county is now paying for their education, he said.

Woodson replied to critism of long bus rides necessary for Negro students travelling to a regional high school at Manassas. He said the longest ride is 37 miles each way.

A group of citizens urging the building of a Negro high school in the county had stated that the longest round trip bus route was almost 100 miles.

Sheriffs Accused Of Hitting Negroes Acquitted by Jury

Mobile, Ala., Feb. 17 (U.P.).—A Federal jury deliberated only 30 minutes today before acquitting Clarke County Sheriff Jenkins A. Hill and Deputy Willie Ray Harrell on charges of civil rights violation.

The two testified that screams and sounds of "whacks" in the jail came from a prisoners' kangaroo court which they had tried unsuccessfully to break up.

Nine Negroes had testified yesterday that Harrell and Hill beat them with pistols, blackjacks and sticks.

Symphony Fund Drive at 35 Pct.

Thirty-five per cent of the National Symphony Orchestra's 19th Annual Sustaining Fund Campaign has been collected to date, it was announced yesterday at the second annual report luncheon.

Goal in the drive which is scheduled to end on February 25 is $290,000. As of yesterday, at a luncheon at the Colony Club the chairmen of the fund-raising committees reported that a total of 2203 contributors had subscribed $66,671 to the fund.

Prince Georges Requires Signs for Rezoning

Property in Prince Georges County for which rezoning is sought must be designated by large signs indicating the desired change and date of public hearing, the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission announced yesterday.

The signs, which are about 2 by 3 feet in size, must be posted for 30 days prior to public hearing, according to Fred W. Tuemmler, director of planning. They are available at the park and planning commission office, 5406 Queens Chapel rd., West Hyattsville.

Commissioners Name Flaherty Police Captain

District Commissioners yesterday promoted Police Lieut. Jeremiah F. Flaherty, head of the Homicide Squad, to captain at an annual salary of $6242. The promotion is restricted to the period during which he is assigned to his present position.

The city heads also boosted Sergt. Forrest L. Binswanger, director of Metropolitan Police Boys Clubs, to lieutenant at an annual salary of $4278. This promotion is also restricted to the present position held by Binswanger.

Try it! Lighter, Richer, Moister because SNOWDRIFT is Emulsorized!

Want to hear your family rave about your wonderful cakes? Then try the new quick-method recipes! You'll get cakes that are lighter, richer, moister than ever before, but only if you use an emulsorized shortening. Snowdrift is emulsorized! That means it has a special blending aid. Emulsorized Snowdrift blends—quickly and completely—all the sugar and liquid in the new modern cakes. They're wonderful cakes—and you'll get wonderful compliments, too.

Snowdrift gives you the blending aid these modern cake recipes require!

MOCHA GOLD CAKE

Sift together in a large bowl:
2 cups sifted cake flour
3 teaspoons double action baking powder (4 tsps. single action)
½ teaspoon salt

Add:
½ cup Snowdrift (Emulsorized—quick-blending)
⅔ cup milk

Mix until flour is dampened. Beat 2 minutes. (If you beat by hand, count beating time only. With electric mixer, use "low speed"; scrape bowl frequently. Scrape beaters at end of 2 minutes.)

Add:
4 egg yolks
⅓ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Beat 1 minute for Snowdrift-smooth batter. Turn into 2 greased 8-inch layer pans lined with paper. Bake in moderate oven (375° F.) about 25 minutes. Cool and frost with—

MOCHA FROSTING: Combine 4 cups sifted confectioners' sugar (firmly packed) with ½ cup Snowdrift; add 1 square unsweetened chocolate melted, about ⅓ cup strong coffee (made by boiling together ⅓ cup medium ground coffee and 1 cup water. Remove from heat; let stand 2 min. Strain. Cool slightly. Use as needed to make a creamy-smooth mixture.) Add ¼ tsp. salt and 1 tsp. vanilla. Spread on cooled cake. Decorate with almonds dipped in melted chocolate.

Grand for flaky pie crust and crisp fried foods, too.

$5,412,000 Asked For White House

President Truman yesterday asked Congress for $5,412,000 to tear down the White House to the outer walls, and rebuild it as a safe, fireproof, modern structure.

At the same time the Public Buildings Administration released a report which said the amount requested would not cover much overtime pay or other unexpected contingencies. Most of the work, the PBA said, would be done by hand by highly skilled workmen.

Conceding that it probably would be cheaper to tear down the mansion and put up a new one, Mr. Truman told Congress that, of course, would destroy "a building of tremendous historical significance in the growth of the nation."

"I am in favor of preserving our outstanding historical structures," he stated in a message to Vice President Alben W. Barkley. He estimated the rebuilding job would take a minimum of 15 to 18 months.

Floor Gives Under Piano

The central part of the famous home of United States Presidents was closed last November 8 after surveys found it a "firetrap" and ready to collapse. In one instance the leg of a piano fell through a rotten floor.

The Truman family has been living across the street at Blair House, although Mr. Truman is still using his presidential offices in the west wing.

Urging Congress to act swiftly on his money request, Mr. Truman said the weaknesses found "raised grave questions concerning the safety" not only of the President and his family but of sightseers and guests visiting the White House.

He promised that the work proposed will not alter the "architectural or cultural features" of the building, and said:

"The historic and traditional symbolism of this national shrine will be preserved to the greatest degree consistent with the modern materials and equipment that necessarily must be incorporated in this project."

Deterioration "Appalling"

The Public Buildings Administration surveyed what needs to be done and released its findings yesterday.

"Structurally the building has deteriorated to an appalling degree," said W. E. Reynolds, commissioner of public buildings. He called plumbing "insanitary" and the heating, mechanical and electrical systems "obsolete and inadequate."

He said the $5,400,000 will be used to remove all the interior walls, which now rest on soft clay, and replace them with stronger walls resting on a structural steel frame supported on concrete piers. The piers will be pushed down into the earth.

An entirely new basement will be built, and the second floor will be replaced. The family quarters for the President are on the second floor, which was found to be most in danger of falling down.

New elevator services will be provided, and the mansion also will have a new communication system, as well as complete air conditioning.

12 Pct. Rent Boost Recommended For Apartments

District Rent Examiner William F. Mansfield yesterday recommended a 12.02 per cent increase o the rents of 73 apartments located at 1615 and 1625 Franklin s. ne. operated by Paul Seiderman.

Present rents are from $37.50 a month for two rooms and bath to $64.50 for three rooms and bath. Proposed rents range from $42 a month to $72. The owner had requested a 14.03 per cent rent boost.

Robert T. Smith represented the petitioner and James A. Crooks was attorney for several tenants who opposed the increases.

$2310 Income Kept In Housing Rules

District Commissioners have forwarded a letter to Congress continuing the annual income of $2310 as the top limit for families eligible for low-rent housing developed under the District Redevelopment Act of 1946.

A hearing was held by the city heads January 10 on the matter as required in the act. The Commissioners, who were also directed to discuss administrative difficulties in the execution of the act, noted that since no funds have been appropriated as yet for such operations, no difficulties have been encountered.

Facing Reality

Members of the Joint District Fiscal Affairs Subcommittees are reported to have made up their minds to approve a sales tax for Washington. This is encouraging evidence of a willingness to look at the facts. There simply is no alternative to a sales tax if Washington is to be rescued from its perennial financial slough. Even the 10 million dollars which the Commissioners hope to raise from the 2 per cent sales levy will not make up all the deficit in a budget pared to provide only the minimum essential services.

Some of the usual objections to a sales tax are mitigated by the exemption of such items as medicines and food for home consumption. An incidental feature of the projected tax is that it will spread government expenses over the community. This has never yet been done. Congress has consistently refused to make the District income tax applicable to all bona fide residents regardless of their technical domicile. The sales tax will compensate to some degree for this inequity by bringing in some of the persons who have evaded the income tax.

Increasing costs of government, plus the retroactive pay raise which District employes should have had long since, make it imperative that other sources of revenue also be tapped. The Commissioners have proposed such measures as doubled liquor taxes, increased license fees and a boost in the Federal payment because of the large amount of tax-exempt property here. These measures are no less necessary than the sales tax.

The Commissioners also are pushing for a broadening of the income tax base to include all persons resident in Washington seven or more months during the year, with a concurrent lifting of exemptions from $3000 to $8000. This, of course, is no substitute for a real income tax, and the only excuse for it is to make the broader base palatable to Congress. Instead of lambasting the call for a sales tax as a sign of "fiscal mismanagement," critics might well concentrate their efforts on ending the favoritism in the income tax. For efficient fiscal management of a city the size and composition of Washington demands adequate sources of revenue. As long as Congress retains the power of determining how District money is to be raised, it is a congressional responsibility to see that these sources are sufficient.

Executive Pay

About the only thing the Eighty-first Congress has accomplished thus far has been to raise the salary of the President, the Vice President, and the Speaker of the House. And this was accomplished by cutting the head and shoulders off a bill to give 223 important executives of the Government salaries somewhere near their value to a Nation with global responsibilities. It was an unnecessary truncation. Heads of important Government departments have long been getting less pay than scores of their subordinates and this has led to the loss of the services of many excellent public servants. To rectify such a ridiculous situation was to be one of the first objectives of the Eighty-first Congress. The President started his term by calling in the Administration leaders and telling them he wanted action on the pay raise bills. But all that has happened has been desultory hearings at which the same ground that was covered exhaustively last year has been retraced.

For the legislation was gone over with some thoroughness during the Eightieth Congress. At that time Republican leaders were all for it. So were labor union and industrial leaders. It was supported by Mr. Hoover, the Director of the Budget, and a host of other authorities. There was not a single important witness against the bill. But Senator Taft allowed the measure to be delayed until the last day of the session, and it was lost in the shuffle. Republican leaders expressed chagrin between sessions and vowed a pay raise would be voted as the first measure of the contemplated Dewey Administration. However, the Democrats instead of the Republicans came to power, whereupon Republican members of the House subcommittee started to protest against salary increases for "bureaucrats," and thrust the issue into the mire of partisan politics. It looks as if the Republicans want to pin the responsibility for failure on President Truman's doorstep and point accusing fingers at the Democratic leadership in Congress.

It is time the President made another effort to shake Congress out of its lethargy and obstructionism. The Administration has the power and the votes to hurry the pay-raise legislation—which would deal out justice to District of Columbia employes and foreign service employes and make reclassification adjustments—to the floor and to pass it. Let him insist upon real action by the Administration leaders on the Hill.

Economic Preparedness

The Administration bill calling for certain stand-by price and wage controls and asking for authority to use Government funds to expand industrial capacity under certain specified conditions is generally referred to as an anti-inflation bill. This is a misleading label. It gives opponents of the bill an argument that inflation has run its course and protective measures are no longer required. This puts the onus on supporters of the bill to insist that inflationary forces still are menacing and may have to be controlled by Government action. This kind of debate based on conjectures as to the future course of prices seems to us to be rather fruitless expenditure of energy.

The Administration is asking for authority to impose price ceilings on vitally important commodities if their prices rise or threaten to rise above December, 1948, levels to such an extent as to affect significantly the cost of living, the costs of industrial and agricultural production, or of construction or the costs of national defense or foreign aid. The request for authority to impose mandatory priorities and allocations in case voluntary regulatory plans fail is also conditional on the existence of scarcities or maldistribution that adversely affect the domestic economy, the cost of living, the national security or impede the carrying out of the Government's foreign policy. Moreover, the bill does not call for Government-financed expansion of the steel industry or any other industry unless it has previously been determined that shortages exist that adversely affect or threaten to affect the national economy, national security or the carrying out of our foreign policy.

Let us bear in mind that the country is in a state of cold war. The Administration bill must thus be regarded as a sort of domestic economic counterpart of the Marshall Plan and of the political security measures expressed in the tremendous national defense budget and in the Atlantic treaty. These programs not only involve heavy costs to American taxpayers, they entail severe drains on our material resources. They testify to the existence of a state of national emergency that might lead to open warfare. For that reason the possession by the Government of stand-by powers of control over strategically important segments of the economy can be defended as a precautionary move regardless of whether prices go up or down. Moreover, it is quite possible even during a period when prices are generally stable or declining for prices of certain commodities to advance unduly, particularly the prices of goods required for the armed services or for shipment under foreign aid programs. Such increases might easily lead to serious dislocations of the price structure that would accentuate price declines in other segments of the economy.

A strong argument thus exists for empowering the Government to take corrective action as a last resort in supplementing supply deficiencies or restraining price movements that constitute a threat to economic stability. The mere possession of such authority would probably make it unnecessary to invoke such powers except in grave emergencies. And to those who fear that the conditional price control powers sought by the Government would mean price deflation, it is only necessary to point out that the bill is more in the nature of a price supporting measure than a price depressing expedient. For it aims only at preventing industrial prices from rising unduly above the inflated levels of last December and expressly forbids the setting of maximum prices for any agricultural commodity below parity levels—in other words, levels above present support prices.

Japan's Future

What the press says Secretary Royall said privately in Tokyo is of such good sense that the pity is that it will be obscured by the argument with the reporters over the authenticity of one of his reputed remarks. The bone of contention lies in the statement attributed to him by some listeners that the United States ought to withdraw from Japan. Secretary Royall denies it. He is supported by most of the reputable newspaper correspondents. The United Press correspondent, drawing on his notes, says that in an exchange of ideas he simply offered the opinion of some persons that it might be better to get out of Japan before a war started.

It is our guess that Mr. Royall was merely trying to put the world situation in proper perspective for the newsmen—that western Europe must be the prime concern in American strategy. The purpose? Maybe to offset General MacArthur's effort to impress the contrary upon the United States, viz, that the Far East should have the prior claim. On this assumption SCAP is trying to get reinforcements and supplies.

Certainly there must be an envisagement of a withdrawal of the American occupation. This country cannot keep it up forever. All history shows that continued occupation is as bad for the victor as for the vanquished. The former get thoroughly spoiled for normal life, the latter degenerate into confirmed dependents. Yet, with a peace treaty seemingly impossible to conclude, permanent occupation is the logic of the MacArthur policy. It began as an effort to "make over" Japan, and there is now an added justification that Japan is an outpost against Russia.

At the start the wisdom of occupation was questionable. When General MacArthur became a kind of emperor, he ran the country on General Staff lines, leaving a host of lesser administrators under military command to transform the country through a Japanese government. The effort was to give Japan a kind of American democracy. Japan, however, has its own brand, a democracy of equality of opportunity which brings to leadership the ablest Japanese through adoption and competitive examination. If the time spent on land and industrial reform had been spent on building up their production and trade, the occupation would today have shown better results, and prepared the ground for self-reliance. But this seems to have been the last thing in the occupation mind. What we need to do by way of overseership is to keep the Japanese shorn of military paraphernalia and to prepare for our eventual retirement from Japan proper by setting up a Japanese constabulary under American officers.

Bulldozer

Representative Rankin has jammed his veteran pension bill through the House Veterans Committee and doubtless will be successful in forcing it to the House floor. But the victory was not unalloyed. Seven members of the committee walked out before the committee vote, charging Rankin with dictatorial tactics. Moreover, earlier dissident committee members outmaneuvered Rankin to grant the American Veterans Committee permission to testify against the bill. The fact that this was the only testimony recorded against the proposal indicates pretty damningly the nature of democracy as practiced by Mr. Rankin.

The emergence of this political firecracker proves, we suppose, that Mr. Rankin's demagoguery is still dangerous even though he has been ousted from the Un-American Activities Committee. The fact that he has put the whole House over the barrel emphasizes the responsibility of members to vote sanely—and a sane vote calls for rejection of this $90 a month scheme for veterans reaching the age of 65. The issue is not justice for the veterans. It is simply whether the national economy is to be subjected to a burden of additional billions in an unjustified gift that, among other things, would scuttle the Administration's budget. The issue is one for the House leadership. If the Democrats wish to avoid further embarrassing incidents, they cannot afford to delay the formation of a majority policy committee—a body similar to the existing Senate committee which we hope will render the Rankin grab stillborn.

Deserved Rebuke

A representative of the Coal Exporters Association appeared this week before the Senate and House Foreign Policy Committees to plead for larger coal shipments to countries participating in the recovery program. Because coal is now in surplus supply, he argued that the ECA ought to help the industry to dispose of excess stocks that might become unsalable. Senator Vandenberg reminded the witness that one of the principal objectives of the ECA is to increase coal production in participating countries and reduce demands for United States coal. A good many other producing groups are equally anxious to foist off on the ECA commodities that can no longer be sold in the domestic market at the high prices prevailing in periods of scarcity. They, too, need to be reminded that the ECA was not established to subsidize domestic industries, as our Russian critics allege, but to help others to increase their own productive capacity and reduce their dependence on imports from this country.

Bon Voyage!

Ever since we learned about the new sure-cure for seasickness—well, almost sure—we have been trying to recall the time when our eyes have fallen on anything quite so welcome. Probably it was the last time we gazed weakly out of a certain porthole, which for a week had been alternately pointing at the bottom of the ocean and the top of the sky, to find it focused steadily on a motionless Statue of Liberty. A wave (ugh) of thankfulness swept over us, blotting out the homicidal thoughts we had been harboring against certain hearty individuals aboard. At that point it seemed life might have some attractions after all, and we forgave the fellow passengers who had, in nauseating repetition, assured us that seasickness was only a figment of the imagination.

The cure is a new drug called dramamine, the wondrous properties of which were accidentally discovered by two Johns Hopkins physicians. It is not, alas, on the market yet, but it has been tested on a bucking Army transport—or rather on 485 occupants thereof—and found almost 100 per cent effective either as a preventive or as a cure of seasickness. It works almost as fast as you can say its full chemical name. And it works for all sorts of motion-sickness, not only mal-de-mer. As an old-time addict of Mothersill's Remedy, we can hardly wait till the new stuff is available. It will make our daily bus ride a good deal more pleasant, too.

WE ARE THE MINERS

We have come at last to the day when the scales balance,
For we love equally. The fine rich grams are divided
Share and share alike between your cup and mine.
It is our wish that no one tilt the cups, to spill
From one more than from the other, leaving the scales
Out of balance. Once this richness has been spilled,
There is little chance of gathering it up again.
We cannot mine love from the earth like gold,
Nor take it from the sky like rain. The wines of love
Lie deep within us, fed by a network of seams.

Military Guarantee

All thinking and serious-minded Americans must view with considerable dismay the recent statements of Senators Vandenberg and Connally that in the coming North Atlantic Pact the United States would assume no legal or moral commitment to go to war.

What I think was intended by the two elder statesmen, speaking for both major American parties, was that it would be necessary, under our Constitution, for the Congress to "declare war" and that such action could not be considered automatic under the terms of a pact agreement.

If the North Atlantic Pact is emasculated of an American commitment legally and morally to go to war, then the one thing that will restore courage and initiative to western Europe will have been eliminated to our eternal disgrace as a mature western power. Actual force or quick potential force is the only ultimate and meaningful factor in diplomacy among nations. A military guarantee on our part is an absolute necessity to implement and give any real meaning to the North Atlantic Pact.

Civil Service Changes

When reading the Hoover Commission proposals for personnel system, I found myself wondering how former Commissioner Flemming could have some of the opinions attributed to him, and how it would be possible to overlook important potential mischief invited by the system proposed. The possible answer seems to be that Commissioner Flemming's experience is limited to a period of a tight labor market.

Since we will need opinions on a much wider basis, and possibly of persons who know the problems of civil service recruitment in loose labor markets with their pressure for patronage heightened, it is pertinent to consider whose opinions should be added. There are former commissioners such as Ordway (a short period of tenure, but a strong merit system man), and Leonard White. There are other men whose opinion would be valuable, such as Charles E. Merriam and Lewis Merriam.

There is Wallace Sayre, a former Federal personnel director and a former commissioner of the Civil Service Commission of New York City. There is, of course, the present president of the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Harry B. Mitchell, who was there during the years when the open and competitive system was in full operation, and when the labor market was loose. None of these can be accused of being officeholders trying to protect their jobs. Mr. Mitchell is soon to retire.

I hope that the Hoover Commission report is the beginning and not the end of discussion. It is regrettable that the Hoover Commission did not employ some industrial engineering firms on personnel system as it did on other organization problems.

Teachers' Salaries

Congressman George J. Bates of Massachusetts is again trying to save pennies at the expense of the already underpaid teachers.

If the teachers are going to get an increase based upon the increase in the cost of living, then the Congressman is presupposing that the teachers were earning a fair salary before living costs went up. At a time when there is so much talk about giving top Government officials a salary that is commensurate with their true worth, it seems like a biased state of affairs when the same reasoning is not applied to the problem of teachers' salaries. Dr. Corning made the teachers' position quite clear when he said, at the time of the last salary increase, that $600 was the bare minimum that the teachers should get. Congressman Bates was influential in bringing it down to $450. Now, when Dr. Corning goes on record as asking for $330 for the teachers, in line with what is being contemplated for the other District workers, the same magnanimous gesture is the least that the teachers should expect from the Eighty-first Congress.

Homes Vs. Rentals

Your February 12 issue carried a quotation of Housing Expediter Tighe E. Woods before the Senate-House Economic Committee, that he recommends restricting individual home-building and prefers to have everyone concentrate on rental housing.

The rentals charged in most projects are so high in comparison to the average family earnings that to be able to live in them, the members of the families forgo absolute necessities and attempt to hold on as long as possible to home furnishings which should be replaced. That is why business in general has shown a marked drop in these items, and we are commencing to show unemployment.

It has been proved that a complete two-bedroom house can be built for $6000. Where has anyone built a rental project at such costs and at rentals under $50 a month for two bedrooms? By creating more incentive and inducements for experimentation in individual home construction there will finally be developed methods and materials that will permit rental projects to be built at lower rental scales. Concentration on rental projects at present levels would create conditions very unfavorable for our economy.

Naturally, private investors will not go into such experimentation and research, so the logical step would be for Congress to vote help to be worked out with the cooperation of the industries concerned.

Debasing The Atlantic Pact

As the painstaking negotiations for the North Atlantic Pact approach their final stage, a private report has appeared proposing that security be sought on a fundamentally different basis. This report, published the end of January and entitled "The Security of the United States and Western Europe," was prepared by a five-man drafting committee of the Commission to Study the Organization of Peace. It recommends a world-wide security pact open to all members of the United Nations instead of a pact covering the North Atlantic area.

Couched in the general terms of a broad survey, this proposal has, at first glance, considerable appeal. It seems important, therefore, to see if it is practicable.

A salient characteristic of the North Atlantic area is its stability. Most of the nations in it are mature democracies which customarily change their governments by votes rather than by violence. For more than a century these nations have not engaged in war against each other.

Other areas, such as the Middle East and the Far East, are much less stable. If the pact were open to all members of the United Nations, both Syria and Egypt could become parties to it. If they did, the United States and other Atlantic nations could be involved militarily in the Palestine conflict.

Our Government would have to weigh exceedingly carefully all contingencies which might arise from so sweeping a defense agreement. Could it be expected to undertake commitments towards unstable areas which it is prepared to undertake towards the stable North Atlantic area? Consideration of such questions indicates that to open the pact to all members of the United Nations would be to water down its defensive obligations to a point where they would actually provide little security.

The practical functioning of the collective security machinery to be established by the pact cannot be overlooked. If the pact were open to all members of the United Nations, Poland and Czechoslovakia might be ordered by the Soviet government to join it. Then what? How could the parties to the pact prepare common defensive measuers against the only nation they have reason to fear if all these measures were reported by the Polish or Czechsolovak governments to Moscow? And how could the United States contribute military equipment on any equitable basis to the other parties to the pact if they included Soviet satellites?

When the North Atlantic Pact is completed it will constitute a powerful buttress of the United Nations. It will provide a degree of security for the most vital area of the world which the United Nations has proved unable to provide. By so doing, it will create conditions in which the economic and social activities of the United Nations can be more effective.

In the meanwhile and particularly when the North Atlantic Pact is being debated by the Senate and the American people, there will be a possibility of danger to the United Nations which it is important to avoid. That danger will arise if its supporters should express oppostion to provisions of the pact in a way which appears to the public to create an issue between the United Nations and the national security. In a time like the present, most people are likely to put security first. The result could be a decrease in popular support for the United Nations and a widespread tendency to lose sight of its limitless possibilities for future development.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

The Army Sees Spies

AMONG jungle tribes a common way of arousing tribal passions for war or for religious sacrifice is the beating of a jungle drum. Thump, thump, thump goes the drum and the human pulse responds with a quickened excitable tempo.

If we are honest with ourselves, we must admit that something like that seems to be happening here in our highly vaunted civilization. Certain events today seem to be on a level with the thumping of that drum.

Last week the Department of the Army released a lengthy document detailing the activities of a Soviet Russian spy ring in Tokyo that was extraordinarily successful in the late thirties and until it was broken up with the arrest of the principals in the fall of 1941. I have now read every word of that document and I hope to show in this and a following column why I believe its publication sets a new and dangerous precedent.

The report was put together by intelligence agents of Maj. Gen. Charles A. Willoughby, who has been head of General MacArthur's G-2 (intelligence) division through the war and in the occupation of Japan. They compiled it from Japanese police and counterintelligence reports and these reports in turn seem to have been based chiefly on the statements of convicted spies in the months preceding their execution by the Japs.

Instead of being a carefully written, closely factual document, the report put out by the Army is full of editorial comment. At times it seems to put a romantic gloss over the espionage activities and then it reads like the script for one of Hollywood's lesser "B" pictures.

THE DOCUMENT apparently has been in existence for a year or more. I have asked a number of officials in the Pentagon building why it was released at this time and the answers are noncommittal or evasive. It happened, says the Pentagon, that the document was declassified and, therefore, no longer secret or restricted and some newspapermen wanted to print it and it was given out.

The sensational story told in the document naturally made page 1 headlines. It fed the fear and uncertainty that are too much a part of the prevailing atmosphere.

"One begins to wonder," says this extraordinary document, "whom one can trust, what innocent comrade or loyal friend may suddenly be discovered as the enemy. He may have any face."

(Thump, thump, thump goes the jungle drum.)

One effect of this sensation is to divert attention from what is actually happening in Japan. In spite of General MacArthur's sincere and intensive efforts, in spite of his optimistic statements, the trend in Japan seems to be toward the extreme left and the extreme right.

In the latest election the Communist vote went from approximately one million at the preceding election to three million. The Communists increased their seats in the Parliament—total number of seats 466—from four to 35.

At the same time the center and moderate parties—the Socialists, the Democrats and the People's Cooperatives—all lost seats. The Democratic-Liberal Party, which is on the extreme right and neither very democratic nor very liberal, got a total of 264, a narrow majority of 31 seats.

ONE THING the Tokyo spy report does is to my knowledge unprecedented in a document officially given out by a military branch of the Government—it announces that an American citizen, Miss Agnes Smedley, is "a spy and agent of the Soviet government."

The paragraphs devoted to Miss Smedley, a journalist who has spent many years in China, give no supporting proof for this charge. The reader gathers that the charge is based on the statements of the two convicted spies, Richard Sorge and Osako Hozumi.

The document also accuses Miss Smedley of inventing the "hoax" that the Chinese Communists are merely agrarian reformers. But quite apart from Miss Smedley's views or her political affiliations, it is a radical departure from the Anglo-Saxon tradition of justice that she should be denounced as guilty of the dreadful crime of treason without evidence or without a chance to present her own defense.

Aside from the moral and ethical implications, there is reason to doubt whether the unprecedented approach of the Tokyo report is the way to defeat espionage. By publishing the report the author-sponsors seem to be saying that the public must be stirred up to catch spies.

With the exception of Communists, fellow travelers and unthinking pacifists, Americans have come to understand that we must calmly and resolutely build the strength of this country to meet the challenge of Communist aggression. That process is not helped by whipping up a froth of fear and suspicion.

Transit Radios

The other day I rode on one of the new radio-equipped buses for the very first time. The music is really very nice—not too hot and not too, too sweet—just relaxing and pleasant to hear. If it was the commercials that worried people, now they will have to admit—commercials couldn't be taken in an easier form—very short and not too frequent.

Matter Of Fact

By Stewart Alsop

The Pact And The Senate

THE MUDDLED debate in the Senate on Monday, together with Norwegian Foreign Minister Halvard Lange's visit to Washington, have left the real issues involved in the proposed North Atlantic Pact in a confused tangle. For one thing, the idea has become current, largely as a consequence of Lange's visit, that the United States has been trying to bully the Scandinavian countries into joining the pact.

In point of fact, Lange's visit was strictly his own idea, and caused considerable dismay in the State Department. Indeed, as soon as word of the proposed visit reached Washington, the Department began preparing a message suggesting politely that the time was inopportune, and that the trip be postponed. Before the message was drafted, it was discovered that Lange was already on his way.

The consequences of the visit, as the State Department foresaw, are obviously unfortunate. If Norway now decides not to adhere to the Atlantic Pact it will be widely assumed in Europe that Lange had a good look at the terms of the pact, and decided it was worthless. And if Norway does adhere, it will be equally widely assumed that this is a result of American pressure, despite Lange's repeated assurances to the contrary.

In fact the episode stemmed not from American pressure, but from the Swedish version of a Scandinavian pact. The Swedish idea boiled down in reality to little more than an extension of traditional Swedish neutrality to the whole of Scandinavia.

The Swedes opposed any sort of understanding with the Atlantic Pact powers—indeed, the Swedes would not countenance even informal staff talks between the two groupings. This Swedish concept of complete Scandinavian neutrality obviously raised the vital question of Greenland, which is a dependency of Denmark.

THE AMERICAN base on Greenland is essential for the defense of western Europe. Quiet, but highly important negotiations are now in progress on the subject of a long-term agreement for maintaining this base. But a Danish grant of a base in Greenland to the most powerful signatory of the Atlantic Pact would hardly square with the Swedish concept of Scandinavian isolation from the Atlantic Pact powers.

It is open to question whether or not a wholly neutral Scandinavia is desirable. But it is not open to question that the American Congress would not be likely to extend effective military aid to a Scandinavian affiance which refused to enter into staff talks, and which jeopardized the vital American base in Greenland. These facts, rather than American bullying, lay behind the failure of the Scandinavian pact talks and Lange's visit to Washington.

As for the Senate debate, it has a curious "Alice in Wonderland" quality. The argument about "moral" commitments really made no sense at all. For, as Senator Arthur Vandenberg sensibly remarked, the Atlantic Pact will merely "acknowledge the facts of life as they are." The facts of life are that if any of the proposed signatories were attacked by the Soviet Union in the foreseeable future, the United States would be at war in a matter of days. The manner in which these facts of life are expressed in words no doubt has psychological importance. But the words will be no more than a prelude to what really matters.

WHAT really matters is the nature of joint planning and military aid between western Europe and the Western Hemisphere after the pact is signed. Here arises the basic issue, which far transcends the wording of the pact, and which is yet unresolved: What is to be the real American objective in helping Europe to rearm?

American officials in one school of thought are convinced that it is hopeless to expect western Europe to build up a force sufficient to withstand the assault of the Red Army in case of war. Thus military aid for western Europe would be a strictly psychological gesture. Token military aid would be extended, not with the actual intention of placing Europe in an effective defensive position, but more or less as a rattle is given to a baby to stop it crying.

Another school of thought is convinced that the defense of western Europe is a practical matter, given some time and a determined effort both here and abroad. This effort would be aimed at building up a hard core of about 30 superior divisions and decisive air superiority to hold the Red army in case of war until the mobilization of the whole Atlantic community could take effect.

Surely here is an issue a good deal more important than whether the naughty word "military" shall appear in the text of the pact. The Europeans are after all sufficiently intelligent to be able to tell the difference between token security and real security. Moreover, in the end Congress will have to settle the issue, since Congress will have to decide how much money is to be appropriated for military aid. Unfortunately the bumbling debate on Monday, with its unreal concern with semantics and its overtones of reborn isolationism, gives no assurance that the issue will be decided intelligently.

mittee. They agree in proposing to let the District council enact laws, without routine clearance by Congress, but subject to the reserved right of Congress to override any local action by a bill passed by both Houses and signed by the President.

3. That home rule should be coupled with civil rights moves, including a fair employment practices commission for the District, and that the election system should be designed to give representation to minority groups. These are features of the home rule bill of Representative Vito Marcantonio (ALP, N. Y.) and they were backed by spokesmen for the District Progressive Party, the National Lawyers Guild, the Washington Industrial Union Council, CIO, and the Women's Auxiliary, United Public Workers, CIO.

Reorganization Question

4. That home rule should be coupled with a reorganization of District government agencies, versus the idea that there should be a straight home rule bill with reorganization coming later through initial efforts of the District council.

There were other points of dispute among supporters of home rule. One was whether the District should be given a non-voting District delegate in the House.

Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant, 3d, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, called for an appointed District Governor, to be chosen by the President and confirmed by the Senate, to be made the District's chief officer, with an elected city council.

Kenneth Armstrong of the Washington Central Suffrage Conference said it was a system much like Grant proposed that led to loss of suffrage here three quarters of a century ago.

Lusk Voices Opposition

First witness to voice outright opposition to home rule was Rufus Lusk, president of the Washington Taxpayers Association. He said he favored District reorganization, but declared the present city government is the best in the United States.

"We think that with local suffrage we will not have as good government," he said.

"Does the size of the tax load have anything to do with it," asked Kefauver.

"I'm sure it does," said Lusk. "At least it does in my own case."

J. A. Kamerow, Federation of Business Men's Association, said, "We are opposed to home rule as proposed in the pending legislation—we favor a plan of home rule that would give us national representation."

Legion Against It

Jerome B. McKee, District American Legion, stated his organization's opposition to home rule, then said "we want national representation first, and home rule only for those who can't vote elsewhere."

Paul Matthews, Junior Board of Commerce, said his organization favors home rule with elected city council and appointed manager, but emphasized "we do not favor any home rule without national representation."

Edward F. Colladay, general counsel for the Washington Board of Trade, declared his organization feels no bill to grant local suffrage would be complete unless accompanied by national representation.

Colladay said that any home rule bill should exclude reorganization features; take effect only if approved by a local plebiscite; continue the Federal payment to the District, and rquire congressional approval of local legislation.

Miller Applauded

Senator Miller drew a burst of applause when he said he could not quite follow the reason why Congress kept from District residents the rights of other American citizens.

Canson Purcell, attorney and former chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, speaking for the Washington Home Rule Committee, urged a nome rule bill without reorganization but emphasized "we'll support any bill that has home rule as its principal objective." Representative Auchincloss took issue on the idea of dropping the reorganization features, but praised Purcell's group as one that "has been extremely helpful to us." Appearing with Purcell were Sturgis Warner and Alexander B. Hawes, attorneys.

Testifying for the District Democratic Central Committee bill were Benjamin C. Sigal, who also represented the Americans for Democratic Action; James William Bryan, Harold V. Boisvert, and James C. Turner, who also represented the Washington Central Labor Union, AFL.

Finch Appears

Wilbur S. Finch, appearing with Armstrong for the Washington Central Suffrage Conference, said that while he favored national representation, it didn't belong with the home rule bill.

Harry N. Stull, of the Federation of Citizens Associations, said his group favored the Auchincloss bill, but he agreed with those who thought it might be well to drop the reorganization sections "to give the least possible target for people to shoot at."

Harry S. Wender, chairman of the District Recreation Board, was the only prominent District agency official to turn out in support of home rule. He urged the committee to devote atention "to the primary objective of getting as much home rule as we can now."

He suggested that an elected District delegate serve, too, as president of the city council. He said he favored keeping a citizens board in charge of recreation, rather than placing it under a single director with an advisory board, but he added: "Personally it makes no difference to me what you do with the recreation board so long as you give us suffrage."

Other witnesses included Maynard DeWitt, American Veterans Committee; Woolsey W. Hall, Federation of Civics Asociation; Mrs. Charlote Sillers, Women's Auxiliary, United Public Workers, CIO, Dr. Clark Foreman, District Progressive Party; Mrs. Gertrude Evans, Washington Industrial Union Council, CIO, Daniel Crystal, National Lawyers' Guild; Edgar G. Brown, National Negro Council, and David Whatley, attorney.

Hoover Unit Asks Businesslike Reorganization of Postoffice

By Jerry Klutz

A Postoffice Department organized on a businesslike basis and freed from politics was recommended to Congress yesterday by the Hoover Commission in the fourth of its 15 reports on Government reorganization.

The commission report emphasized that the department now lacks the freedom and flexibility essential to good business operations although it's one of the world's largest businesses. It described the postal service's administrative structure as "obsolete, overcentralized, and beset by a maze of outmoded laws, regulations, and traditions which freezes progress and stifles proper administration."

Broad powers over its personnel, accounting and purchasing would be made the responsibility of the Postmaster General under the Hoover plan. The department would hire most of its own employes under standards which would be laid down by the Civil Service Commission. It would keep its own administrative accounts under standards fixed by a proposed accountant general in the Treasury Department but subject to approval and audit by the General Accounting Office. And the department would buy most of its own supplies.

Would Reduce GAO Unit

If approved by Congress, the accounting suggestion would substantially reduce the size of the postal accounts division of the General Accounting Office. The division of several hundred employes was moved to Asheville, N. C., during the war and it's still there. GAO plans to return it here when its new building is completed.

In its report, the Hoover group pounded away at the "inadequacy" of the present accounting structure. It said in part:

"Accounting units of the Postoffice Department have only 30 days after the close of a quarter to review the mass of material from 42,000 postoffices and to turn it over to the GAO, which performs the full adult, settles directly with individual postmasters, and turns its report over to the department some eight months after the quarter's end—too late for effective use in day-to-day analysis and supervision . . . it is outrageously cumbersome and results in a mass of unnecessary red tape and a host of employes."

Other Recommendations

The commission also told Congress:

1. The Postmaster General should be barred from heading National political committees, as has occurred several times in the past.

2. He should be given an experienced director of posts to serve as operating head of the department, while the Postmaster General determines policies.

3. The postal service should be decentralized into 15 regions, with regional directors and district superintendents.

4. Confirmation of postmasters by the Senate should be abolished, with those officials selected from career men on a merit basis. (Only yesterday, President Truman sent up 700 postmaster nominations for the Senate's consideration.)

Self-Supporting Services

5. The Postmaster General should be allowed to set the rates for registered mail, insured mail, COD's, money orders, postal cards and special delivery, to make each of those services self-supporting. Congress should continue to establish the rates on first, second, third and fourth class matter.

6. Payments to common carriers for transporting mail should not be used to hide a subsidy for aviation.

The commission said that recurring annual postoffice operating deficits have been caused for the most part by circumstances beyond the control of the department, "and can be remedied only by strong and courageous action."

Army Engineers Hit By Senator Lodge

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., (R., Mass.), yesterday accused the Army Engineers of trying to "stir up agitation" against proposals of the Hoover Commision on Government Reorganization.

Reading the Senate a letter to support his charge, he called it "the first example I have seen of the military attempting to dominate the civil functions of the Government."

The letter was from a "prominent businessman" in a large city. Lodge read this excerpt:

"Our Chamber of Commerce was approached by the district engineer of the Army asking that they oppose the Hoover Commission's proposal to transfer the civil functions of the engineers to the proposed department of public works."

The businessman said he and others objected to such action, and the Chamber of Commerce voted down the request.

"When officers of the Army Engineers undertake to stir up agitation against the report of this eminent, distinguished and patriotic commission," Lodge said, "the time has come to call a halt."

Recitals Close at Howard U.

By Paul Hume

Howard University's praiseworthy recital series came to a close last night with a sonata program played by Daniel Guilet and Arthur Balsam.

Guilet is first violinist of the string quartet bearing his name. Balsam is outstanding in the field of pianists playing sonatas for piano and violin. Both artists have been heard with real pleasure in Washington's concert halls before.

Sonatas by Mozart, Debussy, Franck, and a late Sonatina of Dvorak were the attractions in which Guilet and Balsam displayed their substantial talents. French musicians have customarily showed good taste in playing Mozart. They find the pure lines and clear form appropriate to their native conceptions of sound and balance. Guilet showed something of his great eminence in chamber music as he unfolded the B flat major sonata of Mozart.

Dvorak's Sonatina, rarely heard at recitals today, is a relief from much that happens at string recitals. Its content is unpretentious, but stamped with that love of folk melody we associate with its author. It is clearly harmonized by the hand that brought forth the symphonies and cello concerto.

Guilet and Balsam are men who thoroughly comprehend Claude Debussy's sole violin sonata. Their inclination is to restrain the work a bit, particularly in the way violin phrases are kept from rushing out. There was inescapably a feeling that Guilet had played the Debussy quartet much more frequently than he has played this sonata. Nevertheless it was a sound conception.

We also prefer a piano bolder in dynamics, but Balsam maintained a finely balanced relation between the instruments at all times.

Truman Approves Vaughan's Medal

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday swung to the defense of Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, his Army aide and long-time friend, in the case of the Argentine decoration.

He said that there was no reason in the world to criticize Vaughan for accepting the Order of the Liberator San Martin from the government of Argentina.

It was handled strictly according to law, Mr. Truman said at a White House news conference, and the only reason for the squawks was that Vaughan happened to be his military aide.

"You mean they were hitting at you over Vaughan's shoulders?" a reported asked.

Mr. Truman said, yes, that was it.

Critics of General Vaughan took him to task on the ground that he was being used by President Peron to give the impression of a cordial relationship between the United States and Argentina.

General Vaughan said after yesterday's White House news conference that he learned officially that he was to be awarded the decoration about six or eight weeks ago when he was invited to a luncheon at the Army and Navy Club by Brig. Gen. Lucero Franklin, Military Attache of the Argentine Embassy here.

He said that he called up Stanley Woodward, chief of protocol of the State Department, and asked his advice. He said that Woodward told him to go ahead and take the decoration in the manner prescribed by law, just as earlier he had accepted a decoration from Guatemala.

This meant that Vaughan could take the decoration, but would have to deposit it with the State Department until Congress had approved his right to accept it.

The White House aide said he learned that the State Department already was holding Argentine decorations awarded to Gen. Omar Bradley, Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, Gen. Jacob L. Devers, Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer and Gen. Courtney H. Hodges.

The Order of the Liberator San Martin was formally presented to General Vaughan by Ambassador Jeronimo Remorino at the Argentine Embassy two weeks ago.

General Vaughan said yesterday that he handed the saucer-size decoration to Protocol Chief Woodward at the embassy party.

Drew Pearson, newspaper and radio commentator, who had been criticizing Vaughan for agreeing to accept the decoration, stood outside the embassy, pencil and notebook in hand, checking off the officials who attended the ceremony.

President Truman, in saying yesterday that there was not a single thing wrong about Vaughan's action, noted that Argentina had awarded 20 or more decorations to other United States officers.

Laws covering decorations from foreign governments stem from a clause in Article I of the Constitution which says: "No person holding any office of profit or trust under them (the United States) shall without the consent of Congress, accept any present, emolument, office, or title of any kind whatever from any king, prince, or foreign state."

During World War I and World War II, because of a specific law, American officers could accept foreign decorations without the consent of Congress, thus making possible awards on the battlefield. This special dispensation, as Mr. Truman noted yesterday, expired on June 30 last.

Now the State Department acts as a repository for foreign decorations until Congres has given its approval—something that is usually does in perfunctory fashion after the armed forces have submitted a list of those honored.

H. Charles Spruks, assistant chief of protocol, said that since the United States and Argentina have formal relations, there was no reason why General Vaughan should turn down a decoration—so long as he conformed with the law. That would also be true, he said, of a decoration from Soviet Russia or any other country with which the United States maintains diplomatic relations.

Antarctic Diary Found, Reds Claim

London, Feb. 17 (U.P.).—Radio Moscow today underscored Soviet claims on the Antarctic by reporting the alleged discovery of a seaman's diary describing a Russian South Polar expedition during the years 1819-21.

Later, Moscow announced the All-Union Geographical Society would soon publish a complete list of the "real" (Russian) names of Antarctic landmarks.

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Klutz

Commission Seeks Law to Let Agencies Suspend Employes

SUSPENSIONS: Agency heads would have the blanket power to suspend any employe for as much as 30 days in a bill recommended to Congress yesterday by the Civil Service Commission. No red tape would be involved.

The commission sent letters to the Vice President and the Speaker in which the text of a proposed bill was included.

The commission said it recognized that situations arise where an employe must be suspended immediately. It is essential, the commission explained, in cases where an employe steals Government funds, reports to work drunk, or becomes mentally unbalanced. Suspension without pay in these cases, the commission said, is the only immediate action that should be taken.

"Under the law as it now reads," the commission told Congress, "suspensions without pay cannot be made until the employe has been given a written notice, a letter of charges, an opportunity to answer, and a written decision on the answer."

This procedure would be continued to be used for firings and suspensions of more than 30 days. In the 30-day period, however, the agency head could make up his mind on what further action, if any, should be taken against the offending employe.

REPORT: The commission yesterday also sent its annual report to Congress—urging legislation to:

1. Revise and simplify salary-fixing Classification Act and authorize the agencies to allocate positions according to standards set by the commission, subject to its post-audit. (A similar recommendation was made by the Hoover Commission.)

2. Give the Civil Service Commission power to coordinate the salaries and classifications of wage board, or per diem, employes. There is a serious lack of consistency among the agencies in fixing titles and rates of pay for these positions," the commission said.

3. Amend the Hatch "no politics" Act to allow Civil Service discretion in fixing penalties of violators. Employes who are found guilty now must be fired. The House already has approved a bill to give Civil Service this authority.

4. Permit Federal agencies to detail scientific, technical, and professional employes to universities, laboratories, and industrial plants for advanced study. Also, to permit them to grant a reasonable period of sabbatical leave to these classes of employes.

5. Require veterans to obtain a passing grade of at least 70 on a Civil Service exam before preference points are added, and to require disabled veterans to have a compensable disability to be certified by the Veterans Administration before 10 points preference are given on tests.

6. Raise the expense allowance for employes who travel on official business from $6 to $10 a day.

7. Wipe out the requirement for Senate confirmation of postmasters.

8. Simplify and consolidate the many dual compensation laws, which prevent employes from holding more than one Federal job.

9. Punish private employment agencies which seek to victimize applicants by charging them for alleged help in obtaining Federal jobs. The commission emphasized that no assistance from private employment agencies is ever needed.

10. Amend the proof-of-residence requirement to allow the commission to certify the names of qualified eligibles who have not proved their residence.

HCSC: The House Civil Service Committee yesterday indorsed these bills: to permit the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics to pay salaries up to $15,000 to 10 of its top-rank scientists, and to fine auto owners $25 for parking on the property of any Postoffice.

PAY BILLS: It didn't get approval of either the Senate or House Civil Service Committee at their yesterday sessions. The Murray Subcommittee of the House committee will meet on it again Tuesday.

Fort Meade Soldier Shot In Recapture Of Convicts

Sergeant Wounded By Mistake During Army's Search for Two Jailbreakers

A cane used by a crippled soldier convict and his prison mate at Fort Meade to club their way out also led to their capture yesterday 15 hours after their escape.

Though armed, the "highly dangerous" prisoners, whose escape had resulted in the accidental shooting of a Fort Meade soldier, surrendered quietly to a military patrol combing the woods near the Army post.

The Army had searched for them in two small planes, on foot and with auto patrols, while police had broadcast an 11-State alarm. Bloodhounds had been sent for by Fort Meade authorities.

But it was the trail left by the cane of Pvt. Robert Nelson, 22, of Rome, Ga., black marketeer convict, that led Lieut. Louis Giuffrida and his patrol from Fort Meade to Nelson and Pvt. Donald J. Nye, 21, of Syracuse, N. Y., convicted murderer of a German girl.

Found Huddling Behind Bushes

Dressed in shirts and trousers, they were found huddling behind some bushes, trying to keep warm. Surrendering when one of the patrol fired a shot over their heads and the others trained their rifles on them, the two men were returned to the prison and placed in separate cells.

During the search for the fugitives, Sergt. Walton Morris was shot in the face when he was mistaken for one of the armed convicts. Sergeant Morris was sent to Walter Reed Hospital, for plastic surgery. He was in serious condition last night.

Nelson and Nye had been transferred to Fort Meade from Federal penitentiaries at Lewisburg, Pa. and Chillicothe, Ohio, to testify in the courtmartial of Lieut. Col. George E. Pinard, accused of neglecting American soldiers in a German prison three years ago. Second Army authorities explained.

Nye, originally sentenced to life imprisonment for strangling a German girl while AWOL in Europe, was serving a reduced sentence of 10 years. Nelson had had a 3-year sentence for black market activities increased to 5 years because of previous prison escapes.

Called Guard to Cell

At 11.15 p. m. Wednesday, the men called Pvt. William Genung, MP prison guard, to their double "maximum security" cell. When Private Genung opened the inner cell door, he was clubbed in the face with Nelson's gnarled cane. Running to summon aid, he was followed by the prisoners, who jumped another guard, Pvt. Harry Henry. Wresting a .45-caliber revolver from Henry, the prisoners fled, firing four wild shots as they ran.

About three hours later, Sergeant Morris, guarding the post medical laboratory, thought he heard a prowler and investigated. A patrol which had joined the search arrived and, looking through a window, Sergt. Arthur Mosley saw Sergeant Morris inside with a shotgun.

Sergeant Mosley ordered the supposed fugitive out of the building, and when Sergeant Morris replied with a shotgun blast, Mosley opened fire with three pistol shots. One struck Morris in the jaw, the bullet passing out through his neck.

Indecent Exposure Charge Against Man, 79, Dismissed

An indecent-exposure charge against a 79-year-old Mount Rainer man was dismissed yesterday in Hyattsville Police Court when the complainants declined to prosecute.

The charge, lodged against Albert Stevens, 2902 Upshur st., was dismissed by Trial Magistrate Arthur P. Owens. Stevens was arrested Tuesday by Prince Georges County police on complaint of the parents of a 15-year-old Mount Rainer high school girl.

Police said the girl reported she had left the school building for home when Stevens attracted her attention and exposed himself. She told her parents, and police were notified. Stevens was arrested near the school, they said.

Police Boys Club Drive Holds 1st Report Today

The first luncheon report meeting of the annual campaign for $250,000 in memberships of the Metropolitan Police Boys Club will take place today at 12:30 p. m. in the South American Room of the Statler Hotel, with Attorney General Tom Clark and Major and Superintendent of Police Robert J. Barret heading the list of speakers.

Wash B. Williams, general chairman, will be master of ceremonies. Among those who will be at the head table are Charles B. Dulan, sr., first vice president; Dr. J. L. B. Murray, second vice president; Mrs. Joseph L. Arnold, president of the Women's Auxiliary; William McChesney Martin, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, and A. Devitt Banech, Assistant Attorney General.

Park Agency Against Plan For Transfer

Montgomery Council Is Accused of Seeking To Abolish Planning

Legislation to transfer functions of the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission to the Montgomery County government is "not in the public interest," it was declared yesterday.

Charging that the Montgomery County Council, which requested the legislation, seeks "complete destruction of bi-county planning" in nearby Maryland, J. Bond Smith, general counsel for the commission, said:

"The truly regional bi-county plan developed through painstaking study and deliberation of this commission's technical staff of the last two decades would be scrapped."

Bill Would Strip Powers

The commission is a State agency serving Montgomery and Prince Georges counties. The Montgomery County delegation to the General Assembly this week introduced a bill which would strip the commission of most of its powers in Montgomery and transfer them to the county government.

Smith continued:

"Planning authorities generally agree that regional planning cannot stop at arbitrary county boundaries. Such a reversal of fundamental planning principles would surely be detrimental to the people and further progress . . .

"Planning and other functions of the commission within an incomplete area not adapted to regional planning would be imposed upon a newly-elected county council lacking bicounty authority to deal with the entire planned area." He said the council is presumably already fully occupied with its important new duties and responsibilities in county government.

Creation of the commission in 1927, Smith contended, has resulted in "wide arterial bicounty highways, ample parks, adequate lot and subdivisional control, the zoning plan and many other elements of the general plan for the physical development of the whole Maryland-Washington Regional District."

The proposed laws would transfer zoning advisory powers of the commission as well as inspection functions, leaving the agency to serve in liaison between the county and Federal agencies.

Capital Transit Asks Reduction in Shuttle Bus Route

Capital Transit Co. yesterday asked the District Public Utilities Commission to authorize a reduction in the route of the West End bus line now operating as a shuttle service between the District's two fringe parking lots.

The firm asked that effective Monday, it be permitted to return the route to the previous terminals of 25th and E sts. nw. and the Treasury Department. The route now is from 25th and E sts. nw. to the Municipal Center parking lot at 3d st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw., via F st. nw.

In its request the transit company said the present route has returned insufficient revenue to defray the cost of the added service and traffic congestion on F st. has interfered with schedules.

The Merchants Parking Service voted earlier this month to drop the fringe lot project on March 20 because of a lack of patronage. The CTC is now operating the line under a six months' authorization scheduled to end March 20 also.

Woodrow Wilson High School Talent Show Proves a Hit

Woodrow Wilson High School didn't sound the same yesterday afternoon as a weeping saxophone echoed out into its corridors and the audtorium stage creaked to the kicks of six cake-walking babies.

Math and Latin were forgotten as master of ceremonies Roger Good, 117 E. Woodbine st., Chevy Chase, introduced his youthful audience to "a personality you'll all remember." It was Joy Dilli, 5810 Connecticut ave. nw., who slid out on the stage, white gloves, black-face, and tails, to mimic Al Jolson singing his famous "Mammy."

Hers was one of a dozen vaudeville acts that kept nearly 1000 noisily appreciative fellow students on the edge of their seats, as a picked cast of 65 students put on a talent show under direction of Mrs. Alice Zerwick, English and dramatic teacher.

There was plenty more:

Blonde, slender "Gery" Clifford, daughter of Presidential Counsel Clark Clifford and last year's Regatta Queen, rippled out in front of the footlights next. Dressed in blue satin, Margery, who lives at 5900 Connecticut ave. nw., gave out with a highly appreciated "Someday He'll Come Along" and "Can't Help Lovin' That Man."

Five bathing beauties and their beaux tripped across the stage in 1890 bathing costumes to the tune of "By the Sea, By the Sea, By the Beautiful Sea."

The four Clef-Dwellers rolled out "O Dem Golden Slippers" in professional barber-shop tones, then sounded off with "You Always Hurt the One You Love." Making up the four-man trio were Hank Gibson, 5935 Utah ave. nw; Roland Hurst, 3418 34th st. nw.; Harry Yeide, 3619 Ingomar st. nw., and Dave Parker, 4219 Chesapeake st. nw.

A monosyllabic romance in the park, conducted by Laurel Brown and Richard O'Lone, brought an avalanche of titters from the audience.

And an ear-splitting display of stomps, claps and whistles followed renditions of "Sorento" and "For You" by a saxophone-vibraharpe-bass fiddle trio made up of John Merrill, 5700 32d st. nw.; Lee Garbrick, 3714 Appleton st. nw., and Walter Scott, 3510 Porter st. nw.

Songs by three Spanish caballeros, a 20-man tumbling act, a piano duet and "Granada" sung in Spanish, filled the high school stage, and there wasn't an "educational" speech in the carload.

Bruno Vasta, 4515 Chesapeake st. nw., who ripped out "Tea for Two" and "Twelfth Street Rag" on his accordian, and a grand finale of "Show Boat" with all the cast, finished up the student Talent Show.

The quarter the students paid to get in went to the Student Council treasury. Last night their parents got a chance to watch for a 60-cent admission, which went to the coffers of the Home and School Association.

Death Rate Falls

Weak Heart Means Less In Childbirth

Young women with heart disease were yesterday offered brighter hopes for marriage and motherhood, in a report on a 10-year clinical research program at George Washington University.

The report showed that almost every woman of child-bearing age with heart disease may safely have at least one child; that some may have two, and others may plan for even more without danger to mother or baby.

In figures released by the Washington Heart Association, clinic statisticians showed that during the past 10 years 167 area women with heart disease were delivered of 372 live births, with a loss of only seven lives.

By contrast, it was pointed out, the District mortality rate in such cases in 1928 was 25 per cent. At the start of the century the chances of women with heart disease surviving pregancy was even, with death resulting in one of every two cases.

The GWU research project toward reduction of infant and maternal mortality rates was begun in 1939 by Dr. Benjamin Manchester, associate in medicine. Cooperating were Dr. John L. Parks, professor of obstetrics, and Dr. Clayton B. Ethridge, associate professor of medicine.

The Washington Heart Association, which joined in organizing, developing and supervising heart clinics in seven local hospitals, is currently conducting a campaign for $75,000 to continue and to expand its activities.

2 AU Students Receive Leadership Awards

Awards for scholarship and leadership in business and industrial management were presented to two American University students Wednesday at the annual dinner of the university chapter of the Society for the Advancement of Management. They are James R. Benfer, 1 Hawaii ave ne., and Frederick Hamilton, 4224 16th st. nw.

2 Girls, Age 13 and 14, Admit Sex Party With 4 Young Boys

Two girls, one 13 and the other 14, admitted to police last night they had participated in a sex party with four teen-age boys after school yesterday.

The girls were due home at 4 p. m. When they returned at 6 p. m., their parents called police.

The girls told sex squad detectives they had met the four boys after school at 13th and Clifton sts. nw. Then, they said, they went to an apartment, near 16th st. and Columbia rd. nw., where the acts took place.

Detectives picked up six boys for questioning.

Slayer Found, Reward Riddle Still Unsolved

Who Will Get $2200 For Indicating Killer of Alexandria Policeman?

Who will receive the $2200 reward money offered for information leading to the slayer of Alexandria Police Pvt. Robert B. Harris?

This question was still unanswered last night following solution of the five-month-old Alexandria murder through cooperation of police in three cities.

Joseph W. Hunter, 26, of 1247 Union st. sw., was linked first to the killing by a Richmond, Va., tipster, Richmond detectives investigated the tip. They called in Alexandria detectives.

The trail ended Wednesday in the District Jail where Hunter is awaiting trial for two District murders. There, police said, a confession was wrung from Hunter by Washington and Alexandria detectives.

Detectives who worked on the case were G. M. Lloyd and A. R. Withers of Richmond; Inspector Rusell A. Hawes, chief of Alexandria detectives, and two of his men, Sergts. Thomas Woods and Francis Johnson, and Detective Sergts. Paul Clarke and Edwin Crandall of the Metropolitan Police robbery squad.

A little more than a month ago, a Richmond man overheard his maid confide to another maid that her brother was wanted for killing a policeman in Alexandria. Lloyd and Withers dug into the case and after discovering there was basis for the tip called in Alexandria detectives.

The Alexandria detectives learned that Hunter had been in Alexandria shortly before the murder. The alleged confession was obtained after two hours of questioning Wednesday.

Hawes said neither he nor his men were eligible to share in the reward money which was put up by the State of Virginia, the city of Alexandria, the Alexandria Policemen's Association and business firms.

However, Richmond or Washington police probably could. Inspector Oscar J. Lettermen said Washington policemen could accept an award if their service was meritorious enough and the Commissioners approved.

Nor was it even definite that any reward would be paid. If the reward money carried the condition that the information lead to arrest and conviction of the person who killed the Alexandria police rookie last September 11, this might prevent payment.

For Hunter may never face trial in Virginia. He is under indictment here for two murders in connection with an attempted holdup outside the Rosalia Theater, 218 F st. sw., last October.

Home Rule Group In Meeting Today

The Home Rule Luncheon Committee, a group of local organizations and individuals working for home rule under the auspices of the Central Suffrage Conference, will meet at the American Veterans Committee Clubhouse, 1751 New Hampshire ave. nw., at 12:15 p. m. today to discuss current home rule legislative proposals and community support for home rule.

Benjamin Sigal, president of the Washington Chapter, Americans for Democratic Action, and a member of the Democratic Central Committee, will report on home-rule bills proposed by local groups. A discussion of this subject with representatives of some 60 civic, religious, labor and other local organizations will follow.

Thumb Hurt

Struck by Car Of Policeman, He Pays $10

A pedestrian, who stepped into the path of a policeman's car, suffering minor injuries, yesterday forfeited $10 collateral on a charge of violating pedestrian control regulations.

The forfeiture by Abraham Jackson, 45, a Government clerk, of 1937 12th st. nw., followed a hearing in the office of Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark King.

According to King, on January 20, Jackson was injured by an auto operated by Pvt. James W. Garland, of 2634 39th st. nw., who is attached to the Third Precinct.

Jackson was thrown to the street and suffered injuries to his thumb. He was treated at Emergency Hospital.

Yesterday's hearing was held to determine who was responsible for the accident. King said. He reported Jackson admitted that instead of walking from the end of the loading zone to the crosswalk at 14th st. and New York ave. nw. —a distance of about 10 feet—to cross the street, he had stepped directly from the loading zone into the street and toward the curb when the accident occurred.

Takoma Park Acts to Split Referendum

The Takoma Park City Council last night took steps to divide its reorganization proposals into two separate referendums in order that disapproval of one portion might not defeat the whole proposition.

Councilmen W. C. McClenan and Sherwood Githens were directed to work out details to separate the city manager plan and plan for expansion of the corporate limits, so the two propositions might be voted on independently of each other.

The council also announced that residents of the present city and of the area to be annexed would both participate in the referendum.

The council voted to change the wording of the bill from the "New City" Bill to the "Greater Takoma Park" Bill.

It withheld formal approval on submission of the bill to allow for the incorporation of amendments into the bill by the law and ordinance committee headed by McClenan.

A proposal to have an outside group of experts set up a tax equalization plan was voted down in favor of having a tax committeeof the council set the tax rate with a minimum of $1 per $100 assessed valuation.

The council determined that questions resulting in tie votes should be held over to the next meeting rather than have the mayor break the tie as at present.

A tie vote last night on a proposal to have the mayor elected by the council from among members instead of being elected by direct vote of the people caused the question to be deferred for further study. Mayor John C. Post refused to break the tie.

Convicted Youth Held Under Bond On Same Charge

An 18-year-old youth, once convicted of second-degree murder, yesterday was ordered held under $10,000 bond for grand jury action on the same charge.

He is Alvin M. Johns of 1402 S st. nw., whose conviction in District Court last December was set aside after court authorities learned for the first time that he had lied about his age and was only 17 years old at the time of the offense.

The case was referred to Juvenile Court, which waived jurisdiction, and Johns was arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioner Cyril Lawrence.

The charge grew out of the fatal shooting of Zeb Jeffries, 29, of 1505 Vermont ave. nw., during an argument last October at 7th and S sts. nw.

$840 Reported Stolen From D. C. Paint Firm

Clarence I. Smith, jr., of 4706 Harrison st. nw., manager of the C. I. Smith Paint Co. at 2437 18th st. nw., reported to police that sometime during Wednesday night the store had been broken into. Locks to the bars of a second-floor rear window were forced, the door to a safe was removed by taking the pins out of the hinges, and $840 in bills and change stolen, he said.

Shriners' Speaker

A. K. Mitchell, superintendent of Western Union Telegraph Co., will speak at 12:30 today at the weekly meeting of Almas Temple Club at 1315 K st. nw. His topic will be "Washington—Telegraph Capital of the World."

Rep. Bates Expected To Urge Early Start Of New Construction With Federal Loans

An early start on the long-delayed District school and Welfare Department construction programs under short-term Federal loan financing probably will be recommended today by Representative George J. Bates (R., Mass.).

Ranking minority member of the House District Fiscal Submittee and long-time "pay-as-you-go" advocate Bates said last night that the "city must do something about meeting the demands of its increasing population."

"I have in mind a plan to give the Commissioners authority to seek a 10-year loan so that certain school and welfare facilities can be started right away," Bates declared. The Strayer School report called for loans to finance a 38-million-dollar school building program.

He said he expects to propose his "carefully thought-out" plan at the scheduled joint excutive session this morning of the House and Senate District Fiscal Subcommittees.

Cochairmen Senator Lester C. Hunt (D., Wyo.) and Representative Howard Smith (D., Va.) hope their group will reach a final decision on the 2 per cent retail sales tax proposal at today's session.

However, Hunt said late yesterday there was an outside chance his crowded schedule for today might cause him to postpone the meeting.

Nearly 50 local civic and business organizations testified Wednesday before the two fiscal subcommittees on the Commissioners' five-point new revenue proposal, highlighted by the sales tax.

Merchants Would Avoid Tax Collection Costs

Rufus Lusk, president of the Washington Taxpayers Association, last night urged the Joint District Fiscal Subcommittee to retain the provision to reimburse merchants for cost of collecting the tax should a general sales tax bill be enacted for the District.

In a telegram to Senator Lester C. Hunt (D., Wyo.), chairman of the Senate subcommittee, Lusk stated that the cost of collecting the tax would be "considerable," and said it should not be added to the "already heavy expense of filling out more forms required by the Federal and District governments."

Policeman's Accuser Drops Beating Case

A charge of assault with a deadly weapon against Metropolitan Police Pvt. Gregory A. O'Connor, 29, was dismissed yesterday in Hyattsville Police Court.

The complainant, Robert S. Simms, 30, of 7-S Research rd., Greenbelt, Md., told Trial Magistrate Arthur P. Owens that "as a matter of personal convenience I do not wish to prosecute."

Assistant State's Attorney Hervey G. Machen added that Simms has to return Monday to the Canal Zone where he is employed by the Marine Division of the Panama Canal.

However, O'Connor, who is attached to the Tirteenth Precinct and lives at 9506 2d ave., Berwyn, Md., remains suspended from the Washington police force.

Police Supt. Robert J. Barrett said Lieut. John O. Hiter, night inspector who is investigating the O'Connor case, had not yet completed his report.

Simms was said to have been slugged with a blackjack in Berwyn last Tuesday between 3 and 4 a. m. After charges were dropped yesterday, he refused to discuss the circumstances.

"It doesn't really mater," he said. "I don't feel I should make a statement as to what happened."

Barrett Orders Parking Checkup

Vehicle operators were warned by police yesterday to check up on their parking habits in such spaces as loading zones and driveways.

Superintendent Robert J. Barrett issued a directive to all commanding officers announcing a campaign starting Monday against "public space" parking violations. There are "numerous cars parking on public space all day nearly every day," he said.

Commercial vehicles abusing loading zone privileges will be checked, as will private cars illegally parked in driveways between the curbstone and the building line in residential areas.

Starting Monday, operators will be given one week "to make necessary changes or adjustment" in their habits to comply with public space parking regulations. After that, warning notices will be given violators for one week. Thereafter traffic violation notices will be issued to offenders.

Officer Breaks Wrist

Response to a false burglar alarm at Prince Georges Bank & Trust Co. in Hyattsville yesterday resulted in a broken right wrist for County Police Pvt. William Wiseman.

Wiseman slipped in mud at the rear of the building, breaking his wrist in the fall. After treatment at Leland Memorial Hospital, Riverdale, he returned to duty.

The alarm was caused by a short circuit, police said.

Arlington Taxi Ordinance

Albert A. Carretta, a member of the Arlington Public Utilities Commission, has been designed by the commission to study the county's existing taxicab ordinance with a view toward possible revision.

Under the PUC proposal, Carretta's recommendations will be included in a report to be prepared by the commission for the Arlington County Board.

Gets 90 Days in Jail

Julian O. Finneyfrock, 21, of near Rockville was sentenced to 90 days in jail yesterday following conviction on hit-run, reckless driving, and drunken driving charges. In Rockville Police Court he was also fined $24 for driving with an inadequate muffler and inadequate brakes. The charges grew out of traffic accident last January 25 near Rockville.

Prince Georges Maps

A map of the master plan of parks and parkways in Prince Georges County and another showing election districts and incorporated communities of the county may be obtained at the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission offices in West Hyattsville, it was announced yesterday.

Jewelers Forfeit $300

The Franc Jewelry Co., Inc., 627 7th st. nw., yesterday forfeited $300 collateral on a charge of violation of the District insurance regulations.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark King said the store, which has no license to sell insurance, had advertised that it would issue certificates insuring the articles purchased there against theft, damage, loss, etc., for a year after their purchase.

Mrs. Merton's Rites to Be On Saturday

Funeral services for Mrs. Minnie Sullivan Merton, 89, who died Wednesday at Mount Vernon Sanitarium, will be held at 1 p. m. Saturday at Hines funeral home, with the Rev. George J. Cleveland, canon of Washington Cathedral, officiating.

Mrs. Merton, who lived with her daughter, Mrs. Oliver Hoyem at 3000 Connecticut ave. nw., was the sister of the late John Taylor Sullivan, Shakespearian actor, who with his wife, Rose Coghlan, was well known to theatergoers in the 1890's.

She was, before her marriage to the late Millar Merton, an official of the Calumet and Hecla Mining Co., a teacher of drama at the Edna Chaffee Noble School in Detroit.

Besides Mrs. Hoyem, she is survived by another daughter, Mrs. C. L. deVries of Pontianak, Borneo, and a son, John B. Merton, 3018 Porter st. nw.; a brother, Dr. Edward T. Sullivan, retired rector of Trinity Episcopal Church, Newton Center, Mass., and a sister, Mrs. Edward Earl Stimson of Detroit.

START OF A NEW LIFE—Janis Legers, his wife, Emma, and their daughter, Elga, 16, who arrived here yesterday from Latvia, look over their new homeland. They are sponsored by Mr. and Mrs. Jouett Shouse of 1916 F st. nw. They will work on the Shouse farm

2 Latvian DP Families Arrive To Make Home in D. C. Area

Two Latvian families—part of the 549 displaced persons who reached New York Tuesday aboard the SS Marine Jumper—arrived here early yesterday, tired but happy that their trip from Europe was over.

The Spurin family, Arturs, his wife, Lilija, and their daughters, Dzintra and Alja, arrived at the home of their sponsor, Albert Clarson, 419 Brandywine st. se., at 3 a. m. They came from the ship to Washington by train.

Yesterday they had just one word for every new sensation—"wonderful." The food, orange juice and bacon and eggs for breakfast were wonderful. So were the store windows, the people, the city. But always the food. It was unbelievable, so much and so good.

Arturs Spurin will work as a caretaker on a large Georgetown estate. His wife, a former school teacher, hopes to be able to teach again when she becomes an American citizen. The children will soon begin school.

Janis Legers, his wife Emma, and 16-year-old daughter, Elga, reached the city at midnight. Their sponsor, Mrs. Jouett Shouse, met them at the pier in New York and drove them to Washington.

His home was destroyed during the war, Legers said, brokenly, and his family scattered.

With his wife and daughter, he looks longingly at good food, but even now their stomachs are not accustomed to rich fare.

The Russians taught Janis the blacksmithing craft and on the Shouse's rolling Wolf Trap farm, near Vienna, Va., he'll have an opportunity to use his skills.

Already he knows something of the geography of his new home State. He has read about the soil and the farms and has kept in touch with some Latvian families who preceded him here. He began his studies when he learned Virginia was to be his new home.

The families made up part of the ninth shipload of DPs who arrived in the country under the 1948 Displaced Persons Act.

Mrs. Orton Dies; Funeral On Saturday

Mrs. Helen D. Orton, 70, widow of the scientist, Dr. William Allen Orton, died yesterday at her home in Berwyn, Md. She had been ill for several years.

Mrs. Orton was born in Minnesota and came to Washington as a child. She was a graduate of Central High School. In 1903 she was married to Dr. Orton who was then chief of the Bureau of Plant Industry, United States Department of Agriculture. He later became director of the Tropical Research Foundation, a position he held until his death in 1930.

Mrs. Orton was at one time a statistical editor in the Department of Agriculture. With her husband she had traveled extensively in this country and abroad.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Alberta Jarvis, Ontario Apartments, 16th st. and Columbia rd. nw., and Mrs. Alice Bruen, 600 Cedar st., Takoma Park, D. C., and four grandchildren. Also surviving is her sister, Mrs. A. F. Woods, Berwyn, Md.

Funeral services will be held at noon Saturday at the Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Col. Ehrling A. Bergquist

Funeral services for Col. Shriling L. Bergquist, 43, commanding surgeon of Strategic Air Command, Offutt Air Force Base, Omaha, Nebr., will be held at 1 p. m. today at the Fort Myer Chapel. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Colonel Bergquist died Saturday at Offutt Air Force Base of injuries received in an aircraft accident.

During World War II he served as surgeon of the Troop Carrier Command in Europe and was in charge of air evacuation at the time of the Normandy landings.

A native of Minneapolis, Minn., he received his doctor's degree from the University of Minnesota. He was commissioned a first lieutenant in the Medical Corps in July, 1929, and held ratings of flight surgeon and aircraft observer (Medical).

He was a graduate of the Army Medical School, the Medical Field Service School and the School of Aviation Medicine and was a member of the American Medical Association and the Aero-Medical Association.

G. Harrison Smith

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 17 (AP).—G. Harrison Smith, 68, retired industrialist of Toronto, Canada, died today.

He was a former president of Imperial Oil Co., president of International Oil Co. of Canada, a director of Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, director of General Electric, director of the Royal Bank of Canada, and director of the Imperial Life Insurance Co. of Canada.

Percy P. Davis Dies; Safeway Chain Official

Percy P. Davis, retail operations manager for Safeway Stores Washington zone, died yesterday on his forty-seventh birthday in Doctors Hospital after a hemorrhage.

Mr. Davis

Mr. Davis, who lived at 2800 Woodley rd. nw., had appeared in perfect health until he became ill Monday, his wife said.

A native of Oakland, Md., he came to Washington about 25 years ago to work with the grocery chain. Starting as a meat clerk, he rose to his present post seven years ago. He was a member of the Board of Trade and the Congressional Country Club.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Marion W. Davis, he is survived by two brothers, Maurice E. Davis and Donald L. Davis, both of Oakland.

Funeral services will be held Sunday at 2 p. m. at the W. W. Deal funeral home, 4812 Georgia ave. nw. Burial will be in George Washington Memorial Park Cemetery.

Charles H. Nuthall

Charles H. Nuthall, 44, an electrician for the Washington Terminal Co. for the past 22 years, died unexpectedly early yesterday at his home, 1814 18th st. se.

Mr. Nuthall

Mr. Nuthall, a native of Washington, is survived by his wife, the former Christine F. Matthews of Washington, and a daughter, Barbara Jean, 16. Also surviving is his mother, Mrs. Wilhelmina Nuthall of Brentwood, Md.; two brothers, Eugene Nuthall of Washington and John Hammett Nuthall of Tacoma, Wash., and two sisters, Mrs. Anna Scanlon of Washington, and Mrs. Wilhelmina Richardson, Mount Rainier, Md.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. Monday at the Chambers funeral home, 517 11th st. se. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

One on the Aisle—

Unusual Conflict In Whaling Film

By Richard L. Coe

WHILE IT'S A MITE long and perhaps a trifle placid for those who've become accustomed to overstuffed action, "Down to the Sea in Ships" strikes me as a good picture. Its story is well written and the cast headed by Richard Widmark, Lionel Barrymore and Dean Stockwell is fine.

But then I'm a pushover for an honest sea picture and I'm the type that tingles when a voice from the crow's nest shouts, "She blows!" Yet, this is a whaling story, and though it takes the boys a while to get down to the sea, get there they do. They wind up flattened against an iceberg, but you don't have to put up with any mutiny nonsense nor do you have to ponder how that beautiful girl happens to be on the ship.

There are no girls in this one, no love interest whatever, to which this constant moviegoer is inclined to cry "Amen." By a coincidence, neither "Command Decision," at the Capitol, nor "Down to the Sea in Ships," at the Palace, has a girl in view. Movies like these two are like Capital Transit streetcars; you wait for them forever, then, bang, along come two at a time. (I am neither a confirmed taxi rider nor a misogynist, but I do like variety.)

If you're a bit long in the tooth, you may remember another "Down to the Sea in Ships," a 1923 release in which Clara Bow first attracted attention. This story by Sy Bartlett has nothing in common, apparently, with the first, except the title. That, by the way, comes from Psalm 107, verse 23—"They that go down to the sea in ships and occupy their business in great waters."

"DOWN TO THE SEA IN SHIPS," 20th Century Fox release produced by Louis D. Lighton. Screen play by Sy Bartlett and John Lee Mahin from a story by Bartlett. Music by Alfred Newman. Photography by Joe MacDonald. Directed by Henry Hathaway. At the Palace.

Two Men and a Boy

The business in this case is whaling. Lionel Barrymore is a New England captain of the late '80s, longing to inculcate the family whaling spirit in his fatherless grandson, Dean Stockwell. The old grandfather is ailing and his company insists that a young master go along this trip as mate, Richard Widmark.

The story is concerned with the relationship of these three. The boy always has idolized his grandfather, a crusty salt who has no use for the book learning of his first mate. But in a pinch, the mate proves to have more heart than the old man, who's always gained his crew's respect by his stern code of duty. This switches the boy over to the viewpoint of the younger man and it takes some stern courage on the grandfather's part to regain the lad's respect.

As you see, this is many cuts above the usual story line of sea pictures. It benefits from skilled writing in the screen play by Bartlett and John Lee Mahin and in the excellent acting of its principals.

Barrymore drops most of those mannerisms that have dulled his performances in recent years. He gets his teeth in the character with grand effect and, for an elderly man whose health is none too strong, gives a performance that will be remembered as one of his best. It's a real triumph for the elder Barrymore and in it you see a true actor at work.

Widmark, Stockwell Score

Widmark, too, is fine, and it's good to see Twentieth Century give him a sympathetic role at last. His first mate is forthright, easy-going, and let's hope the moviegoers who take pictures like dope don't insist he go back to totin' a rod.

Young Stockwell, who's 11, is certainly the most consistently likable youngster in pictures. His boyish, gentle face reflects with remarkable ability the struggle going on the youngster as he reacts to the two men who are his mentors.

Henry Hathaway, the director, deserves praise for sticking to the character of his story, even though he has gone to elaborate pains to develop his situation before taking off on the Pride of Bedford. It's meant running the risk of displeasing both those who must have Romance with their celluloid and those who like blood, murder and violence every minute. Neither group will go for this picture, but if you're in neither category, I think you'll enjoy "Down to the Sea in Ships."

GOODBY TO BEDFORD—Dean Stockwell and Richard Widmark set off in the whaler, "Pride of Bedford," for the hunting waters of the wide world. The scene is from "Down to the Sea in Ships," at the Palace

Noisier Than Mickey Mouse

Herd of Prehistoric Monsters Very Active at the Columbia

By Orval Hopkins

A MOVIE called "Unknown Island" and some other items opened yesterday at the Columbia Theater, and I spent the better part of two hours there checking the lot. It was warm and pleasant in the theater and it beat walking the streets. Still, I could have been at home rehearsing a television act I'm preparing in which I fit square pegs into round holes (I haven't mastered this yet but I figure it'll kill 'em when I do). Which is to say things are kind of tough up at the Columbia.

The feature is a preposterous number in the "Lost World" tradition which only adds up to an overwhelming margin of proof that no matter how much noise you make and how many layers of paint and canvas you use, you can't create a credible prehistoric monster for the movies.

It also proves some other things, such as that Robert T. Shannon and Jack Harvey, who wrote the screen play, Albert Jay Cohen, who produced, and Jack Bernhard, who directed, should be in some other line of work. The actors are not exactly guilty, because the—Well, yes they are, too. The acting is terrible.

Uncharted Island

It's about a young girl, her young man, a drunken sea captain, a blond giant who starts out as a rum-ridden wastrel and winds up getting the girl, and some other people who are stuck in this morass probably at a low rate of pay. They all go to an unchartered island, where they encounter some completely implausible "prehistoric" creatures which either scoot about as if they were on tracks or lumber unsteadily like men on stilts, which they probably are. There are one or two arguments over the girl, a rather unlikely occurrence considering her mostly uninviting attitude and appearance, one bad fight—it looked to me as if one good featherweight could have handled both the antagonists simultaneously with ease—and a simply tremendous amount of noise.

Philip Reed plays the young man who loses the girl. He looks an awful lot like Tyrone Power and is an even worse actor. Virginia Grey plays the girl, Barton MacLane the sea captain and Richard Denning the blond, muscled party who wins the lady. They all ought to be given a large number of demerits for this one.

"UNKNOWN ISLAND." Film Classics release produced by Albert Jay Cohen. Screen play by Robert T. Shannon and Jack Harvey from an original story by Shannon. Photography by Fred Jackman, jr. Directed by Jack Bernhard. At the Columbia.

Also a Cartoon

There also is a Mighty Mouse cartoon and I can't for the life of me think what aberrant imagination conceived this idea or what misdirected energy keeps the thing going.

In addition there's a Lew Lehr short remarkable for the fact that Lehr employs the hoary joke about the two people who have been holding hands for 30 years because if they let go they'd kill each other. I didn't think anybody would have the nerve.

Even the newsreel is a lifeless, innocuous display. I'm sorry, but there ain't a bright spot on the whole bill.

Pfc. Vigderhouse

The body of Pfc. Norman Vigderhouse, 24, who was killed in Italy in 1945 after having been wounded twice previously in the North Africa campaign, will be reburied this afternoon in Ohev Sholom Cemetery.

The son of Mrs. Mary Vigderhouse, 4811 4th st. nw., Private Vigderhouse was born here and was graduated from Roosevelt High School. He later worked for the United States Housing Authority until he entered the service in July, 1942.

Survivors, in addition to his mother, include his brother, Nathan, and three sisters, Lillian, Mildred and Naomi, all of whom live with their mother. Services preceding the reburial will be held at 11 a. m. in Danzansky's funeral home, 3501 14th st. nw.

Maj. Samuel A. Syne

Reburial services for Major Samuel A. Syme, 42, who died in Algiers in 1944 while on a mission for Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, jr., will be held at 2.30 p. m. in Arlington Cemetery.

The husband of Mrs. Martha B. Syme, 6800 45th st., Chevy Chase, Maj. Syme practiced law here and also taught the subject at Benjamin Franklin and National Universities.

He was a graduate of Central High School, Virginia Military Institute, Harvard University School of Law, and National Law School. His father, the late Conrad H. Syme was corporation counsel here of the District for eight years during the Wilson administration.

Major Syme's survivors include his wife and son, Samuel A. Syme, jr., his mother, Mrs. Conrad H. Syme, Harrodsburg, Ky., and a brother, Col. Leander D. Syme, 3719 Windom pl., nw.

Pfc. Ernest L. Crispell

Pfc. Ernest L. Crispell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Crispell, 3300 Otis pl., Mt. Rainer, Md., was killed July 21, 1944 in New Guinea. A native of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., he came here with his family in 1940 and was employed by the Amoco Gas Co. His wife Marian, now lives in Rhode Island. Reburial services for Private Crispell will be held at 2 p. m. in Arlington Cemetery.

Also to be reburied at 2 p. m. in Arlington is Lieut. Casimir L. Bigos, USN, who was killed in 1945. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Christine W. Bigos, 1415 Oak st. nw.

Cleveland Bans Ads With Bias

Cleveland, Feb. 17 (AP).—This city's large daily papers announced today they would ban certain help-wanted and situation-wanted advertisements containing mention of race, religious creed, color, national origin and ancestry.

The Cleveland Newspaper Publishers Association, whose members include the News, Plain Dealer and Press, adopted this policy:

"Member publishers agree that they will not accept male or female help or situation wanted advertising which contains references to race, religious creed, color, national origin and ancestry. This includes employment bureau advertising, but does not include help or situation wanted advertising for domestic help in private homes or advertising for private personal services."

In a concurrent statement, the Cleveland Committee on Employment Practices said it was asking suburban weekly and foreign-language newspaper publishers to adopt a similar policy.

East, West Reach Accord on Data To Swell Trade

Geneva, Switzerland, Feb. 17 (AP).—An East-West agreement was reached today on exchange of information to spur trade on both sides of the iron curtain.

This was accomplished at the 25-nation European Trade Conference sponsored by the United Nations.

The Communist bloc agreed to use import estimates of the Organization for European Economic Cooperation (OEEC) as a basis for discussing what the Communist countries could sell to the west.

This list will be matched against one giving the potential exports of the eastern countries and the western machinery they estimate will be required to raise their production.

The conference was said to be making good progress.

Restaurant Sued By Hazel Scott And Rep. Powell

Spokane, Feb. 17 (AP).—Pianist Hazel Scott and her congressman husband filed a $50,000 damage suit today against two Pasco, Wash., restaurant owners they accuse of racial discrimination.

The action was filed in Federal Court by Miss Scott and her husband, Representative Adam Clayton Powell, jr., of New York. Both are Negroes. Harry and Blanche Utz, operators of the restaurant, were named defendants.

The complaint alleged Miss Scott was refused service at a lunch counter in the restaurant "without any reason whatsoever except that she was a Negro."

This was done "in violation of the civil rights of the plaintiff as defined by the Constitution of the United States and the laws of the State of Washington," the complaint said.

Volume, Net Of State Loan Set New Tops

By S. Oliver Goodman

New records for volume of business and earnings were reported yesterday by Davis Weir, president of State Loan & Finance Corp., whose head offices are in Washington.

Weir

Net income totaled $416,134 in 1948, equal after preferred stock dividends to $1.93 a share on Class A and B common stocks. This compared with 1947 net of $313,809 or $1.31 a share on A and B stocks if the same amount of preferred had been outstanding. Late in 1948, the company offered for public sale an issue of 60,000 shares of $25-par convertible preferred stock.

Loans made in 1948 aggregated $16,941,113 and borrowers numbered 71,999. This compared with 1947 volume of $13,984,408 to 62,926 borrowers. Loans receivable at the end of 1948 amounted to $9,682,982, an increase of $2,579,172.

Gross operating revenues last year were $2,225,420, against $1,639,338 in 1947.

State Loan & Finance, founded in 1930, engages primarily in the personal finance business, but also purchases a small amount of installment sales contracts. As of December 31, 1948, it operated 24 loan offices in 8 States.

Commenting on the Federal Reserve Board credit curbs, President Weir said that so far such limitations had had little effect on the company's business, "as results for the past year have shown.

FIDUCIARIES: Procedure to be followed in establishing a common trust fund will be discussed Wednesday night at a dinner meeting of the fiduciaries section of the District Bankers Association. Principal speaker will be T. Wesley Matthews, vice president of the Girard Trust Co. in Philadelphia. B. Bruce Frantz, section chairman, will preside at the session in the Burlington Hotel.

AIB BANQUET: Reservations for 1260 persons have been made to the annual banquet Saturday night of the Washington Chapter of the American Institute of Banking in the Mayflower. Greetings from the parent organization will be conveyed by Hartwell F. Taylor, AIB vice president and a Richmond banker. Among expected guests will be Secretary of Treasury John W. Snyder; Comptroller of Currency Preston Delano; Maple T. Harl, president of Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.; Lawrence Clayton, member of the Federal Reserve board of governors, and John R. Steelman, President Truman's aide. As announced previously, principal speaker will be Frank M. Totton, vice president of the Chase National Bank of New York.

NET UP SHARPLY: The Home Insurance Co., largest fire insurance firm in America, reported net income after taxes amounted to $10,881,956 last year, compared with $4,692,390 in 1947. Because of the consolidation last year of 10 affiliated fire-marine insurance companies with Home, the figures for the two years are not strictly comparable. Earned premiums were $132,335,796, an increase of 32 million over 1947.

Solution to Home Overpricing Key to Normalcy, Meyer Says

(Special from the Miami Herald)

Key West, Fla., Feb. 17.—Solution of the basic problem confronting the Nation's residential construction industry today would provide a key to the ticklish job of effecting a smooth transition from inflation to a more normal condition, in the opinion of Eugene Meyer, former head of the Federal Reserve System.

The housing industry's big problem, Meyer said in an interview, with the Miami Herald, is overpricing. Building materials and construction costs today run far higher than the prices that can be paid by those who need homes.

Meyer, chairman of the board of The Washington Post, cited a recent statement by Leon Keyserling, vice chairman of President Truman's Council of Economic Advisers, that prices of houses are in "unworkable relationship" with present buying power of the masses, and observed that a practical readjustment of the relationship is of utmost importance at the present time. He emphasized that such "maladjustments" help start depressions and that instability of the housing industry has contributed significantly to the boom and bust cycle throughout the history of the American economy.

Meyer recalled that the stock market crash of 1929 was heralded by a slump in the construction of new homes.

"Other types of biuldings were booming up to the very eve of the crash," he said, "but residential building began to decline in 1928."

The actual building of homes, he pointed out, not only creates a great demand for lumber, cement, steel and bricks, but also provides a big market for plumbing fixtures, wiring and electrical items, furniture and other household equipment. The installation for sewers, construction of new streets and laying of water lines are also big items.

Meyer would not speculate on the economic future just ahead or suggest an answer to the problem of bridging the gulf between the current cost of homes and the amount buyers can afford to pay. But he was emphatic in urging that the problem be tackled without delay.

Asked for comment upon the situation facing the Democratic administration, he observed that the need for keeping prices from falling too low was not a subject of debate in the pre-election campaigning. "The Administration campaigned on a program to fight inflation, only to find itself up against a different situation—the possibility of sharp declines in prices and business volume and increased unemployment."

7 Plead Innocent On Rape Charges At Martinsville

Martinsville, Va., Feb. 17 (AP).—Seven men were brought under heavy police guard into city police court here this afternoon and ordered held without bail for action of the Martinsville Circuit Court grand jury on charges of rape.

All seven entered pleas of innocent.

The court heard the 32-year-old complaining witness tell in detail that she was attacked January 8 "10 or 12 times—I couldn't count them" after she was seized in East Martinsville as she walked along the Danville & Western Railroad track. The defendants are Negroes, the woman white.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

BILL VEECK'S consecutive streak for getting his name in the papers has now extended to 11 days, an off-season record for a club owner. The guy apparently counts that day lost when yon descending sun goes to press without recording a new Veeck episode.

He commanded a press conference almost a fortnight ago when he announced a salary showdown with Bob Feller, and the bigger story was that Feller walked out, the next day, dissatisfied. But Veeck was not caught with his plans down. He summoned the press a couple of days later for the signing of Lou Boudreau.

POVICH

Moving to New York for the baseball writers' dinner before the week was out, Veeck made news in another salary discussion with Feller the day before the banquet festivities. And that night he telescoped his own headlines by brazenly telling the assembled baseball dignitaries, including the Yankees' owners, that Joe DiMaggio deserved a $100,000 salary.

Back to Cleveland went Veeck to stage the newsworthy Feller signing amid a battery of cameras, including the television, and a tangled maze of radio recording lines. And the next day there was news of Veeck again, from Puerto Rica, of all places.

HE HAD FLOWN, meanwhile, to the Caribbean and signed a colored shortstop named Art Wilson, and there was a genuine enough piece of news, but the story didn't end there. The next day Veeck made headlines out of New York, where the Yankees unloosed a loud beef against him.

The Yankees claimed publicly that Veeck had pulled a fast one—that he had filched Wilson from them after they bought his contract from the Birmingham Barons, a colored club. They were going to cite him before Commissioner Chandler, the Yankees announced, and described Veeck's mission to Puerto Rica as unethical.

Whereupon Veeck extended his streak in the public prints by not only defending his actions, but announcing he might sue the Yankees for defamation. He didn't like that word "unethical," he said, and was quite indignant. However, that controversy lasted only until Veeck was plunged into something spicier.

HE FOUND HIMSELF the object of attack in the Cleveland City Council, where one councilman quarreled with the mere $155,000 the city gained in rent last season while the Indians were drawing 2,600,000 customers. Veeck's lavish expense and entertainment account was put under fire.

That was meat for Veeck, who promptly slapped the inquisitive councilman down with the observation that his private business was none of the council's business, and carved new headlines for himself. And there is no sign yet that Veeck is running out of newsworthy subject matter. He has yet to talk salary with Gene Bearden, the pitcher who won the pennant and the World Series for the Indians last year, and wants a lot more of the Indians' money.

Meanwhile, with the Yankees mad at him, Veeck has served the purpose of prodding the Yankee organization out of its traditional smugness and for that he can be applauded. Apparently it has been deliberate on Veeck's part, starting with his praise for Bucky Harris after the Yanks fired him, and punctuated by the boast that his Indians would win the pennant by 10 games.

THERE IS NO SIGN that Veeck's public relations have suffered. In Cleveland he is still the messiah who brought a pennant to the Indians. He transformed that hinterland town into the capital of the baseball world, and it was no accident. He built up both a ball team and high public interest in it with his shrewd public sales of goodwill toward the Indians.

Cleveland fans can do no wrong in Veeck's view. He gave a night for one of 'em, you remember. The only incentive he needed was for the fan, Joe Early, to request it. Early was wearied of nights for favorite ballplayers, suggested a testimonial to a fan, and got one for himself, plus $30,000 worth of household effects and a cow.

And there was the day when Veeck, sitting in the press box, saw one of his special police wrench a baseball out of the fist of a kid who had the temerity to grab it off the field. Veeck writhed at the cop's action. "Send that kid an autographed ball," he ordered one of his flunkies, "and maybe we ought to fire that cop."

Firemen and Police Clash Sunday in Bowling Feature

An added boost will be given to The Washington Post bowling tournament Sunday at Lucky Strike alleys where three teams from the Metropolitan Police Department and the Fire Department will clash in singles, doubles and team matches.

Manager George Burns of Lucky Strike announced that all proceeds will be turned over to the tournament fund. Competition will start at 2 p. m., and Police Chief Robert J. Barrett and Fire Chief Clement T. Murphy will be asked to compete in a special match. Proceeds from the tournament go to the Police Boys Club.

One of the most spectacular scores in the tourney thus far was posted at Brookland by Sam Shreve, little Winchester Packard duckpinner, who fired up a 470 from a 437 gross set and a 33 handicap. Sam had games of 144, 137, 156. He hopes to better this score next week when his team tackles Hutchinson Furniture in a Men's Major District League game at Greenway. Bill Maurer of Western Electric League, had a 350-99—449.

Kalorama, newest of the District's alleys, was boasting about the 350-114—464 which Carson Smith, of the Mayflower Hotel League, shot. George Dane, with 361-78—439, showed the way to Treasury Men's League participants.

At Hyattsville, C. C. Smith of the Industrial League, has the top score with 372-78—450.

Bob Newberry's 396-63—459 and R. F. Springer's 366-90—456 in the Government Insurance League proved tops at Lafayette. Among the women participants Estelle Baxter, with 369-45—414, and Mary Garraber, 331-75—406, were outstanding, each rolling with the Justice Department.

At Columbia, Bob Becker had 337-78—435; Bob Hart, 349-81—430, and E. Jennison, 344, 75—419, all of the Knights of Columbus League.

Almas Temple had something to rave about, a 440-33—473 turned in by Joe Cicala, of the Almas Men's League. Walter E. McGaw, jr., rolling in the same circuit, pitched in a 383-48—431, while among the women Juanita Mowbray of the Continental Life Insurance League shot 352-72—424. In the Soldiers' Home League, Bill MacDonald had 366-69—435.

Chevy Chase Ice Palace continued to set the entry pace. Already the total has passed the 600 mark there.

'Super' Ice Champ

Dick Button Sensational, Keeps Title

Paris, Feb. 17 (AP).—Nineteen-year-old Richard Button of Englewood, N. J., reaffirmed his men's figure skating supremacy today by winning his second straight world championship.

The young Olympic gold medalist, unbeaten in two years on the ice, gave a spectacular performance of skating grace and skill in the free-style events to gain the crown without serious opposition.

Ede Kiraly of Hungary finished second and Edi Rada of Austria, the European champion, third in the final standings.

The United States made a good all-around showing in adidtion to Button's victory. James Grogan of Oakland, Calif., was fourth. Hayes Allen Jenkins of Akron, Ohio, and Austin Holt of Berkeley, Calif., finished six and seventh, respectively.

Button's triumphant exhibition followed opening exercises in the women's division which saw an upset threatened.

Miss Pawlik Ailing

The point system based on each judge's rating of the six figures gave the 17-year-old Czech 879.9 points compared with 856.7 for Miss Pawlik, who won the European championship at Milan last month.

Miss Pawlik, who was stricken with appendicitis during the Milan meet, has been under a doctor's care since.

Yvonne Sherman of New York was third in points with 853.2. Helen Uhl of San Francisco was seventh with 798.8 and Virginia Baxter of Detroit was thirteenth with 773.3.

The women engage in the final free skating event tomorrow.

Button's dazzling show drew a tremendous ovation from the throng of 10,000 who crowded around the rink for the men's finals.

"I've never seen anything like it and no one else has either," commented one of the judges afterwards.

Button was credited with five places and 216.38 points compared with 12 places and 209.89 points for Kiraly.

Then followed: Rada, 13 places and 208.41 points; Grogan, 23 places and 208.41 points; Hellmut Seibt of Austria, 26 places and 196.46 points; Jenkins, 29 places and 192.91 points, and Holt, 34 places and 187.65 points.

Button skated onto the ice as the "champ" since his superiority long since has been conceded. But after five minutes covering everything in the skating book with many additions of his own he was acclaimed as "super champ."

'McNamara Night' Caps Jim's Long Career at J. C. C.

The Jewish Community Center, after 23 years of observing his work, last night capped the career of its athletic director, Jim McNamara.

Gala ceremonies marked "McNamara Night" at the 16th and Q sts. club rooms, featured by a brief speech on brotherhood by Father Joseph Gieb, athletic head of Gonzaga High.

Eddie Rosenbloom, executive director of JCC, reviewed McNamara's career with JCC, starting February 22, 1926 when the present building was dedicated.

The affair was climaxed by the presentation to McNamara of a citation, for his "Contribution to young men and women of all faiths," by Harry Wender, president of Argo Lodge of B'nai B'rith. An honorary life membership accompanied the citation.

Score Tied, 48-48, Then Leddy, Brown Get Clinchers

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Georgetown, two-point victor over Maryland in its January meeting, was twice as good last night, downing the Terps by four points in their second and final engagement of the season.

Ray Corley, Hoya set shot artist who scored the last-second basket to beat Maryland last month, once again was the leading light in the Hilltoppers' 56-52 success.

Not only were his 18 points top for the Hoyas but it was his fine floor play in the last few seconds that stemmed a desperate Maryland rally.

Lead Juggled

After being in front by 8 points and trailing by 5, the Terps found themselves all tied up at 48-48 with less than five minutes to play. Vince Leddy broke the deadlock for the Hoyas with a hook shot and the Hoyas nursed the bare advantage the rest of the hectic way.

Johnny Brown actually sewed up the decision for Georgetown when he eluded his guard and stole in for a layup in the last minute as the Terps unsuccessfully tried to break up the Hoya freeze.

Maryland blew hot and cold. In one spurt, before intermission, the Terps scored 10 points while holding Georgetown scoreless and owned an 18-10 lead. But Corley, Tommy O'Keefe, John Mazziotta and company struck again shortly before the buzzer and shot the Hoyas into a 29-25 lead.

Fouls Are Costly

With Spence Wright and Lee Brawley firing from long range, Maryland passed the Hoyas at 41-36 midway the final period and seemed headed for a victory. But Captain John Edwards was expelled on personals and seconds later Guard Charlie Mack followed him to the bench. That was finis for Maryland.

In a frantic effort to overtake the Hoyas, Maryland inserted Eddie Crescenze, 5-foot-four-inch forward, in the last minute of the game, hoping the speedy Crescenze could turn the tide. Crescenze, however, was hand-cuffed by Corley and the two shots he did manage to get off missed the back board by 10 feet.

Army Wants Navy Game in Philadelphia

Although no official decision has been reached on where next year's Army-Navy football game will be player, representatives of the United States Military Academy said yesterday they would prefer for it to be in Philadelphia as usual.

Army and Navy spokesmen told United Press no contract had been signed as yet for the game which will be played on November 26. It was reported from Cleveland that the game would be played there in the big lake front Mufficipal Stadium which could accommodate 90,000 persons for a football game.

At West Point, N. Y., home of the Academy, Coach Earl (Red) Blaik told the United Press that "we would like to keep the game in Philadelphia.

"It is the ideal site for it," he said. "The city is sort of midway between the two schools and the entire cadet corps and midshipmen can attend in a body."

Army spokesmen in Washington said that an official of the Military Academy had telephoned stating that it would be better for the game to remain in Philadelphia where it has been played annually since 1945.

Buffalo, LIU Win in Garden

New York, Feb. 17 (AP).—Little Emilio (Zeke) Sinicola, dark-haired Niagara set-shot artist, dropped in 25 points—including the two winning ones with 15 seconds to go—to give the Buffalo five a 66-64 victory over City College of New York tonight.

A crowd of 15,749 saw Long Island University nose out Seton Hall, 57-54, in the opener of the basketball double-header at Madison Square Garden.

3 Collegiate Ring Champs In Md. Bouts

Two National collegiate boxing champions and three Southern Conference titleholders will strut their stuff tonight as Maryland and Catholic take on Michigan State and The Citadel, respectively.

Out at College Park, the Terrapins hope to rebound from a 6-2 lacing by L. S. U. last week at the expense of Michigan State's Spartans. The first fight on the eight-bout card starts at 8:15 with tickets available for 800 nonstudents.

Michigan State has one of the best collegiate fighters in years in Welterweight Chuck Davey, three-time NCAA champ. The Spartan senior is one of four college boxers to win the Nationals three straight years. He's unbeaten this season and draws Barney Lincoln as his foe this evening.

State's other NCAA king is 125-pounder Ernie Charboneau, who faces Maryland's Al Glass, who's won two of his three bouts this season.

Maryland's best bet for a victory comes in the 155-pound class where Eddie Reider, Southern Conference champ, goes for his third straight conquest and his fourteenth in his last 15 fights in dual meets. His opponent is Charlie Sirhal.

Catholic, The Citadel Are Both Undefeated

When Coach Eddie LaFond's Catholic scrappers trade punches with The Citadel at Brookland tonight starting at 8 o'clock it will be a meeting of two unbeaten college boxing teams.

The invading Bulldogs boast two Southern Conference champs in their line-up. Their best is 165-pound Dale Matthews, son of The Citadel Coach, who's unbeaten in 21 consecutive bouts.

Heavyweight Bill Ohlandt is the other Citadel champion.

Eagles Put On Spurt in Final Period, Win, 44-33

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

For the second time this season, American U. broke up a close game with a fourth-period surge to rout Catholic U., 44-33, last night at Brookland.

However, this Mason-Dixon Conference test didn't follow the pattern of the Eagles' first 58-40 victory. For that matter, it didn't follow any orthodox pattern.

Catholic's Coach Abe (Strategy) Rosenfield didn't substitute after every field goal this time, but he did have his boys play a deliberate stalling game.

At one point in the first half, Capt. Gene Szklarz just held the ball for fully 60 seconds. After passing it once, he regained possession and stood with it for almost another minute.

Such tactics enabled Catholic U. to trail by only 19-17 after the first 20 minutes of inaction. Still playing as if two points were 20, the Cardinals continued to painstakingly set up plays after intermission.

After George Laubacher tied it at 19 and Roy Ishman again put American ahead with a basket, Bill O'Connell dropped a field goal and a foul; Fred Connor a basket and O'Connell another two-pointer to give Catholic a 26-21 lead.

Then Staff Cassell, A. U. coach, introduced a little strategy of his own. He switched from the zone to a man for man defense and it paid off immediately.

Freddie Fling tied it at 28 early in the fourth period and Bob Lamon followed with two set shots and two fouls to break up the ball game.

Garshag and Morris added field goals and then 6-foot-6 Garshag converted four successive foulshots to put CU out of it, 42-28.

American's triumph was its 10th in 12 conference games and made Catholic's mark 7-6 in league play.

Touchdowners Consider Backing Capital Open Golf

The Touchdown Club's board of governors, "fascinated" by the idea of backing the third annual National Capital Open at Prince Georges Country Club, last night appointed a committee to investigate the PGA-sponsored tourney and report back within a week.

Carroll Bird, Touchdown Club president, said the board's failure to take an immediate vote was through no particular objection to backing the meet.

"We merely want to know as much as possible about the thing before we decide," Bird said. "The National Capital Open would be one of the biggest sports events we ever sponsored. We'll have to guarantee about $20,000. The committee appointed is capable of giving us a clear picture of the prospects."

Named to the board's committee were Felix Altrup of Kenwood Country Club; Ralph Shaughnessy, the Touchdowners' statistician; Attorney Francis Kelly, Publisher Mitt Collins and Jack Kenyon.

Prince Georges, which backed the 1947 and 1948 tournaments—and lost money—has objected to the allotted dates of July 1-4.

Trackmen Not Schooled to Starting Gate

AAU Should Guard Against Attracting Horse Players

By Red Smith

NEW YORK, Feb. 17 (NYHT).—No thinking commuter will deny that the only perfect expression of pure amateurism in this country is the Long Island Railroad. After this dandy little gadget, which is operated as a hobby strictly for laughs and with no thought of financial gain, comes a whole string of contenders for second place, some of the leaders being chess, foot racing, cockfighting, yachting and football at Fordham.

There is considerable concern among defenders of the amateur spirit in track and field over the decision to install the starting gate for the National Amateur Athletic Union championships in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night. It is feared that if the sprinters and hurdlers are made to look like horses and run like horses, the carnivals may begin to attract horse players, a notoriously mercenary lot.

Coaches who oppose the innovation do so on more practical grounds. They point out that the decision to use the gate was made so late that there will not be sufficient time to school the runners properly before the meet. Even horses are schooled in the gate before they are allowed to race, and it goes without saying that they are smarter than hurdlers.

THE STARTING GATE, known in the trade as "That Philadelphia Whatsit" because it was invented by Ben Ogden, the Temple coach, is supposed to eliminate false starts.

It consists of a metal superstructure set up across the track with steel arms which reach down and clutch each runner about the shoulders in the manner of a hungry blonde. At the drop of a mink coat, the arms let go. At the same instant, a gun is fired automatically. This serves the double purpose of sending the runners away flying like the victims of a badger game and waking up the judges and other exhibits in the waxworks.

As in the case of the Cassidy Gate at Belmont, it is possible for a powerful or fractious entry to burst out of the gate ahead of time, so it doesn't make a false start impossible. The trick, apparently, is to learn by practice just how much weight to put against the restraining arms.

WHEN THE GIMMICK was tried out in Philadelphia this season, it did Ira Kaplan dirty, or so the New York University sprinter believes. He went into the race with two victories over Harrison Dillard, the Olympic champion, but finished out of the money. He said he leaned too hard against the contraption and it retaliated by trying to fling him onto his face. He broke in a lunge and stumbled after three or four strides.

In the same meet, the good sprinter from Lincoln University, Fred Jones, was locked in his stall, a not uncommon happening in the horse parks. He wasn't exactly left at the post but, as the charts say, he "dwelt."

Even the winners, Dillard and Bill Mathis, didn't like it. Dillard said he was cramped in his kennel and unable to assume his normal stance.

It is, of course, possible that the runners would object to any device which tended to restrain their occupational fondness for larceny. The sprints and the hurdles are the two events which give Mr. Jack Lavelle, the global starter, trouble every

7-10 Choice Lacks Punch Under Drive

Miami, Fla., Feb. 17 (AP).—The once-mighty Armed made the second start in his current comeback attempt today and, as in his recent return to competition, finished third.

The grand old warrior was installed a 7-to-10 favorite over six less illustrious but younger rivals in the $3500 seven furlong fourth race. His stretch try lacked its former zip and the 8-year-old Calumet charger was beaten slightly more than three lengths by Rare Jewel, owned by Gustave Ring of Washington, D. C.

The consistent gray 4-year-old won the dash by three lengths for his fourth straight triumph. A $5 for $2 second choice to Armed, he led all the way. Happy C., representing P. A. B. Widener, 3d, defeated Armed by a head for the place.

Rare Jewel was timed in a fast 1:23 1/5 with a crowd estimated at 15,400 looking on.

Armed, third greatest money-winner in turf history, added a mere $350 to his earnings, which now total $774,400. He has been postward 65 times, with 36 victories, 14 seconds and 7 thirds.

His recent start here was his first in a year, or since he wound up fourth in the 1948 Widener. Trainer Jimmy Jones said after he finished third some days ago that he does not believe the old fellow will be able to win in stakes competition again.

Rare Jewel, with the meeting's leading rider, Steve Brooks, in the saddle, found it an easy matter to outrun his company from the start. Rare Jewel was five lengths on top a furlong from home and there was no need for Brooks to place him under pressure in the final strides.

Happy C. Barley staved off Armed. The Calumet veteran was fifth into the final furlong, where he made up only a couple of lengths with his game but inadequate challenge.

Jones Heads List

Area Youths In National AAU Track

George Washington of Alexandria and Cardozo, Phelps and Dunbar of Washington are among the 110 high schools sending representatives to the National AAU track games Saturday afternoon at Madison Square Garden.

Heading the list of area entries, are G. W.s crack half-miler, Bobby Jones, who's making his first start as a miler, and Cardozo's record-holding 960-yard team.

Jones holds all of the District and Virginia scholastic half-mile records, and last year, clocked off the fastest time for that distance among the Nation's schoolboys. In the 1948 Penn Relays, he ran the mile leg of the sprint medley relay in 4:28.6, excellent time for a high school boy.

Only Joseph Walker is back from the Cardozo relay team which set a national prep school record of 1:42.7 last year. Walker will lead off and will be followed by Earl Strom, Aoysius Jones and George Carter.

Walker, who won the 60-yard sprint last year, will not be allowed to defend his title. No participant this year is permitted to compete in more than one event.

However, Cardozo has entered Vernon Cooper, a promising sophomore in the 60. Other Cardozo entries are James Brown in the 1000 yard run, and Alphonsus Jones, twin brother of Aloysius, in the mile.

Dunbar and Phelps are each entering teams in the 6-lap 960-yard relay. Dunbar's team consists of Raymond Walters and James Lewis, seniors, and Louis Mathis and Lemuel Harrison, juniors. Running for Phelps will be Ray Hill and Elton Salters, seniors, and Bob Lomax and Stanley White, sophomores.

year, worrying him down to a svelte 300 pounds. This is true because the contestants are not only trying to bilk one another but are also endeavoring to outsmart the "Fat Man," as Mr. Lavelle is known in their set.

Every guy who gets down there on his marks hopes he can beat the gun and get away with it. If he can also trick his competitors into disqualifying themselves with two false breaks, that is known as Keno, or Bagel and Lox.

IT WILL BE REMEMBERED that a few years ago in the National Outdoor Championships on Randalls Island, Mr. Lavelle lined up a field of six such Machiavellian connivers that they all managed to disqualify one another, down to the last man. After Mr. Lavelle had thrown 'em all out, authorities flung the rulebook out with them, brought the whole field back and Buddy Young won the race. This made Buddy the most magnificently illegal champion of the games.

On another occasion Barney Ewell made like Citation and had a walkover in the Knights of Columbus games in the Garden because all his adversaries went smart in the head like Rickey and got themselves unfrocked.

In the Boston A. A. games this season, five of the six sprinters broke illegally the first time Mr. Two-Gun Joe Orpen lifted his Roscoe. Bill Dwyer alone remained on his marks, which gave him a horse on the entire field.

This is something sprinters dream about all their lives. Send a good dash man strolling in the moonlight with Linda Darnell, and he'll prattle of nothing but what he'd do if he were the only one in the field without a false start against him.

Dwyer did the natural thing. Next time Orpen's gat went up, he broke in a clamoring rush. Only one schoolboy rose to the lure. The other four entrants squatted placidly on their hunkers, grinning like ghouls. It practically shattered Dwyer's faith in human nature. Sprinter nature, that is.

Catholic Wrestlers Beat Hoyas, 16-14

Catholic University wrestlers, yesterday defeated Georgetown Hoyas, 16-14 at the Brookland gym. Whitey Hubert decisioned Will Klauberg in the deciding match.

Whitey's aggressiveness in rushing Klauberg once carried him completely off the mat and he crashed into the entire Catholic U. Athletic Department; knocking Eddie LaFond, Abe Rosenfeld, Bingo Stant, Jay Turner and Dave Bernstein off their feet.

Navy's Wrestlers To Tackle Lehigh

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 17 (AP).—Smarting from the only blemish on its record in seven years, the Navy wrestling team will come to grips here Saturday with the highly-touted Lehigh University grapplers.

Navy had been pointing for the Lehigh bouts since early season, figuring the Pennsylvanians as the greatest threat to the Middie record of winning the last 50 dual meets in a row.

Armory Test Holding Key To Playoffs

Central and McKinley Tech, ancient rivals, hold the key to the complicated Interhigh basketball race for playoffs when they clash today at the Armory.

Their game is the nightcap of a doubleheader, which opens with Wilson facing Eastern at 3:30 p. m.

INTERHIGH STANDINGS

	W.	L.	Pct.		W.	L.	Pct.
Wilson	8	0	1.000	Roosevelt	4	5	.444
Eastern	6	2	.750	Western	3	5	.375
Central	6	2	.750	Anacostia	3	6	.333
Coolidge	6	3	.667	Ch'berlain	1	8	.111
McKinley	5	3	.625	Bell	0	8	.000

With the playoffs scheduled to open Tuesday night at the Armory, only unbeaten Wilson, which has clinched first place, is assured of its playoff berth.

Eastern and Central, with 6-2 records, and Coolidge, 6-3, and Tech, 5-3, are still haggling over the three remaining spots.

4-Way Tie Looms

If Central wins today's nightcap, the playoff lineup will be completed. Tech will be eliminated, and Wilson, Eastern, Coolidge and Central will be the playoff participants.

However, if Tech upsets the Vikings today, a preliminary playoff for the championship playoff berths will be necessary.

If Tech beats Central and Eastern loses, as expected, the four teams still not sure of their berths, will all be tied for second place with 6-3 records.

In the event Tech wins, and Eastern upsets Wilson, Central, Collidge and Tech will be tied for third, with Eastern and Wilson assured of their berths.

Catholic Twin Bill

Twenty-two scholastic games are lined up for today altogether. Most important, outside of the Interhigh League, are the George Washington of Alexandria-Washington-Lee of Arlington game 8:30 p. m., at G.W., and the Catholic League doubleheader at American U. at 7:30.

G. W., the only unbeaten team in the area, is shooting at its eighteenth straight victory. It can clinch the Northern Virginia championship, too, if it wins tonight.

In the Catholic League bill, St. Anthony's plays Gonzaga, and DeMatha faces Georgetown Prep.

Coolidge Romps

Coolidge romped to a 61-29 victory over Chamberlain in an Interhigh contest yesterday on the winners' court.

Coolidge used reserves freely but Regulars Don Eslin and Jim Barrett, with 16 and 14 points, respectively, took care of the scoring honors.

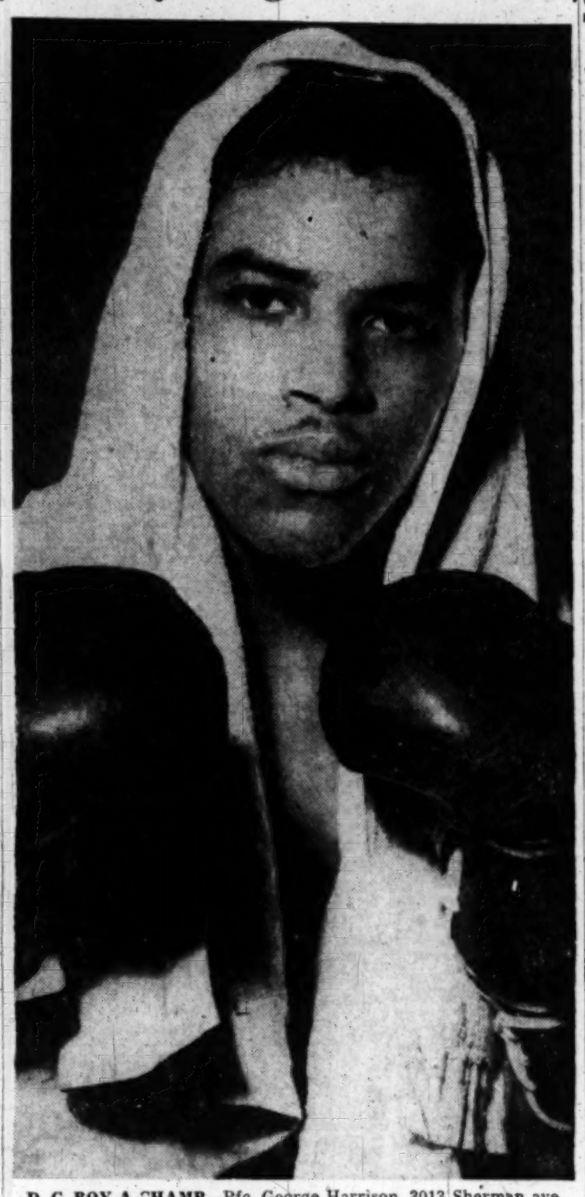
Distinguished Crowds Due At Army Ring Tournament



D. C. BOY A CHAMP—Pfc. George Harrison, 3013 Sherman ave. nw., holds the middleweight boxing title of the Far East Command and will box in the Army World-Wide championships at Fort Myer, February 21-26. Harrison, 19, is stationed at Tokyo

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

You'll need only to glance around the ringside Monday night to realize the truly global scope of the Army's World-Wide boxing tournament at the Fort Myer riding hall.

Ambassadors, ministers and attaches of 12 foreign countries, including even a Soviet rear admiral, have already asked for reservations.

Attendance figures will, no doubt, stagger the local professional fight promoters, who are having trouble luring 1000 people to their shows.

Capacity crowds of 5500 are expected for each of the six fight nights. But there is a bit of a catch . . . there'll be no admission charge.

Free tickets are being distributed to soldiers and civilians at the local Army recruiting stations and area service installations. Those fans who do not get ther tickets in advance will be allowed to occupy the seats not already taken a half hour after the first fight on each night. Starting time each night is 8 o'clock.

The local end of the show is being financed by profits of the Military District of Washington post exchanges and post theaters. Visiting teams are paying their expenses similarly.

Press, radio, and television coverage will almost equal that of the recent presidential inauguration.

The MDW public information department is preparing to accomodate the three major wire services, the local newspapers, Stars and Stripes, Army Times and even a Japanese-American syndicate in Utah, all of which are sending reporters.

In addition, N. B. C. television will flash the finals all over the East and Midwest. One of the radio networks is dickering for coast-to-coast broadcast rights. Armed Forces Radio will beam a blow-by-blow description to servicemen overseas. And the State Department will send radio accounts to Latin America.

Even the four major newsreel companies, Warner, Pathe, Fox and Universal are horning in on the show.

Rubbing shoulders with the enlisted men and civilian spectators will be a distinguished array of congressional and service officials, among them 10 members of the House and Senate Military Affairs Committees, and the generals and flag officers of the Army, Navy, Air Force and Coast Guard.

Wilson Loses To Bridgewater

Hoyas' O'Keefe Ineligible For Next Season, He Learns

Georgetown's Tommy O'Keefe, leading scorer for the past two seasons, learned yesterday he won't be eligible for the Hoya varsity next year.

William H. McCarter, chairman of the eligibility committee of the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference, ruled that his three years of varsity competition at Georgetown will bar him from rurther participation.

As a freshman, O'Keefe attended Notre Dame and was a member of the 1945-46 varsity squad. However, he didn't play in any games and thought he had a fourth year left under wartime eligibility rules.

When he came to Georgetown, O'Keefe switched from a business to an arts course and after June still will need another semester to earn credits for his degree.

O'Keefe, good-looking, 6-foot-1, 175-pound forward, tallied 270 points to lead the Hoyas in 1947-48. This year he's high man again with 222 points in 18 games.

A set-shot artist, O'Keefe, only 20, hopes to be able to break in next year with a BAA team.

St. Albans Wins Soccer Crown

St. Albans clinched the District interscholastic soccer championship yesterday, defeating Priory, 5-0, at Priory.

The victory was St. Albans' eighth in nine games. Leading the scoring was Capt. Dick Sears with two goals. Other scorers included Joe Dibble and John Ellinwood. Kim Bassett and Bill Hobby both were credited with the last goal.

Md. Trackmen Hosts Saturday

College Park, Md., Feb. 17 (AP). Maryland's trackmen open their second annual invitational indoor games here Saturday night against the cream of talent from 11 other Dixie schools.

Led by their outstanding distance runner, Bob Palmer, the Terrapins will be defending the title they won in a 10-team gathering last season.

Chief threat this year, however, is a well-rounded North Carolina unit headed by Bill Albans. A member of the United States Olympic team which went to London last year, Albans has shown capable form in the high jump, broad jump, low and high hurdles and dash events.

Mt. Vernon Drubs Falls Church, 67-38

Using the entire squad, Mount Vernon rolled to a lopsided 67 to 38 victory over Falls Church last night on the Fairfax High court.

The winners led by only 13 points, 33-20, at halftime, but poured it on after intermission.

Turnesa's 66 Leads as 36 Shatter Par

Houston, Tex., Feb. 17 (AP).—Par was broken 36 times today as Jim Turnesa, Briar Cliff, N. Y., led 11 golfers in a mass attack on Pine Forest country club in the first round of the $10,000 Houston open.

Turnesa shaved six strokes off the new 6510-yard course's par 72 to edge George Schoux, San Francisco, and John Palmer, Badin, N. C., by one shot for the first day's leadership.

Thirty-three other players finished below par anad 13 others had par 72's.

Turnesa, who set an all-time tournament scoring record last year when he finished third in the National Open, turned in seven one-under par holes for a 33-33—66. He was in trouble only on the thirteenth green when he missed a put to take a four, one over regulation.

Schoux finished with a 34, 33—67

Tied a stroke behind Palmer and Schoux at 68 were E. J. Harrison, Albuquerque, N. Mex.; Bob Hamilton, Landover, Md.; Les Kennedy, Pawtuckett, R. I., and Cary Middlecoff, Memphis, Tenn.

Eight players were grouped at 69. They were Marty Furgol, Albuquerque; Fred Hawkins, Antioch, Ill.; Chandler Harper, Portsmouth, Va.; Eric Monti, Santa Monica, Calif.; Bob Toski, Northampton, Mass.; Jim Ferrier, San Francisco; Herman Keiser, St. Andrews, Ill., and amateur Doug Ford, Larchmont, N. Y.

Lew Worsham of Washington, D. C., posted a 35, 35—70.

Detroiters Win Sail to Nassau

Nassau, Bahamas, Feb. 17 (AP).—A fresh-water crew from Detroit today won the 184-mile Miami to Nassau sailing race aboard the 55-foot cutter Blitzen.

The Blitzen, owned jointly by Murray Knapp and Ernest Grates, took the lead soon after the fleet of 23—largest in the 11-year history of the race—left Miami Tuesday noon and held it all the way.

In eighth place despite a sheared centerboard was the Caribbee, owned by Carleton Mitchell of Annapolis, Md.

First Brethren Beats Petworth in Overtime

Elson Diddle's field goal gave First Brethren a 37-36 overtime victory over Petworth in the Sunday School League thriller last night at Central High gym. In other games, Calvary Baptist took first lace by defeating Mount Vernon Place Methodist, 35-24, and Epworth Methodist won over First Reformed, 26-21.

Grid Bribers Ask Supreme Court Review

Two figures in the profootball gambling scandal which led to the barring of former New York Giant stars Frank Filchock and Merle Hapes yesterday asked the Supreme Court to review their convictions for bribery, the Associated Press reported.

The men, Harvey Stemmer and David Krakower, were convicted of offering bribes to the Giant players to throw the championship game between the Giants and Chicago Bears after the 1924 National Professional Football League season.

Stemmer and Krakower, both given 5- to 10-year prison terms, appealed from a verdict of the New York Court of Appeals which upheld their convictions.

They contended that the State had illegally used evidence gained by tapping their telephone wires. This, they complained, violated the Federal Communications Act.

New York police said they learned of the attempted bribery after tapping telephone conversations of Alvin J. Paris, an accomplice of Stemmer and Krakower. Paris also was convicted, but did not join in the appeals filed today.

Wire tapping under the New York criminal code is legal, if an affidavit is obtained showing that there are reasonable grounds of securing evidence of a crime.

Stemmer and Krakower argued that several of the tapped calls were made across the State line to Elizabeth, N. J., and that therefore the introduction of evidence garnered by these calls was in violation of Federal law.

The two contended that "State courts can not carve out an exception in favor of themselves" when Federal law lays down a rule.

Joe McCarthy, Once Boss, Aids Hack Wilson Fund

Martinsburg, W. Va., Feb. 17.—Joe McCarthy, manager of the Boston Red Sox, has sent a check for $100 to the Hack Wilson Memorial Fund here, it was revealed by fund sources here today.

The group is attempting to raise approximately $3000 for a stone memorial, with simple inscription giving his name, birth and death dates and some insignia indicating his baseball connection, at his grave in a cemetery here where he was buried last fall following his death in Baltimore.

A letter accompanying the contribution from McCarthy said: "Kindly pardon the delay in forwarding a check for the very worthy Hack Wilson Memorial Fund.

"Hack played for me, as you perhaps know, when I managed the Chicago Cubs, and I was very fond of him. He was a loyal and faithful ball player, and, like many others, had his faults; but nevertheless was loved by all his associates, and his untimely passing was indeed very sad.

"I most sincerely hope the goal will soon be reached."

Lions and Flyers Clash at Uline's

If they could beat anybody, the Washington Lions might play an important role in the American Hockey League championship race as they face the St. Louis Flyers tonight at Uline Arena.

On the outcome of the game hinges a Flyer bid for second place in the Western Division. The St. Louis forces are now in third place, a point behind Cleveland and Pittsburgh, who are tied three points behind the leading Indianapolis Caps.

WASHINGTON: FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1949

CHERRY PIE has become a traditional dish for Washington's birthday, thanks to the Parson Weems fable about young George and the cherry tree

George, With Hatchet, Must Have Been Thinking Of Cherry Pie Like This

By Lucia Brown

Cherries—which bounced into the Washington legend via the imagination of Parson Weems—are now so firmly fixed there that they are the food chiefly associated with the "Father of His Country."

The Parson (who wasn't a parson at all, but a writer of religious tracts and popular biographies) turned out a "Life of Washington" that was chockful of moral lessons. One of these involved sturdy, upright little George in a cherry tree chopping episode. Later historians said there wasn't a word of truth in it. But back in the early 1800's, people ate it up—and we've been eating cherries on George's birthday ever since.

Gingerbread is another food often mentioned in connection with our First President, mainly because his mother, Mary Ball Washington, made it so well. Her recipe has been prized in Virginia for many generations. Nowadays, it even serves as the basis for one of our modern gingerbread "mixes," a well-known brand that carries this favorite Washington food to every village and hamlet of the United States.

But besides these, there are a number of treasured Mount Vernon recipes that have survived the years and are most appropriate for serving on Washington's birthday. In original form, they called for "a handful" of this, "a half peck" of that, and "butter the size of an egg." Sometimes they weren't even that specific, so modern test kitchens have gone to work and written them in an easier-to-follow style.

Here are three of them—for pork chop and apple casserole, sweetbread and oyster pie, and apple fritters. We guarantee you'll find them delectable even if not cooked "over coals in a pewter vessel" or in a kitchen half a block from the house!

CASSEROLE OF PORK CHOPS WITH APPLES

¾ tablespoon bacon fat
2 tablespoons water or cider
5 medium-sized tart apples
Salt

WIPE THE MEAT with a damp cloth. Trim and sprinkle with salt. Heat bacon fat in frying pan until it begins to smoke. Then saute the chops until they are golden brown on both sides. Peel and core the apples and cut into eighths. Lay these sections either under or over the pork chops in a baking dish. Add the water or cider. Cover the casserole and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for 1½ hours. If the apples are dry, it may be necessary to add a little more water during the baking, but if they are juicy they will furnish sufficient liquid. Serve hot from casserole. This recipe serves four persons.

SWEETBREAD AND OYSTER PIE

1 pint oysters
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon flour
½ cup cream
2 egg yolks
Salt and pepper
1 recipe for pie pastry

SOAK SWEETBREAD in cold water 1 hour. Cook 15 minutes and cut into small pieces. Season and simmer oysters in own liquor until edges begin to curl. Melt butter, remove from heat, and add flour. Stir to a paste and add cream and slightly beaten egg yolks. Return to heat and bring to boil, stirring constantly. Add oysters and liquor. Turn into pastry-lined dish, arrange sweetbreads on top, and cover with pastry. Bake for 10 minutes in hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit). Reduce heat to 350 degrees Fahrenheit and continue cooking 10 to 15 minutes. This recipe makes one 9-inch pie.

APPLE FRITTERS

3 medium-sized apples
½ cup brandy
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
1½ cups all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
1 tablespoon sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 egg
2/3 cup milk
Confectioner's sugar

SELECT SOUND APPLES. Peel and core and cut into six equal round slices or in eighths. Place in bowl with cinnamon and brandy and let stand 2 hours. Turn occasionally. Drain well, reserving liquid. Mix and sift dry ingredients and add to well beaten egg alternately with milk. Dip each piece of apple in the batter separately and drop, one by one, into hot fat. Remove them with a skimmer when they are golden brown. Drain on absorbent paper. Dredge with powdered sugar and serve with brandy sauce or sweetened, brandy-flavored whipped cream. This recipe serves six.

Even though we can't be sure George Washington chopped down that tree, cherries bring a bright, appropriate touch to recipes around February 22. Besides, it's officially National Cherry Week, an event planned to coincide with George Washington's birthday. So here's a cherry pie recipe and another for French Cherry Cream.

RED CHERRY PIE

2½ tablespoons granulated tapioca
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon melted butter

About Recipes For Pressure Cooking

Where can I obtain more recipes for pressure cooking? The book that came with mine does not cover very much. J. W. M.

An excellent book on all types of pressure cooking is "Pressure Cooking," by Ida Bailey Allen. (Garden City Publishing Co.) It contains 750 recipes and menus using pressure cooking and can be purchased at most book stores.

Can you tell me how elastic belting is sewed to the tops of shorts or pajama tops? I have tried sewing it with cotton thread, but the first time the belt is stretched out the thread breaks. H. J.

Stretch the elastic belting as far as it will stretch when stitching it onto any nonelastic material. An easy way to do this is to put the elastic and the material to which it is to be attached under the presser foot of the machine. Start stitching meanwhile pulling the elastic so that, where it is attached to the material of the pajamas or shorts, it can be stretched no farther. Once stitched and allowed to return to its original unstretched size, the short and pajama material will have the appearance of having been gathered on the elastic and there will therefore be enough fullness so that the stitches will not break when it is stretched.

I had two small oil paintings

Chicken, Beef, Pork Good Meat Buys

FRYING CHICKEN prices are a "special" with many local stores this weekend, following a drop in the wholesale market. Last week's low retail prices on beef and pork are being maintained fairly widely, too, though the wholesale trend is upward again. Lamb and ham prices are jogging along at about the same levels as last weekend.

BUTTER AND EGGS: Butter is "steady," as the dealers say, but egg prices are "stronger." This weekend's ads show that the price has advanced 3 or 4 cents in some stores, kept about the same in others.

VEGETABLES: The list of plentiful—and reasonable—vegetables doesn't change much these days. Carrots, potatoes, onions, cabbage, kale, eggplant and collards are still included. The spinach crop was hit by recent storms, so it isn't a particularly good buy now. Cauliflower is a little cheaper, broccoli about the same, and both still high. Green beans are plentiful and the price about as usual for this time of year. Lettuce is still high, except where the quality is so poor the stores have to sell it cheaply.

FRUITS: The price on nice D'Anjou pears is reasonable for the time of year. Delicious baked and served with cream or made into a pear pie. Oranges and grapefruit are coming in plentifully from Florida and the prices are still reasonable. Freeze losses on pink Texas grapefruit and California oranges have upped the prices for these.

AMONG MARKET STALLS: Signs of spring on the fish counters are the yellow perch, caught in the Wicomico River, not far away in Maryland. They're fat little fellows with orange fins, and delicious eating. Snails from the French Morocco are also on sale here, a fact of interest principally to French and Italian families. Moroccan "wild onions" are featured at the same stall. They're not really onions, the proprietor says, but a rather bitter root that's boiled, then put up in vinegar for use in salads or baked with roast lamb.

Women's Role in Iran Told

The modern women of Iran, having discarded veils in public, are now trying to get the right to vote, Miss Maleheh Chaghagy said at the Y.W.C.A. World Fellowship luncheon yesterday.

In her talk "A Change Comes for Iranian Women," Miss Chaghaghy compared the restricted life of women in a Moslem country to the strides made today, such as women belonging to social clubs and appearing in public unveiled.

An exhibit of the artistic work of Mme. Choket Chaghaghy, mother of the speaker and a pioneer of women's freedom in Iran, was held following the talk. Mme. Chaghaghy specializes in miniatures, oil painting and "painting by the needle," a form of embroidery which resembles a painting when completed.

Among the guests at the luncheon were Mme. Nasser Lel Molk, Mme. Mazhari and Mme. Ardalan. Mrs. Louis Renfrow was in charge of the program for the luncheon.

Democratic Group to Hear Rep. Douglas

Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas will discuss "You and Your Congress" when she appears as guest speaker at the Democratic Women's National Council's meeting, Monday, February 21, 8:15 p. m., at the Washington Club. The session is open to the public.

Mrs. Esterlene Bell, program chairman, will present the speaker and Mrs. Walter H. Maloney, president, will preside.

Sisterhood Plans Series of Teas

Adas Israel Sisterhood will inaugurate a series of teas Friday, February 18, 1:30 p. m., at the home of Mrs. Joseph Blumenthal, 2012 Klingle rd. nw. The teas will honor members who will serve as hostesses at the sisterhood's golden anniversary slated for March 7 at the Mayflower.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Widow, 60, Wrathfully Reports That Wealthy Man, Prominent in Local Politics, Is Showing Offensive Interest in Her; How Explain It?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: This past year a man of wealth and some prominence in local politics has been staring at me and making every effort to gain my attention. He is a big fat slob, easily in his dotage;—well, it's just too much.

I am a widow, 60, also a grandmother, living in comfortable circumstances, and I have been here just a little over a year. I am still attractive, I dress quietly; I never wear make-up during the day, and almost always I am alone. I never have a male escort; and this old wolf and his "friends" make a point of causing a stir every time they see me.

I can't understand it, for I am sure he knows nothing of my affairs. I live in a small hotel and recently I have been avoiding my favorite restaurant, in order to keep out of his way; but every now and then I meet him in the street and, as usual, he is smiling at me.

She Sent Him Scolding Card

I DISLIKE men; never encourage one; so is there something evil about me that attracts the evil in him? Admiration isn't so offensive; I have been much admired, as most women have; but his behavior I resent. So today I sent him a humorous birthday card, giving him a piece of my mind, and I signed my name.

The whole thing is disgusting to me, especially now, as I have a great deal of family unhappiness to cope with; and I feel the need to discuss my annoyance with someone. So please state your opinion of middle-aged and elderly wolves. E. H.

Shred of Truth in Her Report?

DEAR E. H.: It's a toss-up in my mind, whether to take your complaint literally or examine the possibility that it may be an imaginary grievance. But perhaps there is some of both involved,—a bit of truth and a lot of emotional exaggeration mixed into your report on Mr. Wolf, let's call him.

If he is a prominent local politician, old enough to be in his dotage, it is reasonable to infer that Mr. Wolf was trained in the old-style, glad-handing, baby-kissing, "gallant-to-the-ladies" technique of vote-getting. And having a hearty convivial temperament besides—as witness the fact that he's big and fat, with a jolly manner—it probably became second nature to him to radiate friendly interest in everybody, including strangers.

The prominent politician takes for granted that everybody in his community knows him, and he wants to be noticed and liked. Also, he sees people in terms of "votes," and he is always busy building up his vote-strength. It is instinctive with him to court attention, and he takes hospitable notice of newcomers, wondering who they are and how many votes they might swing his way.

Even when retired from the game, no longer running for office, the vote-getting manner lingers on in many old-school politicians, partly from habit, partly because they still crave proof that they've got power to charm the multitudes. But there is nothing "personal" about their effulgence; they turn it on whoever happens to be "next in line."

Lonely Brooding Fuels Agitation

SO, if Mr. Wolf looked you over with a cordial stare the first time you crossed his path, he probably was acting true to training, yet hardly aware of you at all. But you took it personally, and being lonely, you thought too much about it, then and later, reading ideas into his mind that weren't there. Thus when you saw him again you were defensively keyed up, stiffly self-conscious and secretly expectant, in a nervously interested way, no doubt.

And it may be that he and his friends became aware of your fluster, since strong feeling (even if masked) is apt to communicate itself to the human target; and possibly they've joked about it when you appear. But I am sure they aren't thinking any evil of you; and indeed it may be they aren't paying you any mind at all;—or at least no more than they'd give to any passerby who seemed "pained" at their customary attention-seeking behavior.

It was undignified to send the card, but most people do foolish things occasionally; and mail from strangers is nothing new in a politician's life, so forget about it and forget Mr. Wolf—and find bona fide friends, to keep your head level. M. H.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Of course, children like to be "in on the know." It makes them feel fine when they are trusted with information that is really important. Dad gets a pay raise or a promotion. Mother is made president of a club at the church or elsewhere. Some other interesting thing happens. Too often, in such cases, we parents feel that the youngsters are too small to be told. We may not believe, or we just don't think it is important, that they would be interested.

It may be, too, that we have a kind of false modesty. We feel that we are boasting, perhaps, if we hand on such news. But children in the family deserve to have the joy of sharing the successes that come to their parents just as parents enjoy knowing of their school achievements of their children.

And one need not fear that youngsters will spread news that we don't want talked about. If they understand that it is "family-centered" information, they will be proud of their ability to keep the secret. Try sharing the news. It's a good way of building a feeling of family unity.

Epiphany Church Dinner

The ladies of Chapter 4, Church of the Epiphany, held an old-fashioned fried chicken dinner Tuesday evening in the Parish Hall, and reported a record attendance.

Ask Anne

framed in a natural blond wood to match my limed oak furniture. Should I wax or finish these frames in any way? W. B.

It is not absolutely necessary to finish the frames for appearance, but applying several well rubbed-in coats of paste wax will prevent dirt from becoming imbedded in the wood, give the frame a lustre, and make it easier to keep clean.

Do you know of any place in the vicinity of Washington where I could have yellow hobnail spreads bleached white? They are too bulky to try to do the job myself and I wondered if perhaps you might be able to help me? I. L. W.

Some laundries do this sort of work. One which will do it for you can be reached by calling Woodley 7800.

Can I wash plastic shower curtains and aprons in my electric washer? In washing the aprons, the plastic comes clean with the mere wipe of a cloth, but the thread with which it is sewed does not look clean and I have one apron that is bound with bias binding and this binding is hard to clean. H. J.

If the aprons are put together entirely by stitching and you are careful to wash them only a minute or so in lukewarm water to which mild soap has been added, they should withstand washing in a machine. To be on the safe side, however, a better method would be to lay them flat on a table and us a brush to scrub the stitchings and bindings. If some of the decorations or bindings are stuck on by cement or some other adhesive, I wouldn't suggest any washing method in which they would have to be immersed in water.

Inquiries and contributions to the "Ask Anne" column must be in written form. We regret that time does not permit handling them by telephone. Address letters or cards to Anne, Room 403, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C.

Eric Johnstons Hosts At Party for Daughter

"IT'S DEFINITELY not a debut," said Mrs. Eric Johnston of the cocktail party she and Mr. Johnston gave yesterday for their daughter, Harriet.

Miss Johnston is beyond debut age, was graduated last June from Smith College where she majored in economics, and was with her father on his European trip which produced his recent book, "We're All In It."

Having invited something like 600 guests, the Johnstons decided to give the party in the big brownstone house at 16th and I sts., home of the American Association of Motion Pictures, of which Mr. Johnston is president.

Miss Johnston, with her parents, stood in the drawing room on the lower floor, and from there, their friends wandered through the reception rooms, overflowed into what is called the boardroom upstairs.

Mother and daughter made a handsome pair, Miss Johnston in pale blue satin with floor-length full skirt and a scooped neckline and orchids on her shoulder. Mrs. Johnston's gown was of American Beauty brocade and she, too, wore orchids pinned to her bodice.

Miss Anne Davey of Trenton, N. J., who has roomed with Harriet Johnston at Smith and was with her in Europe last summer, came down for the occasion. And asked to help make the party "go" were Cabinet daughter, Drucie Snyder, Nancy Anderson and Jane Lingo. Also in the young group was Miss Joan Rathvun, whose father, Peter Rathvun, was, until recently, president of RKO.

Here and there were the Mexican Ambassador and Senora de la Colina, the Norwegian Ambassador and Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne, the Netherlands Ambassador and Mme. Van Kleffens and the French Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet with their niece, Mlle. Sophie Meyer.

The Italian Ambassador and Signora Tarchiani were there, and Senator and Mrs. Owen Brewster, Senator Harry Kain from the Johnston's State of Washington; Senator and Mrs. William Knowland, Senator and Mrs. Homer Ferguson, Senator and Mrs. Ralph Flanders, Senator Warren Magnuson, also from Washington State; Senator and Mrs. Claud Pepper, Senator and Mrs. Brien McMahon and California Representative Carl Hinshaw and Mrs. Hinshaw.

Mrs. George Barnett who calls Eric Johnston one of her "boys" because he served under the late General Barnett, Commandant of the Marine Corps, was also a guest, along with the present Marine Commandant, Gen. Clifton Cates, and Mrs. Cates. Others were Gen. and Mrs. Omar Bradley, Gen. W. P. T. Hill, Admiral and Mrs. Harold Stark. Representative and Mrs. Hal Holmes, Representative and Mrs. Henry M. Jackson. Mrs. George Mesta and her sister, Mrs. George Tyson; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Miles Colean, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gardner, their daughter, Joan and their son, Arthur W.

Holding court of her own was Mrs. Ida Ballinger of Spokane, Mr. Johnston's mother. Other members of the Johnston family who were there were Mrs. Miriam Berryhill and Mr. and Mrs. Webster Ballinger, Maj. and Mrs. Edward Keys—she is Mr. Johnston's sister; Mr. and Mrs. William Willard—she's a cousin; Mr. and Mrs. Willis Ballinger, he's a nephew.

And Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Finkenstaedt, Mr. and Mrs. George M. Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hurja, Col. and Mrs. William S. Culbertson and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Pendleton; Mr. and Mrs. Daniel W. Bell, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris, Mrs. English Gordon, Mr. and Mrs. William P. MacCracken, and Mr. and Mrs. James L. Houghteling.

originally designed jewels, Mme. Vassili C. Dendramis, Senora Don Augusto Dillon, Senora Luis Francisco Thomen, Mrs. John R. Steelman, Mrs. Tom Clark, Mrs. Jesse M. Donaldson and Mrs. Charles F. Brannan. The British Ambassador, Franks, the Greek Ambassador, Dendramis, the Euadorean Ambassador, Dillon, and the Dominican Republic Ambassador, Thomen, accompanied their wives.

Others who received with Captain and Mrs. Moran were Mrs. Louis Renfrow, Harry Slattery, Mrs. Claud Pepper, Mrs. James Kem, Mrs. Wiley Rutledge, Hector Aring, Hazel Markel and Margaret Landon, author of "Anna and the King of Siam."

A background of harp music was played by Ruth Inrud Thompson, wife of Dr. Oliver Thompson. Among the guests were the Finnish Minister and Mme. Jutila, Rear Admiral and Mme. Abhakorn, Colonel and Mme. Chirapravati, First Secretary of the Indian Embassy and Mrs. I. S. Chopra and Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Duckham and Mr. and Mrs. P. J. MacFarlan from the British Embassy.

Indian Diplomat Fetes Rama Raus

THE Indian Ambassador and Lady Rama Rau, who have been feted quite steadily since it was announced they would leave their Washington post soon, were honored again last evening at a cocktail party by the First Secretary of the Indian Embassy, Col. Unni Nayar and Mrs. Nayar.

Among the some 200 guests who dropped in at the Embassy Chancery between 6:30-8:30 p. m. were State Department officials, members of the Embassy staff, and members of the Washington press corps.

Westbrooks Entertain For Senator, Mrs. Kefauver

SENATOR and Mrs. Estes Kefauver were the guests in whose honor Col. and Mrs. Lawrence Westbrook entertained at dinner last evening at their home on R st.

Gen. and Mrs. Paul Streitt, Gen. Preston Weathered of Dallas, Tex.; Mr. and Mrs. James M. Barnes, Mrs. Beatrice Chapman of San Antonio, Tex.; Mr. and Mrs. George Vournas and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tyroler.

Mrs. Goff, Mrs. Lomen To Be Honored

MRS. GUY DESPARD GOFF and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lomen will be guests of honor at a late afternoon party today at which Mrs. George C. Thorpe will be hostess. The guests will be chiefly friends of these popular winter visitors.

Morans Are Hosts At Reception

CAPT. and Mrs. Thomas Moran were hosts yesterday at a reception at their home honoring the D. C. Foundation for Rheumatic Diseases.

Yellow flowers filled the spacious rooms and yellow candles lighted the dining table. Mrs. Joseph Elward, president of the foundation, wore a black velvet gown trimmed with white ermine as she received the guests. She was assisted by Mrs. Harry H. Vaughan and Mrs. Gordon R. Young, who later were joined by their husbands, Generals Vaughan and Young.

Lady Franks, wife of the British Ambassador, and Mrs. Max Truitt, headed the tea table. And others who took turns serving were Princess Wan Waithayakon, whose Siamese gown of gold embroidered purple was set off with some of her

Beauty Memo . . . Care of the Hair

NOW that short locks are the order of the day again, more and more women will be taking care of their hair at home instead of going to professional hairdressers.

While such a method is economical, it does not always "pay off" in the long run. Hair that is not properly cared for can get in poor condition within a few months. The woman who does her own shampooing, cutting and permanent waving should acknowledge a responsibility to see that her hair remains healthy.

When being serviced by a beauty parlor, operators can tell you at once what your hair needs—an oil treatment for one condition, special soap to remedy oiliness in another.

But when you do your hair at home there are times when you skip over this extra care. The same old bottle of shampoo rests on the bathroom shelf and you reach for it automatically each time you wash your hair.

To give yourself a complete shampoo, you should examine your scalp carefully. If you notice little white flecks your scalp may be dry and need oil. In this case you should equip yourself with a good hair salve and use it before shampooing, or as directed. Some girls find that warm olive oil rubbed into the scalp the night before a shampoo does an effective job.

If your hair is showing signs of excessive oiliness, you should get some professional hair treatment.

For a successful shampoo, first brush your hair vigorously. Then massage your scalp gently. After that wet the hair according to directions on your bottle of shampoo and rub the liquid into the scalp. Be careful not to use too much soap, a mistake that sometimes causes overdryness of the hair. Rinse, and run in a second lather to make sure the hair is completely clean.

The final rinse is important. If you don't have a special spray, stand under a shower. Just make sure that every vestige of soap is removed, otherwise the hair will remain dull and lifeless.

Take the time to rub and brush your hair until it is almost dry. Then pin up with hairpins, not bobby pins, which have a tendency to break the ends of the hair.

Washington's Favorite Food

2 drops red food coloring
1 recipe plain pastry

MIX CHERRIES and juice with next six ingredients and let stand for 15 minutes. Stir well. Line pie pan with pastry, pour in filling, and cover with top crust. Bake in very hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) and bake about 25 minutes longer. This recipe makes one 9-inch pie.

French Cherry Cream

1 1-pound package of frozen red tart cherries (partially thawed)
2 tablespoons cornstarch
¾ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons lemon juice
2 teaspoons almond extract (vanilla will do)
1 package (3 to 3¼ ounces) prepared vanilla pudding
2 cups milk

THAW CHERRIES in the unopened package. Drain juice from cherries. (If there isn't a cupful of juice, add water to make 1 cup of liquid). Combine cornstarch, sugar and salt in saucepan. Add cherry juice slowly and cook over low heat 10 to 15 minutes or until mixture clears and thickens. Stir constantly. Allow to cool. Add lemon juice and 1 teaspoon almond extract and cherries. Chill. Prepare vanilla pudding with milk as directed on package. Add 1 teaspoon almond extract. Cool and place 3 tablespoons custard in sherbet or dessert dishes. Cover with cherry mixture. This recipe serves six to eight persons.

Hints for Homemakers . . .

A rubber or oilcloth apron comes in very handy on wash day to protect the clean house dress from splashing.

Clothes may be sprinkled and left over night if put in the clothes basket and covered entirely with a heavy towel.

Cracked ice may be chopped finely enough to put in a thermos bottle and prove a great comfort to the feverish patient during a restless night.

Turn the wet umbrella upside down to dry, but leave it closed. This will prevent rusting of the point where the ribs join and also prevent stretching.

To Skin a Fish Quickly

Cut a thin, narrow strip down the backbone, taking off the dorsal fin. Open the lower part halfway down. Slip the knife under and up through the bony part of the gills, holding this bony part between thumb and finger and strip the skin off toward the tail. Repeat on the other side.

Memoirs of a Meeting

Limited Accommodations On Soviet Press Tour Also Make Strange Bedfellows

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

NEVER, in wildest fancy, did we picture ourselves as pal of a female spy. We achieved this chic distinction effortlessly, at the time being too guileless to appreciate this exceptional luck. Our personal Mata Hari is no less a person than Anna Louise Strong, who a few days ago the Russians arrested, ordered deported for "espionage and undermining activity against the Soviet Union." More than a decade ago, when Americans were still considered comparatively hotsy-totsy in Stalinland, this correspondant spent no less than 18 nights in an upper bunk above Miss Strong. We were both Soviet government guests on a special train junket through Central Asiatic Russia climaxing at the official opening of the Turkestan-Siberian railroad. Since 98 per cent of the distinguished journalists covering the occasion were masculine, Miss Strong had no alternative but to accept the group's junior member as bunk mate. At that time Miss Strong weighed around 200 pounds, her straight, ash blonde hair was Dutch cut, casually restrained by a bandana tied a la Babushka, her person shrouded in nubbly, raspberry tweed, fashioned much like an Hawaiian mumu.

Strangers in a Train Compartment

DESPITE our mutual bulk and the physical restriction of a railroad sleeping compartment, we did not meet for several days. Presumably Miss Strong retired early for promptly at six she arose, commenced typewriting. We preferred a reverse schedule, climbing aloft to stuffy fastness at 2 a. m. Breaking out our machine at 10 when Miss Strong had exited for a glass of morning chai. Our meeting, however, was inevitable. The opening wedge in our rapprochement was a chocolate bar. We were cagily equipped with a lavish supply, imported from New York and secreted against pilfering under our pillow. (We were wise to the ways of Russians porters. During the 31-day train trip they smoothed, but never changed the sheets.) In those days Soviet chocolate bars were pallid concoctions, blended with sugar substitute and costing 90 cents. Despite the inference of bourgeois prosperity, Miss Strong couldn't resist the rich, chocolaty odor, the small sound of our happy mastication. She introduced herself. From then on we doled chocolate, square by square. Nibbling carefully, Miss Strong talked, and gradually we absorbed considerable information about the glamorous Communist way.

Communism Suited Her to a T

ANNA LOUISE STRONG, Nebraska-born daughter of a Congregational minister, spent much of her youth in Seattle, went to Oberlin College, arrived in Russia on newspaper assignment four years after the Revolution. Communism suited her to a T. She made a good living from it and became in local Communist—should we say "society"?—some punkins. The then extant Soviet officials, undoubtedly regarding her as a valuable foreign propaganda instrument, overlooked her bourgeois origin, deferred to her in many ways. That year she had made between $7000 and $8000 (in unexportable rubles, of course) from the sale of pamphlets describing the wonders of Soviet Sovkozes and Kolhozes (government stud farms and such). This success was most gratifying to Anna Louise. "Can you imagine Americans," she said in awe, "spending so much money to read about such subjects?" Besides pamphlets, she had written a number of books, some rated good, others indifferent, and worked on Moscow's sole English language newspaper. In the late 20s she had joined Borodin in China. After Chiang Kai-shek had effected the removal of the Red propaganda commissar, she returned to Russia with Borodin's party on a remarkable overland journey. Though unmentioned in her book, "China's Millions," Borodin caused her first and, as far as we ever heard, only disillusionment in the utter perfection of things Sovietic. "We had to camp nights on the bare steppes," she recalled. "It was windy, cold. Borodin took the only tent. I and the other women had to sleep outside on the ground."

All She Wanted, If She Wanted Nothing

DAY BY DAY, Anna Louise assured us Communism was the only way of good living. Everyone was free, except those who offended the state, everyone had a job, and a woman had everything, or almost everything she wanted in Russia. Too many clothes were unnecessary, she remarked, eyeing our well-seasoned Chanel. Tea and nourishing stew was enough for anyone, she continued, munching our chocolate.

Next Time, Roles Were Reversed

THOUGH Anna Louise moved in far loftier strata, we saw her occasionally in Moscow. The last time we met, a year, or possibly two, after the Turk-Sib trip, our roles were curiously reversed. She had married a Russian Communist journalist, and Moscow was agog because she had been summoned to the Kremlin, had actually talked to Stalin. (The only other foreign journalists who had interviewed Stalin at that time were Eugene Lyons and Walter Duranty.) Her new marital status, her added importance, had changed Anna Louise. For the moment she was almost a butterfly. She arrived at the party with a group of prominent Russians, composers, artists—the only ones who dared mingle with foreigners. She was dressed in an emerald green skirt topped by an amazingly complicated batik blouse. A string of amber beads fell waistlength. As a visible symbol of our liberal tendencies we had adopted—or rather adapted—Russian dress—a black skirt, a high-necked Russian blouse. Even our hair was cropped short. Anna Louise made her way to us. We asked her about her Kremlin experience. "When they telephoned, at first I thought it was a practical joke," she said, glancing meaningly at a correspondent whose sense of humor was notedly peculiar, "but a car came for me at 9 o'clock that night." She looked through me, dreamily. She was almost in a trance. "I saw him. He asked me questions. It was the great moment of my life. Nothing—nothing could ever mean as much to me. To think that Stalin wanted to see me!" We were equally impressed. Then, the crowd shifted, someone pressed a glass of vodka into our hand. We gulped it to steady our nerves, our emotions. Imagine if Stalin had sent for us!

Whatever could have happened to Anna Louise during the intervening years? How could she ever have given even fleeting sympathy to reactioary, American ideology? We wonder—

A NEW fish treat fixed in an old favorite way!
Crispy, crumb-crusted
Deep-fried Gloucester Ocean Perch
(ROSEFISH)

Pat dry 2 pounds Gloucester Ocean Perch fillets, dip into mixture of 2 eggs and ¼ cup cold water beaten together, then into seasoned cracker crumbs or meal. Shake off any loose crumbs and fry golden brown in deep hot fat (380-390°F.). Drain on soft crumpled paper and serve with Tartare Sauce. Serves 6.

Love deep-fried dinners? Just wait 'til you taste Gloucester Ocean Perch—fresh-water mildness plus salt-water tang — fried to a golden curl and served up with zippy tartare sauce! A real fish dinner! And you can have it tonight, no matter where you live, because the Gloucester Fisheries have perfected "freezing the flavor." This means Gloucester Ocean Perch comes to your table fresh as the day it left the icy Atlantic waters — firm, meaty, tasty. You'll find Gloucester Ocean Perch already cleaned, boned, filleted at your favorite food market today!

On the Town

Some rather startling evidence indicating a surprising limit, perhaps hitherto unknown, to the scope of fortune telling was introduced the other night in conversation at the Cafe Caprice (Roger Smith Hotel).

Ira Ari

In brief (and with tongue in cheek), it seems at least one professional seer has no difficulty whatever in figuring out the past, present and future for her clientele—mere routine, this—but is unable to do the same for herself.

Consider, then the "perfectly horrible" 18 months that plagued Francesca, the cafe's all-knowing one. Seated at your table, able to smile about it now, she relates the tale.

Every time she put on her new glasses during those long months her head began to ache. Take them off, the ache departed.

No amount of mentalism, crystal ball gazing, or other methods proving of avail, she at last consulted the man who knows best about such difficulties. The optometrist figured it out.

"But now, she smiles, everything is fine. See?" And then she puts on her glasses, exhibits an unpained brow, and returns to her work.

When they're not chatting about such matters, patrons of the Cafe Caprice these days are listening to the versatile piano of Jon Hastings, whose last stand was the Roger Smith at Holyoke, Mass. Like Paul Berlin, his predecessor, Hastings plays just about anything you want and it's pleasant listening.

The Continental Balalaika unveiled a new revue last night, a show featuring a gal named Ira Ari in a bit of Pan American dancing. Held over is the young and talented Helene Emee, Mexican-born lass who vocalizes in the Parisian and south-of-the-border styles and shakes a menacing maraca.

For the rest, it's Karavaeff in the emcee spot. Julie Melman and her violin, and music by Sasha Bartnowsky's orchestra.

Also new is the show at the Casino Royal—Bobby Joyce and Ginger in tap dance routines, the Skating Rockwells entertaining on roller skates, and Reggie Rymal in a novelty act.

On March 1, says the Casino's Lawrence Tom, "six gorgeous girls" will open there for patrons who like chorus lines. Known as the June Jackson dancers, they're coming here from a 13-month stay at the Chez Ami in Buffalo.

The Lotus this week offers an agile young duo—the Tannos—who mix some energetic tap dancing with ballroom, jitterbug and adagio footwork. Smooth the routine a bit and they could be comers.

Also on the Lotus bill is Professor Jan Latin. The professor balances. He takes a table, rests a milkcan-like object on it, places a basketball-sized globe on the can, puts a board atop the globe, and tops it with a rocking chair. Then he climbs aboard this shaky conglomeration, stretches supine over the back of the chair, and there he is.

Rounding out the show are Tenner and Betty—two sets of cowboy costumes, innumerable lariats to twirl, and a spot of hoofing.

ROBERT P. JORDAN.

Danger Is Business Of Parents

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

It is imperative that mothers of small children use their imaginations to see what might possibly happen to a child in any particular situation, and then see that this dangerous eventuality does not happen.

Two mothers want to relate incidents which they consider should be warnings to mothers of possible dangers. Mrs. H. M. writes, "One of these dangers is to allow small children to transport glass milk bottles from the grocery to their home. I have in mind a 5-year-old who was sent to a nearby store, fell, broke the bottle and all but severed his wrist. This is a high price for though his life was saved by quick action and transfusions, he has almost certainly lost the use of the left wrist. I give high praise to the companies who use paper containers for milk. That sems an easier solution than to try to educate parents."

One might supplement this by saying that no small child should be allowed to carry any glass object. Children fall easily and glass shatters so quickly on cement pavements or driveways.

Mrs. H. W. S. had an unusual experience with the long loop on a Venetian blind. "My daughter-in-law was busy in another room and just happened in the living room to find her baby hanging limp. He had put the loop of the cord over his head, loosened the blind which fell down pulling up the cord and him with it. She got him out and he soon revived."

This is the first time I have ever heard of this happening, though it might be possible under extraordinary circumstances. The long loop might be hooked high over a convenient hook when small children are about.

But danger is the business of the parent. As adults, we are familiar with household appliances, with electricity, gas and ways of making these harmless. The child has all of this to learn.

It is unwise to load a child with the responsibility for his own safety until he is of an age to carry it. When the child is alone—and quiet—find out what he is doing. Invariably he will be into some mischief. While some accidents are inevitable, many could be avoided were the parent to look at her own environment with an imaginative eye to its hazards.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Loeffler Has District Golfers Dormy

The Interior Department will soon decide whether or not to permit Concessionaire S. G. Loeffler to continue to run our public golf courses.

Judging by a cross-section of the comments I've heard, thousands of local golfers join me in hoping that the decision will be a resounding NO.

Anybody who has ever played a round of golf at Anacostia or East Potomac knows that when the sun is shining it's like playing on a broken billiard table; but after a rain, the long-suffering patrons trudge through the swamplands yelling "Chloe" instead of "fore."

Local golfers spend more than $500,000 a year with Loeffler, of which he manages to retain a respectable chunk for himself, and far too little goes back into maintenance.

His recently expired contract yielded $42,500 in executive salary to Loeffler in the past five years. In the first four of those years, it also yielded an additional $70,000 in profit.

In 1948, however, Loeffler says that he lost money. Therefore he'll have to raise his prices this season.

Asked whether his books are available for inspection, Loeffler answered: "My accountant has my books at present, but Irving C. Root at the Interior Department has all the information, down to the smallest detail."

Root said: "I have a summary of income and outgo figures, but I do not have any detailed breakdown."

A Cleveland concessionaire is currently trying to take this plum away from Loeffler, and has offered the Government an attractive proposition. Without asking for an increase in prices, he guarantees the Government a profit of $15,000, plus a liberal percentage of the gross business to be done, plus a division of any remaining profits.

Based on Loeffler's gross in the "losing" year of 1948, the Cleveland firm would pay Uncle Sam $45,000 per year plus half of the profits. (When Loeffler shows a loss, he pays nothing. But his executive salary continues).

To a hayseed like me, it appears that the Cleveland concessionaire is offering the Government a much better deal, and should get the new contract.

But Interior's Irving Root says that he made a commitment to Loeffler in January of 1948, and promised that Loeffler, who admittedly never even entered a bid, would get a five-year renewal.

The reason? Root wanted a clubhouse for the Fort DuPont course. Congress refused to appropriate the money. So Loeffler loaned the United States Government $57,000 to build the clubhouse. Then he loaned us another $50,000, to build two miniature golf courses.

The loans are "secured" by Root's promise that the department will repay Loeffler out of future profits. Loeffler, meantime, runs all these facilities. And so long as the money is due him, Root felt that he deserved a secret commitment of contract renewal.

Asked why there had been no announcement of this deal, Root replied: "I did not think it was necessary or desirable to publicize the matter."

"Isn't it Department policy to advertise all expiring contracts, and solicit bids from all reputable citizens?" I asked.

"I didn't know about that policy until I read about it in the newspapers in August of 1948," Root told me. "My commitment was made in January of 1948."

"Since when do Government departments borrow money from private citizens to finance projects Congress has rejected?" I inquired.

"We did it because we needed the clubhouse, and because we have the authority to expand these facilities with our share of profits," was the explanation.

The remainder of our conversation went like this:

Bill: "The Cleveland firm says it will give Loeffler a certified check for whatever money he has coming, if they get the contract. What about that?"

Root: "The awarding of the contract is now before the Secretary. I have nothing to do with awarding it."

Bill: "Inasmuch as you made the commitment to Loeffler, I thought you did have. At any rate, have you made a recommendation to the Secretary?"

Root: "Yes, I have."

Bill: What was it?"

Root: "I'd rather not say."

Bill: "Inasmuch as you admit you made a commitment, I don't understand your reluctance to discuss your recommendation to the Secretary."

Root: "You know what the big vegetables always say when they're asked questions like that. No comment."

Bill: "What's a big vegetable?"

Root: "No comment."

After concluding this enlightening conversation, I learned that if Loeffler is given a new contract, a demand will be made for a congressional investigation into his 27-year tenure as the local golf concessionaire.

There is strong feeling on the Hill that the will of Congress shall not be thwarted by secretly negotiated contracts.

Inasmuch as this contract involves Government property, it seems logical to assume that the prime consideration in awarding it should be to make sure that most of the proceeds revert to the Government, for maintenance and expansion of recreation services, instead of being drained off by private entrepreneurs.

The next week the press agent's release began, "Herman Shumlin, a headstrong producer."

Ed Wynn's Laugh Carnival, now touring the Southwest, is produced by Paul Small, the agent. His monopoly of these vaudeville ventures was the result of his own application and Fred Finklehoffe's waning interest. In Small's offices are a series of posters revealing the progress of his monopoly. The first, in 1942, was "Show Time," which Small booked. The billing reads, "Fred Finkelhoffe Presents." The second was "Fred Finklehoffe and Paul Small Present 'Big Time'." The third was "Paul Small and Fred Finklehoffe Present 'Laugh Time'." The final one was "Paul Small Presents 'Fun Time'."

Bikini Naval Losses 'Disaster'

By Drew Pearson

Secretary of Defense Forrestal and the Navy are moving frantically to hush it up, but a full-fledged congressional investigation of the effects of the Bikini bomb tests is in the offing. In fact, Senator Brien McMahon, Chairman of the Atomic Energy Committee, may announce it any day.

Forrestal

Senators say privately that they are fed up with the hush-hush policy of the brass hats. While the Senate Committee is 100 per cent in favor of keeping secret all atomic information of possible value to an enemy, they do not believe either the United States Congress or the American people are an enemy. Also, committee members feel the brass hats are deliberately suppressing considerable information about the effectiveness of the bomb to cover up mistakes they have made in failing to redesign or abolish warships.

One interesting fact now in the hands of the Senate Committee is part of the inside story of Bikini. It shows that of the 73 ships involved in the Bikini tests, more than 61 were sunk or destroyed.

This is an enormous loss from only two bombs. Yet it was never released in understandable form to the American public. On the contrary, news releases were carefully spread out over a period of time so that the man in the street never really knew what happened.

The real fact, however, is that two bombs at Bikini sank the battleship Arkansas, the carrier Saratoga, the Japanese battleship Nagato, 2 cruisers, 10 destroyers, 3 submarines, 12 transports and numerous other vessels. The aircraft carrier Independence, which was subjected to intense blasts from both Bikini bombs, is now anchored off San Francisco, permanently destroyed — usable only as a testing ground to determine the possibility of removing radioactivity. This is still dangerous two years after the ship was attacked.

Members of the Senate Atomic Energy Committee point out that the loss of so many ships from one bomb would be considered a major naval disaster at any time, yet, because the public is not aware of the potency of the bomb, our "bathtub" admirals are busily pouring another 14 million dollars down the drain on a 56,000-ton supercarrier which could be put out of action permanently if a bomb were dropped within half a mile of it.

Information brought to the Senate Committee's attention by Dr. David Bradley, a scientist who was an official observer at Bikini, reveals that, after the tests, the Navy tried frantically to remove radioactivity from damaged ships but without success. Bradley reported that "salt water, lye, foamite, soap, all spread with liberal amounts of gob profanity, had no avail in removing the radioactivity."

Sandblasting was partly effective, but you can't sandblast a whole ship under battle conditions. Nor can you sandblast Pearl Harbor or the Bremerton shipyards or Chicago. Possibly, with great quantities of strong acid, you might be able to remove enough paint to clear the decks of fission products. But short of that, the coat of radioactivity administered by the A-bomb is on to stay.

Most important single harmful result of the Bikini blasts was not the explosions themselves—though they did more damage than any bombs in history—but the fact that plutonium was spread far and wide over the fleet.

Plutonium is the most dangerous atomic element of all. It lodges in the bones, destroys the blood-producing marrow, and may kill either by wrecking the red and white blood cells of the victim or it may kill the victim many years later through the formation of bone tumors. Plutonium cannot be removed by any known process.

None of this information is secret. All of it is known to many of the doctors of all nations. Yet Secretary Forrestal, who this year is building more than 400 million dollars worth of new ships, hasn't paid much attention to the problem. This is the inside reason why the Atomic Energy Committee is now seriously planning a full-dress investigation of Bikini and its results.

Most important information the scientists are urging the Atomic Energy Committee to break loose is contained in the nonsecret sections of the report of the evaluation board of the Joint Chiefs of Staff on the Bikini tests, which Defense Secretary Forrestal has bottled up. The report concludes with the significant statement that "future wars employing atomic bombs may well destroy nations and change present standards of civilization."

Brass-hat lobbyists on Capitol Hill have been drawing a red herring across the trail of the proposed investigation by saying that those in favor of more public knowledge about the atomic bomb actually want to give secrets to the Russians. Nothing could be further from the truth.
